About the authors

Professor Shujie Yao is Professor of Economics and Chinese Sustainable Development; Head of the School of Contemporary Chinese Studies, University of Nottingham; Co-ordinator of the China and the World Economy Programme in the Leverhulme Centre of Globalisation and Economic Policy (GEP), School of Economics, University of Nottingham; and Special Chair Professor of Economics, Xi'an Jiaotong University. He was previously a research fellow of the University of Oxford, Professor of Development Economics of the University of Portsmouth, and Professor and Head of Economics at the University of Middlesex. He worked as an economic consultant in many African, Asian and Eastern European countries for the World Bank, European Union, Asian Development Bank, Department for International Development (UK), the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations and other international organisations. He has published extensively on the Chinese economy and other less developed countries, including six other books and edited volumes, as well as many refereed journal articles. Some of his recent articles appear in the Journal of Political Economy, Economic Development and Cultural Change, Journal of Development Studies, Journal of Comparative Economics, Economics of Transition, China Economic Review, Applied Economics, Regional Studies, World Economy, Food Policy, Journal of Agricultural Economics, China Quarterly, and Review of Development Economics, among others. He is international editor of Food Policy, an editorial board member of Journal of Comparative Economics, Journal of Contemporary China, and Journal of Cambridge Studies, and founding editor of Journal of Chinese Economic and Business Studies. In China, he is chief editor of the Economics Section of the Social Sciences Journal of Xi'an Jiaotong University and editorial member of Modern Chinese Economy and Fudan Economics Papers. His current research is on economic growth, foreign direct investments, financial sector reforms, agricultural and rural development, income inequality and poverty.

Dr Zhongwei Han is currently deputy general manager and secretary to the board of directors of Metersbonwe, a large and listed private company on Shanghai Stock Exchange. He was formally lecturer of economics at the University of Middlesex. He has published a number of articles in high-rank journals such as China Economic Review and Economic Research (Chinese). He obtained his PhD degree from the University of Middlesex and MA degree from the University of Nottingham.

Dr Dan Luo obtained her PhD and MA degrees from the University of Nottingham. She has published a few journal articles in the World Economy, Journal of Contemporary China and Journal of Xi'an Jiaotong University (Social Science in Chinese).