

Contributors

Mukul G. Asher

Mukul G. Asher is Professor at the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, National University of Singapore. He specializes in social security reforms in Asia, public finances in developing countries, and India's economic relations with the rest of Asia. He has published extensively in international journals, and has authored or edited more than ten books. He has been a consultant to multilateral organizations on tax reforms and pension issues in several countries. He is on the editorial advisory board of the International Social Security Review, and Consulting Editor for an online journal eSocialSciences. He has addressed many academic, professional and business gatherings around the world.

Sudeshna G. Banerjee

Sudeshna G. Banerjee is an economist in the Africa Finance, Private Sector, and Infrastructure Unit at the World Bank.

Jane Ebinger

Jane Ebinger is an energy specialist in the Eastern Europe and Central Asia Energy and Infrastructure Unit at the World Bank.

Ashima Goyal

Ashima Goyal is a professor at the Indira Gandhi Institute of Development Research, Mumbai, India. She has been a faculty member in the Delhi School of Economics and Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics, India, a visiting fellow at the Economic Growth Centre, Yale University, USA, and a Fulbright Senior Research Fellow at Claremont Graduate University, USA. Her research interests are in institutional macroeconomics, the open economy, international finance, development and governance. She is the author of numerous international and national publications, and a book on Developing Economy Macroeconomics. Her research has received national and international awards. She is also active in the Indian policy debate.

Neil Gunningham

Neil Gunningham is an interdisciplinary social scientist specializing in environmental law, policy and regulation. He is currently Professor in the Regulatory Institutions Network, Research School of Social Sciences, and in the School of Resources Environment and Society at the Australian National University. From 1991–2001 he was Foundation Director of the Australian Centre for Environmental Law also at the ANU. His recent books include: Shades of Green: Business, Regulation and Environment (with Robert Kagan and Dorothy Thornton), 2003; and Leaders and Laggards: Reconfiguring Environmental Regulation (with Darren Sinclair), 2002.

Anil Hira

Anil Hira is Associate Professor of Political Science and Latin American Studies at Simon Fraser University, Canada. He also has over ten years of policy-related experience. His main interests are international political economy, development, and industrial and technology policy. He has written two books, Ideas and Economic Policy in Latin America (1998), and Political Economy of the Southern Cone (2003), and co-authored two others, Development Projects for a New Millennium (2004, with Trevor Parfitt) and Outsourcing America (2005, with Ron Hira). Other recent publications include: ‘The FTAA as a Three Level Bargaining Game’, ‘Participation and Regulation: An International Survey’, ‘Regulatory Games States Play: Managing Globalization Through Sectoral Policy’, ‘Measuring International Electricity Integration: A Comparative Study of the power systems under the Nordic Countries, MERCOSUR, and NAFTA’, ‘The Distributional Politics of Dollarization: the Latin American Case’, ‘The Brave New World of International Education’, and ‘Does Energy Integrate?’. Hira has recently completed a manuscript comparing industrial policy in East Asia and Latin America.

Michael Howlett

Michael Howlett is the Professor and Burnaby Mountain Chair in the Department of Political Science at the Simon Fraser University, Canada. He specializes in public policy analysis, Canadian political economy, and Canadian resource and environmental policy. He is co-author of Studying Public Policy (2003, 1995), In Search of Sustainability (2001), The Political Economy of Canada (1999, 1992) and Canadian Natural Resource and Environmental Policy (1997, 2005). He has edited Canadian Forest Policy (2001) and coedited Executive Styles in Canada (2005); Designing Government (2005); The Real Worlds of Canadian Politics (2004); The Provincial State In Canada (1992 & 2000); Innovation Systems in a Global Context (1998); Policy Studies in Canada (1996), and The Puzzles of Power (1994, 1998). His articles have been published in numerous professional journals in Canada, the United States, Europe, Brazil, New Zealand and Australia. Dr Howlett is currently English Language Co-editor of the Canadian Journal of Political Science (2002–2006) and Encounters: Political Science in Translation, Book Review Editor of the Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis.

Irina Klytchnikova

Irina Klytchnikova is an economist in the Latin America and Caribbean Infrastructure Unit at the World Bank.

Julian A. Lampietti

Julian A. Lampietti is a Senior Economist working for the World Bank. He has written extensively on the poverty and social impacts of power sector reform in Europe and Central Asia. His research interests are in modelling household behaviour in response to policy conditionalities. Mr Lampietti has a Masters degree in environmental economics from Duke University and a PhD in Public Policy from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Amarendu Nandy

Amarendu Nandy is completing his Doctorate in Economics at the National University of Singapore. His core research interests are in issues relating to international migration, and social security reforms. He has published articles and book reviews in journals such as International Social Security Review, Policy and Society, ASEAN Economic Bulletin, and South Asia Economic Journal. He has also contributed chapters to several edited books.

Jon M. Peha

Jon M. Peha is Associate Director of the Center for Wireless and Broadband Networking at Carnegie Mellon University, and Professor of Electrical Engineering and Public Policy. He leads research on technical and policy issues of information and communications technology (ICT), including Internet, telephone, wireless, and e-commerce systems. Dr Peha actively consults for companies and government agencies around the world. He has previously launched a US Government programme to assist developing countries with their information infrastructure, and been Chief Technical Officer for several ICT companies. Dr Peha has also served on legislative staff in the US Congress, where he specialized in telecommunications and electronic commerce.

M. Ramesh

M. Ramesh is Associate Professor at the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, National University of Singapore. He is a leading expert on social policies in East and Southeast Asia. He is the author or co-author of Social Policies in East and Southeast Asia, Welfare Capitalism in Southeast Asia, Studying Public Policy and Canadian Political Economy. He has also published widely in senior refereed journals and is the Editor of the journal Policy and Society. His current research is on comparative political economy of the People's Republic of China, India, and Korea. Ramesh has held teaching or visiting appointments in Australia, Canada, Hong Kong, New Zealand, Norway and the USA. He currently teaches business and government, globalization and public policy and social policy.

Gevorg Sargsyan

Gevorg Sargsyan is Senior Infrastructure Specialist in the Eastern Europe and Central Asia Energy and Infrastructure Unit at the World Bank.

Maria Shkaratan

Maria Shkaratan is a consultant in the Eastern Europe and Central Asia Environmentally and Socially Sustainable Development Unit at the World Bank.

Lucas A. Skoufa

Lucas A. Skoufa has been with the University of Queensland Business School, Australia, since 1999. His area of research interest is concerned with the strategic behaviours of electricity generation firms in reformed electricity supply industries. Lucas's specific research interest is concerned with how generation firms can use generation technologies to create and maintain a competitive advantage. Lucas has undergraduate qualifications in mechanical engineering and business and was a Naval Officer and Power Station Engineer before doing the PhD. He is currently in the process of preparing his doctoral dissertation for publication as a book.

Priyambudi Sulistiyanto

Priyambudi Sulistiyanto is Assistant Professor at the Southeast Asian Studies Programme at the National University of Singapore. He is a political scientist and currently teaching Southeast Asia politics, religion and politics in Southeast Asia and Southeast Asian studies. His current research looks at the politics of reconciliation and forgiveness in post-Suharto Indonesia, local politics in Indonesia and the power sector reforms in Southeast Asia. His publications includes Thailand, Indonesia and Burma in Comparative Perspective (2002) and Regionalism in Post-Suharto Indonesia (with Maribeth Erb and Carole Faucher, 2005). His articles have also appeared in journals published in both English and Bahasa Indonesia.

Jessie L. Todoc

Jessie L. Todoc is a researcher and consultant in energy-environment policy, regulation, planning, and markets with ten years of international research and project management experience based in Thailand and four years of Philippine government experience. He has developed, managed, and researched on national and regional projects sponsored by the Asian Development Bank (ADB), Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC), various energy and environment programmes of the European Commission (EC), Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO), International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), International Energy Agency (IEA), New Energy and Industrial Development Organization (NEDO), United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (UNESCAP), and the World Bank. In the Philippines, he held responsible positions with the Energy Regulatory Board (ERB) and Department of Energy (DOE). His specific areas of project experience, research and publications are in power sector privatization, deregulation, and restructuring; regional and international co-operation on energy and environment; energy and sustainable development; coal and natural gas; power tariffs and pricing; and macroeconomic analysis and modelling. Mr Todoc has a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering, an International MBA, and attended graduate studies in industrial economics.

Katelijan Van den Berg

Katelijan Van den Berg is an environmental economist in the Eastern Europe and Central Asia Environmentally and Socially Sustainable Development Unit at the World Bank.

Xun Wu

Xun Wu is Assistant Professor at the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, National University of Singapore. His research focuses on the political economy of public policy reforms in developing countries. He has published in academic journals such as Governance, Energy Policy, Energy Economics, and Water Policy, as well as in edited volumes. His current research interests include electricity sector restructuring in Southeast Asia, corporate governance and corruption, health policy reforms in Asia, and conflict resolution in international river basins. He has consulted for various international organizations such as the World Bank and the International Vaccine Institute. He teaches environmental policy, natural resource management, policy research methods, policy evaluation, and cost-benefit analysis.