The contributors

Guy B. Adams is Professor of Public Affairs in the Harry S Truman School of Public Affairs at the University of Missouri-Columbia, in Columbia, MO, USA. He is co-editor-in-chief of the American Review of Public Administration. His research interests are in the areas of public administration history and theory, public service ethics, and organization studies. He has over 60 scholarly publications, including books, book chapters and articles in the top national public administration journals, and received the 2007 Marshall E. Dimock Award for the best lead article in Public Administration Review. He earned his doctorate in public administration in 1977 from The George Washington University in Washington, DC.

Danny L. Balfour is Professor of Public and Nonprofit Administration at Grand Valley State University in Grand Rapids, MI, USA. His research and teaching interests are in the areas of organizational theory, social policy, public service ethics, and the Holocaust. He has more than 30 scholarly publications, including two editions of an award-winning book, book chapters, and articles in the top national public administration journals, and received the 2007 Marshall E. Dimock Award for best lead article in Public Administration Review. He served as managing editor of the Journal of Public Affairs Education from 1995–2000. He earned his PhD from Florida State University in 1990.

Alex Belling is a Coordinating Policy Adviser on ethics and integrity issues for the Ministry of the Interior and Kingdom Relations in the Netherlands. He is the former coordinator of the National Office for Promoting Ethics and Integrity in the Public Sector. Belling previously worked for the Ministry of Justice as an HR policy adviser.

James S. Bowman is Professor of Public Administration at the Askew School of Public Administration and Policy, Florida State University, in Tallahassee, FL, USA. He is editor-in-chief of Public Integrity, a journal of the American Society for Public Administration. His primary research areas are human resource management and professional ethics. He is author of over 100 journal articles and book chapters, in addition to two recent co-authored books. Bowman has also edited five anthologies. He earned his doctorate in political science in 1973 from the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

Yves Emery of the University of Geneva, Switzerland, is a Professor at the Swiss Graduate School of Public Administration in Lausanne (IDHEAP), in charge of the department of Public Management and Human Resource Management. He is a research director and consultant in public organizations. His primary research areas are work motivation, competency management and employability, rewards systems and training strategies in public organizations. He is a member of the board of the Swiss Society for Administrative Sciences.

Gillian Fawcett is a Senior Fellow working with the Office for Public Management (OPM) Organisational Development and Policy Team in the UK. She joined OPM from the Audit Commission, where she was a senior policy adviser with expertise in corporate and ethical governance and human rights. Prior to that, she spent a year outside the Commission in Parliament as deputy head of the Scrutiny Unit, responsible for providing professional support to Select Committees in the areas of finance, performance and governance. Fawcett is well-versed in working collaboratively with other agencies to influence policy issues.

Robert A. Giacalone is Professor of Human Resource Management at the Fox School of Business and Management, Temple University, in Philadelphia, PA, USA. His research interests focus on the impact of workplace spirituality and changing values on business ethics. He is also recognized as an expert on behavioural business ethics, exit surveying and interviewing, employee sabotage, and impression management. Giacalone has authored over 100 articles on ethics issues, impression management and exit interviewing, edited/authored seven books, and is currently co-editor of the Ethics in Practice book series. He has served on several journal editorial boards and as editor of several special issues. He has consulted and trained for a number of organizations including the FBI, Carter-Wallace Inc., and the US Department of Defense.

Alain Hoekstra studied public administration at Erasmus University, Rotterdam the Netherlands. He is a Coordinating Policy Adviser on ethics and integrity for the Ministry of the Interior and Kingdom Relations in the Netherlands. He coordinates the National Office for Promoting Ethics and Integrity in the Public Sector. He has published several articles on integrity and has a special interest in the organizational aspects of managing integrity within the public sector.
Sylvia Horton is Honorary Principal Lecturer in the School of Education and Continuing Studies, University of Portsmouth, UK. She is a convenor of the Personnel Policies Study group of the European Group of Public Administration (EGPA) and a member of the EGPA Steering Committee. Her research interests are in the areas of public administration, public management and HRM with special reference to civil services. She has published widely including books, book chapters, and articles in national and international journals. She has worked with European colleagues on a series of comparative studies including public managers, HR flexibilities, competency management, staff participation in public management reform and public service motivation. Her current research is in the area of leadership development and training.

Leo W.J.C. Huberts is Professor in Public Administration and Integrity of Governance at the Department of Public Administration and Organisation Science of the VU University in the Netherlands and director of the research group on the Integrity of Governance. From 1997 until 2004 he was professor in Police Studies and Criminal Justice at the same department. His research concerns political, administrative and police power and power abuse (including corruption and fraud). He is author or editor of ten books on integrity, corruption and fraud and published articles in journals such as Public Integrity and Crime, Law and Social Change.

Carole L. Jurkiewicz is the Women’s Hospital Distinguished Professor of Healthcare Management in the Public Administration Institute of the E. J. Ourso College of Business at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, LA, USA. She has published numerous articles and books in the areas of organizational and individual performance, ethics, power and leadership, bringing to her academic career many years’ experience as a key executive in private and nonprofit organizations. She speaks across the US and Europe on issues of ethics and organizational integrity, and has held key leadership roles in the American Society for Public Administration. Jurkiewicz has served as a consultant to many organizations including IBM, US Postal Service, National Public Radio, American Marketing Association, and many governmental departments at the federal, state, and local levels.

Robert P. Kaye was Research Officer in Risk and Regulation at the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) Centre for Analysis of Risk and Regulation at the London School of Economics in the UK. He completed his doctoral thesis on the regulation of conflict of interest the British House of Commons at the University of Oxford. Kaye has published on standards of public life in the United Kingdom and investigatory mechanisms for allegations of misconduct against government, and on ‘innovation’ in ethics regulation in the UK and the United States.

Terry Lamboo is Research Fellow on Integrity of Governance at the Department of Public Administration and Organization Science at the VU University in the Netherlands. Her research interests include integrity policies and integrity violations within the public sector and most specifically the police. She is primarily focused upon the comparative research approach. Lamboo earned her doctorate in public administration in 2005 at the VU University.

Karin Lasthuizen is Senior Researcher on Integrity of Governance at the Department of Public Administration and Organization Science at the VU University in the Netherlands. Her research interests include leadership and ethics, the police and research methodology. She is currently working on a dissertation on leadership and integrity.

Carol W. Lewis is a Professor of Political Science at the University of Connecticut, Storrs, CT. Her research specializations are public service ethics and public budgeting. She and Stuart C. Gilman authored The Ethics Challenge in Public Service: A Problem-Solving Guide, 2nd edn, San Francisco: Jossey-Bass, 2005.

Jeroen Maesschalck is a Lecturer at the Leuven Institute of Criminology in the Law Faculty of the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven in Belgium. His teaching and research interests include public sector ethics, criminal justice administration and policy, and public personnel management. He is also research fellow in Integrity of Governance at the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam and co-chair of the Study Group on Ethics and Integrity of Governance of the European Group of Public Administration (EGPA). He has published in journals such as Public Integrity, Public Administration and Western European Politics. He earned his doctorate from the KU Leuven in 2004.

John A. Rohr is Professor of Public Administration at the Center for Public Administration and Policy in Virginia Tech’s School of Public and International Affairs in Blacksburg, VA, USA. In addition to his doctorate in political science from the University of Chicago, Rohr also holds graduate degrees in philosophy and theology from Loyola and Georgetown universities respectively. He has written and lectured extensively on the constitutional foundations of public administration and on ethical issues.
that confront the career civil servant. He is the author of seven books and over 100 articles and reviews. He has lectured at many universities and governmental institutions throughout the United States and in Belgium, Canada, the Czech Republic, France, Germany, Portugal and Thailand. Rohr is associate editor of the scholarly journal Administration and Society and a member of the editorial boards of The American Review of Public Administration, Public Integrity, Public Organization Review and The Political Science Reviewer. He received the American Society for Public Administration (ASPA)’s prestigious Dwight Waldo Award in 2002.

Frédérique E. Six is Senior Lecturer in the Department of Governance and Organisation at the VU University Amsterdam in the Netherlands. Her research interests are the management of integrity and trust within the public and private sector. She has published several articles, books and book chapters on these topics. She earned her PhD in management in 2004 from Erasmus University Rotterdam. Prior to her academic career she was a management consultant with McKinsey & Company and KPMG for 15 years.

Wouter Vandenabeele is a Researcher at the Public Management Institute, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven in Belgium. He is a member of the European Group of Public Administration (EGPA) and American Society for Public Administration (ASPA). His research interests are in the areas of public human resources management and public administration ethics. He has several scholarly publications, including book chapters and articles in local and international public administration journals. He is currently writing his doctoral thesis on public service motivation at the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven.

Eli van der Heide is Senior Policy Adviser at the Ministry of Education, Culture and Science in the Netherlands. He studied business economics (cum laude) and law at Erasmus University in Rotterdam. He specialized in the field of ethics and human resource management and has worked in this field at the Ministry of the Interior and Kingdom relations in the Netherlands. His research interests are in the areas of applied ethics, human resource management, organizational change, and the relationship between ethical theory and law.

Steven Van de Walle is a Lecturer in Public Management at the Institute of Local Government Studies, School of Public Policy, the University of Birmingham, UK. His research interests are in trust in government, citizens’ perception of bureaucrats and the public sector, comparative public

Jonathan P. West is Professor of Political Science and Director of the Graduate Public Administration programme at the University of Miami, Coral Gables, FL, USA. He is managing editor of Public Integrity. His research interests are in the areas of American politics, public policy, human resource management and ethics. He has over 100 scholarly publications, including books, articles and book chapters. He received his doctorate from Northwestern University and has taught at the University of Houston and the University of Arizona. He served as a management analyst for the US Office of the Surgeon General, Department of the Army.

Mark Wardman is a Senior Manager in the Audit Commission in the UK, where he has taken a close interest in governance and accountability in the public sector. He is the author of Audit Commission national study reports on corporate governance, public trust, individual choice in public services, and partnerships. In a predominantly research and policy-based career in both the public and private sectors, he has worked for the National Foundation for Educational Research, the London Borough of Sutton, MORI, and was Head of Policy at the National Lottery Charities Board. He has a Masters in Science in Organizational Behaviour from Birkbeck College, University of London, awarded in 1993.

Carole Wyser is a Research and Teaching Assistant at the Swiss Graduate School of Public Administration (IDHEAP). She is involved in a number of research and teaching projects on the post-civil service. Holder of a licence in sociology from the University of Geneva, she has collaborated on various research projects touching thanatology and the sociology of religions, notably through the Observatory of Religions in Switzerland (ORS). Her main research interests are related to the ethics and identity of public agents, the public service ethos, the rupture of the physiological contract, and motivation in the public service.