

Contributors

Bas Arts is Professor and Chairman of the Forest and Nature Conservation Policy Group at Wageningen University in the Netherlands. He is also Visiting Professor at the Europe College in Bruges, Belgium. His current professional focus is on new modes of governance in global environmental politics (mainly regarding biodiversity, forests and climate change).

James E. Austin is the Eliot I. Snider and Family Professor of Business Administration, Emeritus at the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration. He was the Co-founder and Chairman of the Harvard Business School's Social Enterprise Initiative and a Co-founder of the Social Enterprise Knowledge Network.

Frank Biermann is Professor of Political Science and Professor of Environmental Policy Sciences at the Vrije Universiteit (Free University) Amsterdam, the Netherlands. He is Head of the Department of Environmental Policy Analysis at the university's Institute for Environmental Studies, and Director of the Global Governance Project, a joint research program of ten leading European institutes.

Derick W. Brinkerhoff is Senior Fellow in International Public Management with RTI International (Research Triangle Institute), and has a faculty associate appointment at The George Washington University's School of Public Policy and Public Administration.

Jennifer M. Brinkerhoff is Associate Professor of Public Administration and International Affairs at The George Washington University in the United States. She is Co-founder of GWU's multidisciplinary research program on NGOs, and Director of GWU's Diaspora Program (a research program on diasporas, policy and development).

Man-san Chan is a PhD researcher with the Department of Environmental Policy Analysis of the Institute for Environmental Studies, Vrije Universiteit (Free University) Amsterdam, the Netherlands. He is a political scientist specializing in transnational environmental governance. His doctoral research is part of the PARTNERS research project on the emergence, effectiveness and legitimacy of transnational public policy networks.

Pieter Glasbergen is Professor of Environmental Studies, Policy and Management at Utrecht University and the Dutch Open University. He chairs the research programme Governance for Sustainable Development at Utrecht University and the Utrecht-Nijmegen programme on partnerships (www.unpop.nl).

Barbara Gray is Professor of Organizational Behavior in the Management and Organization Department and Director of the Center for Research on Conflict and Negotiation at the Pennsylvania State University. She is also a trained mediator.

Neil Gunningham is Professor in the Regulatory Institutions Network and the Fenner School of Environment and Society at the Australian National University. He is an interdisciplinary social scientist working primarily in the areas of environmental regulation and policy.

Sanjeev Khagram is Professor and Faculty Director of the Lindenberg Center for Humanitarian Action, International Development and Global Citizenship at the Evans School of Public Affairs, University of Washington, and Co-Lead Steward of Global Action Network-Net (GAN-Net: www.gan-net.net).

James Meadowcroft is Professor in the School of Public Policy and Administration and in the Department of Political Science at Carleton University in Ottawa. He holds a Canada Research Chair in Governance for Sustainable Development.

Ayşem Mert is a PhD researcher with the Department of Environmental Policy Analysis of the Institute for Environmental Studies, Vrije Universiteit (Free University) Amsterdam, the Netherlands. She is a political scientist specializing in transnational environmental governance, with a particular focus on transnational public policy networks, their discourses and emergence, as part of the PARTNERS research project at Vrije Universiteit.

Arthur P.J. Mol is Chairman and Professor in Environmental Policy at the Department of Social Sciences, Wageningen University, the Netherlands. His main fields of interest and publication are in environmental governance, social theory and the environment, globalization, informational governance and Asian transitional economies.

Philipp Pattberg, PhD, is a researcher and project leader with the Department of Environmental Policy Analysis of the Institute for Environmental Studies, Vrije Universiteit (Free University) Amsterdam, the Netherlands. He is also the Research Coordinator of the Global Governance Project (glogov.org), a joint research program of ten leading European institutes.

Ingrid J. Visseren-Hamakers is researcher at the Copernicus Institute for Sustainable Development and Innovation at Utrecht University, the Netherlands, and participates in the Utrecht-Nijmegen programme on partnerships (www.unpop.nl).

Steve Waddell is Co-Lead Steward of Global Action Network-Net (GAN-Net: www.gan-net.net). He focuses upon development of multi-stakeholder global issue networks.