Contributors

Fiorenza Belussi, Professor of Business Economics at Padua University. She has undertaken major international research on the issue of industrial districts, clusters, creative networks, learning regions and local systems in Europe and in the Eastern countries. She has recently co-edited The Evolutionary Patterns of Local Production Systems (2000) and Technological Evolution of Industrial Districts (2003). Author of numerous articles and papers concerning the economics of innovation and creativity in small firms, emergence of business networks, and organizational restructuring of service sectors and creative industries.

Rafael Boix, Associate Professor of Applied Economics and Director of the Research Group on Urban Economics, Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona. Adviser and reports to the City Hall of Barcelona, Spanish Department of Industry and OECD. Recent publications: Knowledge, networks of cities and growth in regional urban systems (PiRS, with Joan Trullén) and Barcelona ciudad del conocimiento (Ajuntament de Barcelona, 2006).

Tommaso Cinti, PhD in Economics and Management of Enterprises and Local Systems, is actually Research Fellow and Lecturer of Economics and Management of Enterprises in the Faculty of Economics of the University of Florence. He recently published a book in Italian: Museums and Territory. Relationship Dynamics in the Museum Cluster of Florence (Carocci, 2007). His research interests deal with cultural cluster, cultural districts and local development.
Philip Cooke, Professor of Regional Development and Director, Centre for Advanced Studies, Cardiff University. Activities in 2006: adviser to the European Union (EU), the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and the United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO), wrote reports for each. Partner in CESAGen, the UK Genomics Policy Research Centre (at Cardiff). In 2006 reported to Germany’s Science Ministry (BMBF). Adjunct Professor at University of Aalborg. Awarded Honorary PhD, Lund University 2006. Recently published two regional development books: Clusters & Regional Development and Regional Development in the Knowledge Economy (both Routledge, 2006).

Pedro Costa, Auxiliar Professor of Economics at Instituto Superior de Ciências do Trabalho e da Empresa/University Institute of Social Sciences and Business Studies (ISCTE), Lisbon, and Researcher and Vice-President of Dinâmia (Research Centre on Socioeconomic Change). PhD in Urban and Regional Planning. He has been teaching and researching mainly in the fields of territorial economics, cultural economics and urban/regional development policies. Recent work includes policy-oriented research projects to public authorities on the issues of creative cities and cultural policies.

Olivier Crevoisier, Director of Research of the Group for Territorial Economy (GRET) at the Institute of Sociology, University of Neuchâtel (Switzerland) and a member of the European Research Group on Innovative Milieus (GREMI). Recent publication: ‘Circulation of Competencies and Dynamics of Regional Production Systems’ (with A. Berset) in International Journal on Multicultural Societies, 2006.

Tiziana Cuccia, Associate Professor of Economic Policy at the Department of Economics and Quantitative Methods of the University of Catania, Italy. Her scientific interests are in cultural economics, local development, and contingent valuation methods. Her publications include articles in the Journal of Cultural Economics and in Applied Economics, along with contributions in books published by Edward Elgar.

Lars Frederiksen, Research Associate, Innovation Studies Centre, Tanaka Business School, Imperial College, London. Research interests: ‘open’ business models ranging from innovation in inter-firm project ecologies to online user communities, and management and organizational issues related to the processes of distributed innovation. Empirical research interests: music, film, software industries and utilities as water and energy provision. Recent publications in Organization Science and European Management Review.

Hing Ai Yun, Associate Professor, Department of Sociology, National University of Singapore. Has worked with the International Labour Organization (ILO) and the Asian Productivity Organization on social dimensions of productivity and restructuring in banking and manufacturing. Recent publications include international journal articles on the family and industrial development, and subjectivity and the new industrial regime in Singapore.

Laura Hypponen, Research Associate at Birmingham Business School, UK. A graduate of the European Film College in Denmark and the Bachelor of Commerce programme in the Birmingham Business School, Laura’s dissertation about competitiveness in the film industry won the School’s prize for the best extended essay upon her graduation. Laura has worked in various positions in the independent production sector of the UK film industry as well as producing her own short fiction projects. She is currently studying at the Film Business Academy’s pilot MSc course in Cass Business School, London.

Mark Lorenzen is Associate Professor at the Department of Industrial Economics and Strategy, Copenhagen Business School. In his research, Mark focuses upon economic organization of the market in, for example, networks, projects and clusters, currently within the cultural industries. Mark is director of the Imagine Creative Industries Research centre, member of the executive committee of the Danish Research Unit on Industrial Dynamics (DRUID), and executive editor of Industry and Innovation.

Massimo Marrelli, Professor of Public Economics, Department of Economics, President of the School of Humanities and Social Science, University ‘Federico II’, Naples, Italy. Research interest: economics of culture, mechanism design, and economics of regulation. He recently edited the volume Public Decision Making and Asymmetric Information (Kluwer, 2004) and other numerous articles in international journals and books.

Luís Palma Martos, Professor in Economics and History of Economic Thought of the University of Sevilla (Spain). Fields of research: cultural economics; welfare economics and public policy; industrial economics; European studies. Visiting scholar at Northwestern University. Visiting professor in various universities in Europe and Latin America.

Maria Luisa Palma Martos, PhD in Economics, Associate Professor of Microeconomics and Cultural Economics, Department of Economic Theory and Political Economy, Faculty of Economics and Business, Seville University.

Walter Santagata, Professor of Public Economics, Department of Economics, University of Turin, Italy, Director of the EBLA (Economia dei Beni culturali, della Legge e delle Attività creative) Center (International Center for Research on the Economics of Culture, Institutions and Creativity), Director of the Master programme ‘Cultural Projects for Development’, International Training Centre-International Labour Organization (ITC-ILO), Adviser to United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO). Recent publications: La Mode. Une économie de la Créativité et du patrimoine (La Documentation Française, 2005) and ‘Cultural districts and their role in economic development’, in V. Ginsbour and D. Throsby (eds), Handbook on the Economics of Art and Culture (North Holland, 2006).

Silvia Rita Sedita, PhD in Economics and Management of Enterprises and Local Systems, currently Assistant Professor of Economics and Management of Enterprises, Faculty of Political Science, Padua University. Main research interests: industrial districts, clusters, creative networks, communities of practice and inter-organizational learning. She recently published two DRUID working papers on the issue of firms’ competitiveness and knowledge transfer in the music industry.

Richard Smith, Associate Professor in the School of Communication at Simon Fraser University (SFU), Vancouver, Canada. He is also director of the Centre for Policy Research on Science and Technology (CPROST) at SFU. Smith’s research focus is social inclusion/exclusion and new media. Recent publication: Mobile and Wireless Communication (with G. Gow) (Open University Press, 2006).

Joan Trullén, Professor of Applied Economics, Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona and Secretary General of Industry of Spain. Former Knowledge-city Commissioner, City Hall of Barcelona. Recent publications: Knowledge, Networks of Cities and Growth in Regional Urban Systems (with Rafael Boix, PiRS) and Desarrollo local: teorías y estrategias (with G. Becattini and M.T. Costa, Civitas, 2002).

Katie Warfield, Media and Cultural Studies Theory Lecturer in the Department of Journalism at Kwantlen University College, Richmond, BC. Current research grants include media values and journalistic cultures in education and practice, and Canadian pop culture studies. Prior research associate with the Centre for Excellence on Culture and Communities at the Creative Cities Network Canada.