

Contents

List of abbreviations	viii
Preface	ix
Foreword and acknowledgments	xiii

PART I THE DEVELOPMENTS OF EC LEGISLATION AND CASE LAW IN CORPORATE TAXATION AND COMPANY LAW AND THEIR ULTIMATE OUTCOME: A CONTRIBUTION TO THE LEGAL COMPETITION BETWEEN MEMBER STATES

1. The ultimate result of EC legislation and case law in the field of companies' taxation: an increased scope for tax competition among Member States	3
1.1. The two 1990 Directives: from the objective of a 'common system of taxation' to the result of a distorted tax competition	4
1.2. The 2003 Interest-Royalties Directive: overview	17
1.3. Unintentional contribution of the latest ECJ case law on the 1990 Directives to tax competition	18
1.4. Crucial developments of the ECJ tax case law on companies' freedom of establishment and their potential effects on tax competition	36
1.5. Current company taxation environment within the Community, Commission orientations and underlying attitude towards tax competition	50
1.6. A problematic, unresolved issue	56
2. Latest ECJ rulings on the freedom of establishment in the context of EC company law developments	68
2.1. Developments of EC company law regarding companies governed by the laws of Member States: overview	68
2.2. The Uberseering ruling	69
2.3. The ECJ's findings in Inspire Art	75
2.4. A key company law implication from a tax ruling	78
2.5. And a company law ruling with tax implications	80

3.	From the limits of the EC company law harmonization programme to the ‘limited supranationality’ in the SE	88
3.1.	Review of the results of the company law harmonization programme and envisaged developments	88
3.2.	Main EC law ‘supranational’ instrument: the SE	91
3.3.	A ‘slightly more supranational’ form: the SCE: overview	125
3.4.	Final observation	126
PART II THE RESPONSE TO THE CHALLENGE OF LEGAL COMPETITION: A SUPRANATIONAL SOLUTION?
4.	Alternative routes towards the level playing field for companies in the European Community: suggestions	141
4.1.	EC corporate tax Directives and company law harmonization programme: coherence or ‘variable geometry’?	141
4.2.	Competition in corporate taxation within the EC and EC Law	146
4.3.	Intra-EC competition in company laws and EC law	160
4.4.	Supranational instruments as vehicles for a legal competition compatible with EC law?	174
5.	Hypothesis for (truly) supranational developments	191
5.1.	Hypothesis for the taxation regime of the SE	192
5.2.	Hypothesis on the current proposal on the EPC	199
5.3.	European forms of partnerships and their taxation regimes	202
6.	Conclusions	207
6.1.	An institutional view from the perspective of Member States: any problem for the ‘supranational solution’ to the legal competition in corporate taxation and company laws?	207
6.2.	Final remarks	211
APPENDICES
I.	Examples of the ‘race to the bottom’ legal competition among Member States in corporate taxation and company laws	217
II.	Functioning of the pilot HST and CCBT schemes	220
III.	EC corporate tax law implementation in Member States	222
IV.	Key cases of relevance to company direct taxation	236

V. Increasing opportunities for expansion strategies in the new wider Europe	240
VI. Update	246
Bibliography	251
Further reading	258
Index	261