Acknowledgements

I wrote the main parts of this book during my stay as a Max Weber Fellow at the European University Institute in Florence in the academic year 2007/2008. I can hardly imagine better conditions for writing a book than those I found in the Institute. I am especially grateful to professors Wojciech Sadurski and Giovanni Sartor from the Institute for their very generous help and support. Furthermore, I would like to thank professor Sadurski for his insightful remarks on Hayek’s philosophy he made during my presentation at the Institute of the main ideas of Chapter 2, and professor Sartor for his very valuable comments on Chapters 2 and 3.

I would also like to thank professors Jerzy Stelmach and Tomasz Gizbert-Studnicki from the Chair for Philosophy of Law and Legal Ethics at the Faculty of Law of the Jagiellonian University in Krakow, where I have the privilege to work, for introducing me to the field of legal philosophy and for creating in the Chair excellent conditions for developing my scientific interests.

My special thanks are due to Bartosz Brożek – my indefatigable companion of philosophical discussions, during which we spoke about many issues addressed in this book.

I am indebted to Bart Du Laing and Ofer Raban, who read the whole manuscript and provided me with very valuable feedback.

Last but not least, my most cordial thanks go to my parents and to İrem Aki for, among many other things, giving me the strength to write this book.
