

Tables

---

1.1	The dynamic capabilities framework	12
1.2	Measuring the potential rent	23
2.1	Innovative firms and incubators	48
3.1	Cases by country and size	72
3.2	Cases by country and industry type	73
3.3	Perceptions of the national innovation system	79
3.4	Age and gender profile of respondent manager	81
3.5	Types of innovation successfully commercialised by the firms	92
3.6	RENT configuration by types of innovation for firms	97
4.1	Belgium's macro-economic performance	118
4.2	Number of enterprises by size class, Belgium, 1999–2007	119
4.3	Employment by firm size, Belgium, 1996–2007	120
4.4	Added value by firm size, Belgium, 1996–2005	121
4.5	Apparent labour productivity, Belgium, 1996–2005	122
4.6	Turnover by firm size, Belgium, 1996–2005	123
4.7	Investments by firm size, Belgium, 1998–2005	125
4.8	Total R&D expenditure, Belgium, 2000–2006	126
4.9	Enterprises with innovation activities by firm size, Belgium, 2004	127
4.10	Intramural R&D expenditure by firm size, Belgium, 2002–2006	127
4.11	Flemish government-funded organizations in design and creativity related matters, Flanders (2007)	131
4.12	Core creative and cultural sector in Flanders and Brussels, 1995–2003	134
4.13	Annual growth of core creative and cultural sector in Flanders and Brussels, compared to the total Belgian economy, 1995–2003	135
4.14	Core creative sector in Flanders and Brussels, 2003	135
4.15	Apparent labour productivity of the core creative sectors in Flanders, compared with the total Belgian economy, 2003	136
4.16	Distribution of Belgian sample by activity	138
4.17	Summary statistics Belgian sample (N = 51)	138
4.18	RENT profiles for Belgian innovative firms (N = 49)	140
4.19	Innovation climate in Flanders: overview of findings 1	142
4.20	Innovation climate in Flanders: overview of findings 2	144
4.21	Summary of Belgian cases	145
5.1	Influence on strategic decision making – New Zealand firms	162

5.2	Value of linkages to lead customers and key suppliers	162
5.3	Potential RENT configurations – New Zealand firms	163
5.4	Innovation generation sources – New Zealand firms	164
5.5	Perceptions of the New Zealand context for innovation	165
5.6	Innovation process scores by RENT potential	168
6.1	Eight RENT profiles	178
6.2	Overview of the Italian firms participating in the study	180
6.3	Collaborative context, recent innovation history and innovation type, Italian firms	181
6.4	Influences on innovation success and failure	183
6.5	Generation of innovation	184
6.6	IDD indexes, innovation RENT profile and likelihood of go ahead	185
6.7	Innovation generation and RENT profile	186
8.1	Measures of potential RENT	224
8.2	Technology assistance received by the SMEs: US sample	229
8.3	RENT configuration results – USA sample	232
8.4	IDD results ranked by firm age – USA sample	232
8.5	Local versus national innovation climate results – USA sample	233
9.1	The model of RENT configurations	242
9.2	SME export and R&D activities by size of business	245
9.3	Descriptive statistics for the Canadian firms	246
9.4	Influence of different factors on an innovation's success or failure	249
9.5	Value of different linkages to customers and suppliers	250
9.6	Generation of new innovations	252
9.7	Distribution of RENT configurations – Canadian sample	253
9.8	Market or novelty impact of the new innovations	253
9.9	Technological base of the new innovations	254
9.10	Statistics for the four IDD indices	255
9.11	Mean IDD associated with RENT configurations	256
9.12	Attitudes to innovation	257
9.13	Number of past innovations for three types of firm	261
9.14	Statistics for the three qualitative cases	265
9.15	RENT configuration for MCF's new innovation: Shrimp	267
9.16	RENT configuration for IIT's new innovation: Champion	270
9.17	RENT configuration for SIB's new innovation: Champion	273
10.1	Overview of the Swiss sample according to the RENT profile	283
10.2	Overview of the three Swiss case study firms	284
11.1	Perceptions of the innovation climate in Australia	308
11.2	Comparison of the four firms' innovation management	321
12.1	Historical development of the French NIS	337
12.2	Main barriers to innovation perceived by French SMEs	345
12.3	The IDD market and innovation indices by R&D intensity	354
12.4	The RENT configuration and IDD scores of the French cases	355