

Contributors

Simon Best (PhD) is a Small Business Management Consultant and principal of Access Business Consultants. Simon has owned and operated several small businesses before setting up Access Business Consultants. He is interested in globalisation and its effects on small businesses. Currently Simon is working with a number of clients in Bangladesh, Vietnam and Egypt who are seeking to take advantage of the benefits globalisation has brought to small businesses. Simon is also employed at Queensland University of Technology as a sessional lecturer in Management. Simon's research interests are in entrepreneurship, business improvisation and cultural effects on businesses. He recently completed his PhD through Swinburne University of Technology, Melbourne. E-mail: spdbest@acenet.net.au

Mehraz Boolaky (PhD) is an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Law and Management, University of Mauritius. He was previously Dean in the Faculty of Law and Management, University of Mauritius. Dr Boolaky held senior management positions in the private sector for more than 14 years before joining the University of Mauritius in 1993. He has taught in Malaysia, France, Madagascar, Reunion, Morocco and the Seychelles. He is currently on leave from the University of Mauritius and attached to the Al Akhawayn University in Morocco. He has provided consultancy in various areas of Management including training and development, recruitment and selection exercises, marketing and strategic planning. He has presented several papers at international conferences. His current research interests are in entrepreneurship, knowledge management, organisational restructuring, customer relationship management, marketing and strategic management. E-mail: M.Bootaky@aui.ma; mboolaky@uom.ac.mu

Luis Felipe Calderón-Moncloa (DEA, U. Nice, France) is an Associate Professor in the Graduate Business School, ESAN University, Lima, Peru. He has also been a management consultant for the last 24 years and has published regularly in the most prestigious financial newspapers and journals in Peru. He has taught in Estonia, Serbia, Austria, Dubai, Paraguay, Bolivia and Guatemala and he has been a Visiting Professor in France. He has published two books and, amongst others, in Revista de Empresa from IE, Madrid, Spain. His current research interests include intercultural management.

intercultural knowledge management and intercultural negotiations. E-mail: Lcalderon@esan.edu.pe

Te Fu Chen is a Lecturer in the Department of International Trade, Cheng Shiu University, Taiwan and is enrolled as a PhD candidate at UWS. He previously worked at the Ton Da Computer and Information Co. Ltd as a CEO, and prior to that he was a consultant to the high-tech industry and SMEs. He was Head of School in Computing & IT of a senior high school in Hsin Chu Scientific and Technological Park in Taiwan. He has published over 45 papers for international conferences and journals about knowledge management, knowledge-based innovation, e-business, e-commerce and supply chain management for high-tech industries and SMEs. His current research interests include knowledge management in Taiwan, knowledge-based innovation for high-tech industry and SMEs, integrated models for e-business and m-business, and innovation supply chains. E-mail: phd2003@hotmail.com

Gerhard Fink is Jean Monnet Professor for applied micro-economics in European integration and Director of the doctoral program at Wirtschaftsuniversität Wien. He was Chairman of the Business Faculty at Wirtschaftsuniversität Wien during 2001–02 and Director of the Institute for European Affairs (Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence) during 1997–2003. In the past, he also taught at the Johns Hopkins University Bologna Centre and at universities in Munich, Trieste, Linz, Vienna and Krems. During 1973–90 he was affiliated with the Vienna Institute for Comparative Studies (WIIW, Director during 1984–90). He is certified as a business consultant by the Austrian Chamber of Commerce. Professor Fink has published about 180 publications in learned journals and authored or (co-)edited about 15 books. He is co-editor of a Special Issue of the Academy of Management Executive on the global transfer of management knowledge (2005). He speaks German and English, and has a working knowledge of Russian, Italian and French. E-mail: gerhard.fink@wu-wien.ac.at

Mridula Gungaphul (MBA) is a Senior Lecturer in Marketing and Management in the Faculty of Law and Management, University of Mauritius. She joined the University in 1999 after having spent three years in managerial positions in the private sector. She is currently registered for an MPhil/PhD in Management in the field of Entrepreneurship at the University of Mauritius. She has participated in several international conferences. Her areas of research are in SMEs, entrepreneurship and marketing. E-mail: m.gungaphul@uom.ac.mu

Nigel Holden (PhD, Manchester Business School, 1986) has held professorial appointments in Denmark and Germany and is currently Professor of

Comparative and International Management at Nottingham Business School, UK. His fields of publication embrace cross-cultural management, knowledge management, international marketing, management change in Russia, marketing in Japan and intercultural business communication. He has co-authored management books on Japan (1994) and Russia (1997), and his Cross-Cultural Management: A Knowledge Management Perspective (2002) was published in Russian and Chinese in 2005 and 2006 respectively. He was co-editor with Gerhard Fink of a Special Issue of (a) the Academy of Management Executive on the global transfer of management knowledge (2005) and (b) the Journal of Managerial Psychology on the absorption and application of management knowledge (2005). He is Queensland University of Technology Visiting Professor at the Vienna University of Economics and Business Administration and has given over 100 invited lectures and keynote addresses to academic and professional audiences in several European countries, Japan, Taiwan, the USA and Russia. In addition to his native English, he speaks German and Russian and has a working knowledge of several other languages. E-mail: nigel.holden@ntu.ac.uk

Kate Hutchings (PhD, UQ) is an Associate Professor in the Department of Management, Monash University, Australia. She was previously employed at the Queensland University of Technology and prior to that at the University of Queensland. She has taught in China and Malaysia as well as having held visiting positions at Rutgers, Copenhagen Business School and CERAM. She has co-authored or co-edited three books and, amongst others, her research has appeared in Asia Pacific Journal of Management, Human Resource Management Journal, International Journal of Human Resource Management, Journal of Management Studies, Journal of Organisational Change Management and Thunderbird International Business Review. Her current research interests include human resource management in China, expatriate management, intercultural knowledge sharing and intercultural networking. E-mail: kate.hutchings@buseco.monash.edu.au

Rajni Kakkar is one of the founders and the Vice President (Business Development) of Canam Consultants Ltd. Rajni has developed the company into India's second largest resettlement solutions business with over 30 offices throughout India. She also developed Destinations Abroad, a magazine distributed throughout South East Asia. After completing her Bachelor degree in political science, Rajni completed a Masters in Public Administration. Prior to starting Canam Consultants Ltd, Rajni worked as a volunteer examining rights abuses in Nagaland and Manipur. Rajni is also active in a charitable organisation that sponsors education for underprivileged children. Her research interests focus on business development.

Renata Kaminska-Labbé is a Professor in Management at CERAM Sophia Antipolis European School of Business, France, where she also directs the continuing education programme for mid-career professionals. She is a Visiting Professor at Kozminski School of Entrepreneurship and Management in Warsaw and at Krakow University of Economics. She studied in Poland, Canada and France, and holds a Doctorate in Management from the University of Nice. Her current research interests include knowledge management and transfer of competencies, specifically in transitional economies. She also works on organisational dynamics, with research on co-evolution of decisional structures and environmental factors. E-mail: renata.labbe@ceram.fr

Maren Lehmann (Dr Phil) qualified in print studies and design, pedagogy and sociology at the University of Art and Design Burg Giebichenstein, Halle, the Martin-Luther-University Halle-Wittenberg and Bielefeld University, respectively, and obtained a diploma in pedagogy and her doctorate in sociology (on inclusion and exclusion in religious observations) at the University of Halle-Wittenberg. She was a researcher in the departments of sociology and business administration at the Martin-Luther-University Halle-Wittenberg and in the department of media studies at the Bauhaus-University Weimar. She was a guest Lecturer at universities in Halle, Leipzig, Weimar and Vienna. She is currently preparing her post-doctoral dissertation (on careers as organisational calculations with individuals) in the Department of Fundamental Studies at the University Witten/Herdecke. Her fields of publication embrace system theory and second order cybernetics, sociological studies on individualism, life-course and career, and design theories. In addition to her native German, she speaks English and Russian. Website: www.maren-lehmann.de. E-mail: DompfarramtMerseburg@t-online.de

Snejina Michailova is Professor of International Business at the University of Auckland Business School, New Zealand (PhD degree from Copenhagen Business School, Denmark). Her research interests are in international management (focus on cross-cultural management), knowledge management (focus on knowledge sharing) and emerging economies (focus on Russia and China). Much of her research has bridged these three areas in different constellations. Her work has appeared in, among others, The Academy of Management Executive, California Management Review, Journal of Management Studies, Management Learning, Journal of World Business, Organisational Dynamics and International Management. Snejina Michailova is Editor Europe of the Journal of World Business. E-mail: s.michailova@auckland.ac.nz

Kavoos Mohannak (PhD, Monash) is a Lecturer in the School of Management, Faculty of Business, Queensland University of Technology,

Australia. He previously worked as a postdoctoral research fellow at the Centre for Asia Pacific Social Transformation Studies at the University of Wollongong. He also studied, worked and taught at the International University of Japan for several years. Currently he teaches technology, innovation and knowledge management at Queensland University of Technology. His research focuses on management of technology and knowledge from the perspective of government policy, innovation and knowledge management in SMEs, R&D networks and regional clusters. In recent years, he has completed major research projects on R&D and innovation in the biotechnology industry and has studied Australian ICT and manufacturing clusters in various regions of Australia, which led to publication of a book. E-mail: k.mohannak@qut.edu.au

J.C. Spender (PhD) is trained as a nuclear engineer and has worked on the UK nuclear submarine programme. He then worked for IBM (UK) and Slater-Walker Securities before entering the PhD programme at Manchester Business School. His thesis won the Academy of Management A.T. Kearney Prize and was subsequently published as Industry Recipes (Blackwell, 1989). He served on the faculty at City University, UCLA, Glasgow University, and Rutgers before becoming Dean of the School of Business and Technology at FIT/SUNY in Manhattan. He is now retired but continues to write, consult, teach and research around the world. E-mail: jcspender@yahoo.com

Catherine Thomas is a Professor in Management at the University of Metz, France and a member of the RODIGE team of GREDEG (Groupe de Recherche en Droit, Economie et Gestion, UMR 6227, CNRS) research laboratory. Her current research interests include knowledge management and, more precisely, knowledge codification and the conception of ICT solutions in a use-oriented, co-constructionist perspective. She has coordinated an interdisciplinary project 'Knowledge Management Platform' with the objective to develop and implement a competence-based website for a network of firms and research institutions in the telecommunications industry. Currently she also pilots a RODIGE research group working on the Dynamics of Knowledge and Competencies. E-mail: thomas@idefi.cnrs.fr

David Weir (MA, Oxon, Dip.PSA Oxon, CCIIM) is Professor of Management at CERAM Sophia Antipolis in France and Visiting Professor in Management Development at Lancaster University and Bristol Business School. He was previously Director of the Bradford University School of Management and inaugural Professor of Organisational Behaviour at Glasgow University. He is Emeritus Professor of the University of Northumbria. He has been involved in business as a company Director and is active as a business and management development consultant in the MENA region, Europe and Latin America. He undertook a British Council project on Management Education in Mauritius, leading to the setting up of the first MBA programme in Mauritius, and has remained closely involved with Higher Education in Mauritius. He teaches on the Knowledge Management cluster of the Theseus MBA. He inaugurated and led the Arab Management Conference for many years. He is author and editor of 12 books and many academic papers, including several chapters in the Encyclopaedia of Business and Management on the Arab World, Jordan, Algeria and the Gulf States. He is currently completing a book on management in the Arab World to be published by Edward Elgar. E-mail: David.Weir@Ceram.fr