

Contributors

Robert Agranoff is Professor Emeritus, School of Public and Environmental Affairs, Indiana University-Bloomington, USA. He is also affiliated with the Instituto Universitario Ortega y Gasset in Madrid, Spain and the Center for Governance and Public Management, ESADE Business School in Barcelona, Spain. His latest works include Managing Within Networks (2007) and Local Governments and their Intergovernmental Networks in Federalizing Spain (2010).

Chung-Lae Cho is Assistant Professor in the Department of Public Administration at Ewha Womans University, Seoul, South Korea. His research and teaching interests include intergovernmental relations, local governance, applied statistics and research methods. He has published articles in Public Administration Review, Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory, Publius, and other journals. He received his BA and MA degrees from Korea University and PhD degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Michael Farrelly is a Research Fellow at the Open University, UK, and was previously at the Institute of Local Government Studies at the University of Birmingham. His research applies critical discourse analysis to problems of governance.

Adrienne Héritier holds a Joint Chair of Political Science in the Department of Political and Social Science and the Robert-Schuman-Center for Advanced Studies at the European University Institute in Florence, Italy. Her research and publications extend to theories of institutional change, institutional change in the European Union, comparative public policy, European policy-making, Europeanization, regulation and new modes of governance.

Marc Holzer is Chair of the Rutgers Graduate Department of Public Administration on the Newark NJ, USA campus, and the Rutgers Board of Governors Professor in Public Administration. He has earned national and international recognition for his scholarly research on ways that governments can improve their performance. He is Director of the National Center for Public Productivity, and the Founder and Editor-in-Chief of Public Performance and Management Review and of Chinese Public Administration Review.

Stephen Jeffares is RCUK Research Fellow, School of Government and Society, University of Birmingham, UK. His research analyses the role of discourse in the governance of cities, and he is particularly interested in the application of Q Methodology in interpretive research design.

Andrew Massey holds a Chair in Politics in the Department of Politics, University of Exeter, UK. He has published widely on the reform of national and global governance and governments, exploring the dynamics to change and the institutional reforms that result. He is Co-Chair of the European Group for Public Administration Permanent Study Group on EU Administration and Multi-Level Governance with Edoardo Ongaro and Michael Bauer.

Edoardo Ongaro is Professor of Public Management at SDA Bocconi School of Management, and Main Instructor of the course of Management of International and Supranational Organizations at Bocconi University. He is Chair of the European Group for Public Administration Permanent Study Group on EU Administration and Multi-Level Governance, and previously served as Chair of the Study Group on Intergovernmental Relations. His research interests include the management and governance of EU institutions, the comparative analysis of public management reform in European countries, and their interconnections in the frame of the European Administrative Space.

Simona Piattoni is Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Trento, Italy, where she teaches comparative politics, local government and European politics at the graduate and undergraduate levels. Her latest book, The Theory of Multi-Level Governance: Conceptual, Empirical, and Normative Challenges, was published by Oxford University Press in 2010.

Alberta M. Sbragia is the Jean Monnet Chair ad personam and the Mark A. Nordenberg University Chair, as well as the Director of the European Union Center of Excellence and the European Studies Center at the University of Pittsburgh, USA. Her research interests include comparative federalism, European Union politics, and comparative regionalism.

Chris Skelcher is Professor of Public Governance at Institute of Local Government Studies, University of Birmingham, UK. His research examines the democratic performance and consequences of new forms of governance in comparative perspective. His most recent book is Managing to Improve Public Services, published by Cambridge University Press, with Hartley, Donaldson and Wallace.

Carl W. Stenberg III is Professor of Public Administration and Government at the School of Government, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, USA and Director of the Master of Public Administration Program. Formerly, he served as Executive Director of the Council of State Governments and Assistant Director of the US Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. Stenberg's research interests include block grants, regionalism, and intergovernmental management. He is past national President of the American Society for Public Administration (ASPA) and former Chair of the Board of Directors of the National Academy of Public Administration (NAPA).

Theo A.J. Toonen has been Dean of the Faculty Technology, Policy and Management of Delft University of Technology, the Netherlands, since 1 March 2008. He is Chair in Institutional Governance and Public Administration at Delft University of Technology and has a co-appointment at Leiden University. He was Dean of the Faculty of Social and Behavioural Sciences of Leiden University from January 2003–January 2008.

Ellen Wayenberg is Assistant-Professor at University College Ghent and Ghent University, Belgium. She specializes in public administration with a specific interest for intergovernmental relations (IGR). She was one of the Co-Chairs of the European Group on Public Administration Study Group on IGR and is a member of the Flemish Advisory Council of Internal Affairs (VLABEST).

Deil S. Wright was Alumni Distinguished Professor Emeritus of Political Science and Public Administration, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, USA. He authored or coauthored over 100 articles, and his text Understanding Intergovernmental Relations helped define the field in the 1970s and 1980s. Wright's recognitions include the Mosher, Waldo, and Rita Mae Kelly awards from the American Society for Public Administration (ASPA), and he was elected Fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration (NAPA) in 1975. Wright passed away on 30 June 2009.