Acknowledgments

The editors of this volume are greatly indebted to many individuals and institutions for their support and encouragement. This volume is one of the outcomes of the multidisciplinary peace research program of International Christian University in Tokyo, Japan.

The university received a research grant from the 21st Century Center of Excellence (COE) Program of the Japanese Ministry of Education and Science under the title “Research and Education for Peace, Security, and Kyosei (Conviviality)”. The goal of this program is to develop the field of “comprehensive peace studies” and to serve as a center of excellence or hub for peace studies and education in Japan and East Asia, as well as throughout the world.

The editors of this volume would like to express their deepest gratitude to International Christian University, Tokyo – and especially to former university president Masakichi Kinukawa and current university president Norihiko Suzuki. They have provided continuous support and leadership for the university’s COE program.

One project sponsored by the COE program was a series of COE international symposia and public lectures on a grand theory of peace held between 2003 and 2007. These occasions facilitated the authors of this volume to prepare the papers and presentations that have become the chapters in this book. The editors are deeply grateful to the authors of the chapters for their willing cooperation and commitment to our book project. Furthermore, we would like to extend our heartfelt thanks to Alice Davenport, Ernst Schwintzer, and Patricia Cohn, who assisted in the English editing with their marvelous expertise. Finally, the editors would like to thank Edward Elgar Publishing Company and editors Tara Gorvine and David Fairclough for their generosity and superb editorial work. Without these precious helping hands and the goodwill of these individuals, this book would never have been published.

Moreover, the editors would like to acknowledge and thank Kinhide Mushakoji and Philip West for their permission to reprint here, as Chapters 6 and 8, respectively, from the following articles: Kinhide Mushakoji, “Peace Studies and Peace Politics: Multicultural Common Security in North-South Conflict Situations”, in Handbook of Peace and Conflict Studies, ed. Charles Webel and Johan Galtung (London and New York: Routledge, 2007), pp. 86–93; and Philip West, “Mapping the Sorrows of War”, Journal of Social Sciences, ICU COE Special Edition, No. 60 (March 2007), pp. 5–42. We are deeply grateful to them for their cooperation and moral support.

Last but not least, we would like to acknowledge our sincere thanks to the following four Japanese artists for allowing us to reprint their works of art for Chapter 8:

Kiyoshi Sato, “Shiroi zetsubo no michi” [Road of White Desperation], 1985.
Taeko Tomiyama, “At the Bottom of the Pacific”, in Silenced by History, (Tokyo: Gendai Kikakushitsu, 1995), p. 44.
