Acknowledgements

I would particularly like to thank the following direct or indirect contributors to the existence of this book project.

First, the contributors to the chapters themselves, for their chapters, the flesh and bones of the present book, and for the trust that they showed throughout this project, as well as those among the contributors who acted as voluntary reviewers during the first reviewing round: Anne-Françoise Bender, Annie Cornet, Iris Koall, Jacqueline Laufer and Waheeda Lillevik. Thanks to their participation, each first draft has benefited from three different reviewers.

The Academy of Management Gender and Diversity in Organizations (GDO) division comes into play. I would like here to give special thanks to Myrtle Bell, then President of the GDO, for opening so widely and welcomingly the door of GDO division to the newcomer to the Academy I then – August 2007 – was. I thus felt truly ‘included’ and encouraged to engage in collaboration with existing GDO members. The Academy of Management meetings in 2007 and 2008 provided ideal forums where the first contacts were made and where later discussions, at more advanced stages of the project, also furthered the advancement of this project, in the form of an international symposium.

Francine O’Sullivan, senior commissioning editor, Edward Elgar Publishing, beyond formally accepting this project, has been a firm supporter of this book throughout its period by her many suggestions and timely sending of advice or instructions, answering my many queries and those of the authors involved in the book project.

I also want to mention in particular the contributors to this book who supported the idea from its inception. I especially want to thank Rana Haq, Iris Koall, Mustafa Özbilgin and Jawad Syed, who reacted to this project by showing both enthusiasm and support at our first meeting in August 2007 in Philadelphia, and gave me the initial confidence that the whole project was worth delivering.

I am grateful to the Academy of Management International Theme Committee for their support, too. The Best International Symposium Award has been awarded to the symposium based on the present book’s work-in-progress in August 2008 at the Annual Conference of the Academy of Management in Anaheim, California. This clearly signalled a strong interest from the academic community and motivated both the publisher and all participants to carry through the work towards the achievement of this book.
