

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Acknowledgements	x
1. Introduction: scope of the book Hugo Priemus, Bent Flyvbjerg and Bert van Wee	1
PART I MANAGEMENT CHARACTERISTICS AND COST–BENEFIT ANALYSIS
2. Management characteristics of mega-projects Hans de Bruijn and Martijn Leijten	23
3. Ex-ante evaluation of mega-projects: methodological issues and cost–benefit analysis Bert van Wee and Lóránt A. Tavasszy	40
4. Cost–benefit analysis and the wider economic benefits from mega-projects Roger W. Vickerman	66
5. Mega-projects and contested information Hans de Bruijn and Martijn Leijten	84
PART II PLANNING AND DECISION-MAKING
6. How to improve the early stages of decision-making on mega-projects Hugo Priemus	105
7. Public planning of mega-projects: overestimation of demand and underestimation of costs Bent Flyvbjerg	120
8. Evolving strategy: risk management and the shaping of mega-projects Roger Miller and Donald R. Lessard	145
9. How to overcome major weaknesses in mega-projects: the Norwegian approach Knut Samset	173

10. Public–private partnership and mega-projects Joop Koppenjan	189
PART III INNOVATION, COMPETITION AND INSTITUTIONS
11. Innovations in the planning of mega-projects Werner Rothengatter	215
12. The cost of the technological sublime: daring ingenuity and the new San Francisco–Oakland Bay Bridge Karen Trapenberg Frick	239
13. Provision and management of dedicated railway systems: how to arrange competition Didier van de Velde and Ernst F. ten Heuvelhof	263
14. Rail infrastructure at major European hub airports: the role of institutional settings Moshe Givoni and Piet Rietveld	281
15. Drawing institutional lessons across countries on making transport infrastructure policy W. Martin de Jong	304
Index	327