

Acknowledgements

There are many who helped me, in one way or another, in the writing of this book and they all deserve my thanks.

I am greatly indebted to Andrea Comba, Giorgio Sacerdoti and Dominique Carreau, who sparked my interest in international economic law. I am also immensely grateful to Edoardo Greppi, for his precious guidance, and Ornella Porchia, Michele Vellano, Giuseppe Porro and Silvia Cantoni, who have been supportive over the years.

Special thanks go to François Gianviti, Sean Hagan and the other members of the IMF Legal Department, as well as to Chiara Zilioli, Iñigo Arruga Oleaga and their colleagues at the ECB Legal Department, who always answered my questions with extreme patience and dedication. I will always remember Tommaso Padoa-Schioppa, who provided me with invaluable inputs.

Fundamental was the European University Institute, which has broadened my horizons, giving me the opportunity to meet inspiring people and outstanding scholars. Matteo Ortino, Paolo Paesani, Michele d'Alessandro and Roberto Cisotta contributed with very helpful suggestions and comments.

I could not have wished for better colleagues than Francesco Costamagna, Claudio Mandrino, Monica Mattone, Lorenza Mola, Alberto Oddenino, Ludovica Poli and Andrea Spagnolo, true friends I can always rely on.

My warmest thanks go to Gerard Cattelino, who contributed to the final version of this book by improving and refining my academic English.

Last but not least, I want to thank my parents, Chicca and Alfredo, for their love, support and patience, and my beloved Alberto for making our life colourful.
