Figures

3.1 Comparison of R&D investment patterns in EU-based corporations and non-EU firms 45
3.2 The transformation of a medium-tech industry: the case of automobiles 48
3.3 Layered model of innovation and standard-setting in collaborative partnership in the PROFIBUS/PROFINET case 55
3.4 Organizational form and the transnational network for a standard-setting partnership 57
5.1 Survey/overview of important innovation stages and their typology 86
6.1 Innovation networks 105
6.2 Layers of innovation networks 106
9.1 The service model of Edvardsson et al., redrawn 163
9.2 A model of service strategies in manufacturing 167
10.1 Low-, medium- and high-tech firms by sector and firm size 179
10.2 Capital and labour productivity of low-, medium- and high-tech firms by firm size 181
10.3 Type of product-related services offered by low-, medium- and high-tech firms 183
10.4 Share of product and service innovations among low-, medium- and high-tech firms 185
10.5 Turnover with sales of product-related services (introduced within the last three years versus offered for longer than three years) by firm size and R&D intensity 187
10.6 Share of turnover with product-related services (directly and indirectly accounted) by firm size and R&D intensity 189
12.1 Dynamic complementarities between low- and high-tech industries (as a function of traded and untraded interdependencies) 226
13.1 Total R&D investment of the top 100 Chinese ICT firms 251
13.2 Total sales revenue of the top 100 Chinese ICT firms over 19 years 252