Contributors

Jeff Bennett is Professor in the Crawford School of Economics and Government at The Australian National University and is Director of the Environmental Management and Development Program there. Jeff is widely published in environmental, natural resource and agricultural economics and is an internationally recognized leader in the fields of environmental valuation.

Lei Zhang is Professor and Director-General of the China National Forestry Economics and Development Research Center. Lei Zhang is well published in forestry policy and legislation, and is a nationally recognized leader in Chinese forestry policy study, especially in forestry legislation.

Yangwen Jia is Professor in the China Institute of Water Resources and Hydro-power Research and is General Engineer of the Department of Water Resources at the institute. Yangwen Jia is widely published in distributed hydrological models and water resources assessment and is an internationally recognized leader in the fields of distributed hydrological models.

Guangcui Dai is a senior researcher and Deputy Director-General of the China National Forestry Economics and Development Research Center. She has been engaged in researching and consulting in forest resource and environmental economics and related policies, especially in the field of forest economics and environmental accounting and valuation.

Chen Xie is a senior researcher and Division Director of the China National Forestry Economics and Development Research Center. Chen Xie specializes in rural forestry development, forestry policy assessment and monitoring, and natural resources economics.

Xuehong Wang is currently Post-doctoral Fellow in the Crawford School of Economics and Government at The Australian National University. Her research interests focus on non-market valuation, market-based instruments and institutional analysis of environmental and natural resource management. Previously she had worked at the Chinese State Forestry Administration on issues relating to international environmental agreements and conventions.
Contributors

Jincheng Zhao is an assistant research fellow at the China National Forestry Economics and Development Research Center. His research fields involve natural resource and environmental valuation, and agricultural and forestry policy assessment. He has participated in many international cooperative projects with foreign governments such as Belgium and with organizations such as the Australian Centre for International Agricultural Research (ACIAR), Ford Foundation, Forest Trends and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO).

Dan Liang is a research assistant at the China National Forestry Economics and Development Research Center and is currently a PhD student in the Environmental Policy Group at Wageningen University in the Netherlands. Dan Liang devotes himself to natural resource economics and environmental governance.

Zhitao Zhang is an assistant research fellow at the China National Forestry Economics and Development Research Center and has a particular research interest in natural resource economics.

Li Jiang is an assistant research fellow at the China National Forestry Economics and Development Research Center. His research interest is focused on natural resource economics.

Yongwei Liang is an assistant research fellow at the China National Forestry Economics and Development Research Center. Yongwei Liang’s research interest focuses on natural resource economics.

Zuhao Zhou is a senior engineer at the China Institute of Water Resources and Hydropower Research. Zuhao Zhou is published in distributed hydrological models, water resources assessment and water resources planning and is well recognized in those fields.

Yaqin Qiu is an engineer at the China Institute of Water Resources and Hydropower Research. Yaqin Qiu is published in water resources assessment and distributed hydrological models and is well recognized in the fields of water resources assessment.

Hongyun Han is Professor in the School of Management at Zhejiang University and the Center for Agricultural and Rural Development in China. Hongyun is widely published in environmental, natural resource and agricultural economics and is an internationally recognized researcher in the fields of natural resource and environmental management.