We are immensely grateful to those who have contributed in various ways to the publication of this book. The development of the book has been a long process, involving many strategic discussions with Geneva-based and Brussels-based developing country delegates dealing with IP enforcement negotiations; intensive interactions with capital-based policy-makers; high-level meetings with board members of the South Centre; series of dialogues with the officials and professionals of several international organizations, such as the WTO, UNCTAD, WIPO, WHO, WCO, UPU, ACWL; and in-depth interactions with colleagues from non-governmental organizations, including TWN, CIEL, ICTSD, and so on.

We would like to acknowledge the valuable contributions from the participants who attended the first and the second South Centre International Symposiums on 'Examining IP Enforcement from a Development Perspective', held in Geneva on 9 October 2007 and 16 September 2008, respectively. In particular, we would like to express our sincere appreciation to H.E. Mr Zhenyu Sun, Ambassador of the People's Republic of China to the WTO, and H.E. Dr Makarim Wibisono, Ambassador of the Republic of Indonesia to the UN, for their substantive support and strategic vision. We would like to acknowledge the valuable views and steadfast support from many developing countries' delegates, particularly Guilherme de Aguiar Patriota, Sunjay Sudhir, Boumediene Mahi, Johan van Wyk, Ali Asad, Luis Vayas Valdivieso, Mohamed Omar Gad, Maximiliano Santa Cruz, Ines Fastame, Deny Kurnia, Maigari Buba, Cristiano Berbert, Mohamed A. Bdioui, Zhihua Dong, Yan Huo, Xiangchen Zhang, Susanna Chung, Simon Z. Qobo, Judha Nugraha and Peter Aumane.

This book also benefits from the concrete and insightful inputs by many experts. In this regard, we are especially grateful to Martin Khor, German Velásquez, Jian Liu, Christoph Spennemann, Roger Kampf, Ermias Biadgleng, Fernando Piérola, Hui Fu, Konstantinos Karachalios, Joost Pauwelyn, Carsten Fink, Qin Zhang, Sean MacArthur Foundation. We, therefore, express our sincere indebtedness to all the funders of this very important book project.

It is our great pride to acknowledge that we are blessed with the strong leadership of the Executive Director of the South Centre, and the enormous support and assistance from our dedicated colleagues at the Secretariat, in particular Nirmalya Syam, Viviana Muñoz Tellez, Caroline Ngome Eneme, Vikas Nath, Vasanthan Pushparaj and Xin Cui, among others. We are especially grateful to Nirmalya Syam who assisted in editing the draft manuscripts and providing his intellectual inputs on the book.
