This volume has drawn upon contributions from over fifty authors. First and foremost we would like to express our deep gratitude to these authors for responding so enthusiastically to our request for a contribution. Writing a short summary of one of the major figures or diagrams used regularly by economists is not a straightforward task, especially when all communication is electronic, but they all addressed it willingly and with great skill.

We are most grateful to others who assisted with the preparation of the manuscripts in various ways. The colleague of one of us at the University of Melbourne, Robert Dixon, helped us at short notice in converting some of the files sent to us into Word and in drawing some of the diagrams and giving other technical assistance. Without this assistance, the project would have languished. Puja Devi Slesha from the University of Melbourne also redrew some of the diagrams.

At Edward Elgar the project was supported wholeheartedly from the outset by Edward Elgar. We received prompt and courteous assistance from Alexandra O'Connell, Nep Elverd, Kate Pearce, Sylvia Potter and Margaret McCormack and other staff in sub-editing, preparing and handling the manuscript.

Every effort has been made to trace all the copyright holders but if any have been inadvertently overlooked the publishers will be pleased to make the necessary arrangements at the first opportunity.
