

Tables and boxes

---

TABLES

1.1	American Society of Civil Engineers Infrastructure Report Card 2013	4
2.1	Classifications of infrastructure	21
2.2	Classification of infrastructure by type	22
2.3	Investment in Australia, 2005–06 ($ billion)	27
2.4	Categorization of goods based on rivalrousness of consumption and excludability	29
4.1	Some failed PPP road infrastructure projects in Australia, 2005–13	104
5.1	Options for private participations in hospitals	129
5.2	Range of partnership models	136
6.1	Risk matrix for public sector–private sector infrastructure investments	153
6.2	Revised beta calculations	165
7.1	Construct only: benefits and disadvantages	180
7.2	Design and construct: benefits and disadvantages	182
7.3	Design, construct and novate: benefits and disadvantages	186
7.4	Construction management: benefits and disadvantages	188
7.5	Managing contractor: benefits and disadvantages	190
7.6	Alliance (single (TOC): benefits and disadvantages	193
7.7	Competitive alliance: benefits and disadvantages	195
7.8	ECI: benefits and disadvantages	198
7.9	DBOM: benefits and disadvantages	200
7.10	DBF: benefits and disadvantages	202
7.11	DBFM and DBFO: benefits and disadvantages	205
8.1	Bundled and unbundled procurement models	213
8.2	An assessment of procurement models	223
8.3	Business models of desalination plants in Australia	226
9.1	Differences between actual and estimated costs in large public works transport projects	231
9.2	Estimates of average ‘optimism bias’ for conventional public procurement in the UK, by type of projects	232

9.3	PPP megaprojects, 2001–16, classified by sector	234
10.1	Sources of Crossrail funding	285
10.2	Average annual road bill in Australia, per vehicle	294

BOXES

1.1	The ‘alphabet soup’ of infrastructure public–private business models	13
3.1	Stages on the road to driverless cars	71
6.1	Dispute resolution techniques	170