Contributors

Kam C. Chan, is the Leon and Ruby Mai Page Professor of Finance at Gordon Ford College of Business, Western Kentucky University. Dr Chan received his bachelor’s degree in economics at the Chinese University of Hong Kong (1984), MA in economics (1987), MA in finance (1989), and PhD in finance (1990) at the University of Alabama. His teaching interests are investments and international finance. Research interests include derivative securities, mutual funds, fixed income, and Chinese financial markets. He has published more than 70 journal articles in leading finance journals. He is also a Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) charter holder and currently serving a three-year term as a director of Midwest Finance Association (2004–2006).

Alan V. S. Douglas completed his PhD in Finance and Economics at Queen’s University in Kingston, Canada in 1994. His first appointment was at Clemson University in South Carolina USA, and he is currently an Associate Professor at the University of Waterloo in Canada. His primary research interests include the theory of the firm and information asymmetries, particularly as related to financial markets. He has published papers on topics including the dividend puzzle, capital structure, corporate control, managerial incentives, and the role of accounting information in security design, in journals such as the Review of Financial Studies, Journal of Empirical Finance, Journal of Corporate Finance, European Finance Review and Contemporary Accounting Research.

Hung-gay Fung, is Dr Y. S. Tsiang Chair Professor of Chinese studies at the College of Business Administration and Center of International Studies, University of Missouri – St Louis. Dr Fung’s research covers a wide range of international finance and Chinese financial markets. He has published over 100 scholarly articles and books. He is a recipient of many grants and academic awards. As a senior expert of Chinese studies, Dr Fung has frequently organized many international conferences and symposiums.

Ying Han is a graduate student in economics at the University of Missouri – St Louis. She earned her bachelor’s degree in finance at Sun Yat-sen University, Guangzhou, China.
Alan Guoming Huang is currently an Assistant Professor of Finance at the University of Waterloo, Canada. His research focuses on the asset pricing implications of dynamic risk aversion and corporate earnings volatility, as well as issues related to emerging markets, especially the Chinese markets. He was an investment banker in China. Alan Huang holds a PhD in finance from the University of Colorado at Boulder, and a master’s degree from Shanghai University of Finance and Economics.

Mary Ip is a member of the faculty at the University of Sydney with a research interest in Chinese commercial law. Her comparative research approach is regarded as conducive to the recent legal reform in China. She has been invited to speak to Chinese officials both in Australia and overseas on many occasions. In 2003, she carried out research at Peking University and Nanjing University as a visiting scholar and has obtained a number of universities’ research grants. She has published extensively in internationally referred journals.

Julia S. Kwok is an Assistant Professor of Finance in the Department of Accounting and Finance, College of Business and Technology, Northeastern State University – Broken Arrow. She obtained her doctoral degree in finance from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. Her research interests include corporate governance, venture financing, equity offering, telecommunication policies, and small and high-tech businesses. Prior to joining the academics, she was involved in strategic planning and telecommunication technical standards development. Currently she serves as a director of the Southwestern Finance Association.

Fei Liu is a research scholar in the Institute of Finance and Banking at the Chinese Academy of Social Science, China. She came to the University of Missouri – St Louis as a visiting scholar in 2004. Her research focuses primarily on China’s insurance industry and she has published extensively on Chinese insurance issues.

Qingfeng ‘Wilson’ Liu is Assistant Professor of Finance at the College of Business, James Madison University in Virginia. His research interests include financial derivatives, investments, statistical forecasting and international finance. He has published articles in China’s banking and securities markets, the real estate market, the emerging venture capital, and poverty-alleviating microfinance programmes. He received his PhD in finance from the University of Oklahoma.
Congsheng Wu is an Associate Professor of Finance at the University of Bridgeport. He is the co-author of two books about international corporate finance, both of which are published in Chinese. He has also published many articles in the area of global equity offerings and cross-listing.

Xiaoqing Xu is an Associate Professor of Finance at the Stillman School of Business at Seton Hall University and a Chartered Financial Analyst. Her research interests are in hedge funds, venture capital, emerging markets, security market microstructure and mortgage-backed securities. She has published over 20 research articles in journals such as Journal of Banking and Finance, Real Estate Economics, Financial Analysts Journal, Journal of Futures Markets, Financial Review, Review of Quantitative Finance and Accounting, International Review of Economics and Finance, Journal of Investing and Journal of Alternative Investments.

Yanda Xu graduated from the Accounting and Management Information Systems Department of the University of Missouri – St Louis. He is currently working as an analyst in the finance department of BJC Healthcare System. Prior to studying in the USA, he had many years of experience in the banking industry of China.

Jot Yau is Chair and Professor of Finance at the Department of Finance at Seattle University, WA. He holds a PhD in finance from the University of Massachusetts Amherst and is a CFA charterholder. He was a co-founder and company director of Strategic Options Investment Advisory Ltd in Hong Kong.

Gaiyan Zhang is Assistant Professor of Finance at the University of Missouri – St Louis. She received her PhD from the University of California, Irvine. Her research interests include credit risk, financial risk management, international finance, and China finance.