

Acknowledgements

This book grew out of my PhD thesis that I completed at The Australian National University (ANU). Most importantly, I would like to thank Professor Prema-chandra Athukorala for guiding me throughout my PhD study. His insights and constructive criticisms have improved the quality of this research immensely. He also financially helped my study by offering me a research assistantship when I was a student. Beyond supervision, he also became one of my best friends in Canberra. I will miss the discussions we had under the big gum trees in the courtyard of the Coombs tea room at the usual tea time.

I would also like to thank everyone who helped me write this book. I extend my profound gratitude to Professor Martin Richardson (ANU) for making comments on Chapter 2. He also taught me International Trade Theory and Industrial Organisation in my course works. What I have learned in his excellent courses helped me greatly in developing the analytical framework of this book. I am indebted to Professor Sisira Jayasuriya who has been acting as my mentor since I came to Melbourne. He gave me a lot of confidence in this project and kindly offered to help me revise the entire book manuscript and devoted his time in editing Chapters 1 and 8. I am grateful to Professor Gary B. Magee for his advice and would like to extend appreciations to my PhD thesis examiners, Professor Henryk Kiezkowski and Professor Fukunari Kimura for valuable comments and constructive criticism which led to significant improvement of the book.

Parts of Chapters 6 and 7 were written while I was visiting the Institute of Economic Research, Hitsotsubashi University, Tokyo, Japan. My exceptional gratitude goes to Professor Kyoji Fukao for his kind invitation to visit, for making the arrangement for office space and sharing his insights on the topic. I am also grateful for the kind support from Ms Yumiko Moriyama during my stay in Kunitachi.

I wish to express my gratitude to Carol Kavanagh and Sue Holzknecht for helping me improve my English writing while I was at ANU. I am grateful to Alberto Posso, Ryo Ochiai, Russell Thomson, Rodrigo Taborda and Shiro Armstrong for their valuable discussions, assistance and friendships. I would also like to thank Sreeni Jayasuriya for drawing the figures, and Maimi Hinata for supporting me in the final stage of completing the book manuscript.

I would like to extend my special gratitude to Alex Pettifer for reading and accepting my book proposal at Edward Elgar Publishing. I am also grateful to Bob Pickens and Laura Seward for editorial assistance.

Last, but certainly not least, I would like to express my profound appreciation to my parents, Jiro and Suga Yamashita, for their love, spiritual and financial assistance for my study, without which this task would have been impossible to complete. This book is dedicated to them.
