Contributors

Michael K. Connors has taught at Thammasat University, University of Leeds and City University of Hong Kong. He currently teaches at the School of Social Sciences, La Trobe University. His teaching and research span international relations and development, Thai politics and society, and activism. His book Democracy and National Identity in Thailand (NIAS, 2007) attempts a critical reading of democracy as a process of power in the Thai context.

Thomas W.D. Davis lectures in Political Science at the University of Melbourne, co-convenes the University’s Human Rights Forum, and is Editorial Adviser for the Australian Development Review. Recent publications include ‘The politics of human rights and development: the challenge for official donors’ (Australian Journal of Political Science, 2009), and ‘Reconstructing Timor-Leste: the World Bank’s trust fund for East Timor’ (Understanding/Mengerti Timor-Leste, Swinburne Press, 2010).

Michele Ford chairs the Department of Indonesian Studies at the University of Sydney, Australia, where she teaches social activism and human rights in Southeast Asia. Her research focuses on the Indonesian labour movement and the responses of organised labour to labour migration in East and Southeast Asia. She is the author of Workers and Intellectuals: NGOs, Unions and the Indonesian Labour Movement (University of Hawaii Press, 2009).

Brian Galligan has been Professor of Political Science at the University of Melbourne since 1995, and was previously a Professor in the Research School of Social Science at the Australian National University. Recent publications include The Oxford Companion to Australian Politics (co-authored, Oxford University Press, 2007) and Federalism in Asia (co-authored, Edward Elgar Publishing, 2007).

Ann Kent is a Visiting Fellow at the ANU College of Law, Australian National University. She was previously Australian Research Council (ARC) Fellow in the Centre for International and Public Law, ANU Faculty of Law. Her most recent book is Beyond Compliance: China, International Organizations and Global Security (Stanford University Press, 2007).
Andrew McGregor is a Senior Lecturer at the School of Geography, Environment and Earth Sciences, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand. He is Editor-in-Chief of the ISI-listed journal, Asia Pacific Viewpoint and a Steering Committee Member and former Chair of the Aotearoa/New Zealand International Development Studies Network (DEVNET). He is author of Southeast Asian Development (Routledge, 2008).

Anthony Milner is Basham Professor of Asian History at the Australian National University, and also Professorial Fellow in the Faculty of Arts of the University of Melbourne, Australia. His publications on Malaysian and Malay history include Kerajaan: Malay Political Culture on the Eve of Colonial Rule (University of Arizona Press, 1982, 2007), The Invention of Politics in Colonial Malaya (Cambridge University Press, 1995, 2002) and The Malays (Wiley-Blackwell, 2008, 2010).

Raul C. Pangalangan is Professor of Law at the University of the Philippines, where he teaches constitutional law and international law. He was a Philippine Delegate to the Rome Conference which established the International Criminal Court, and has argued cases before the Philippine Supreme Court on the Bill of Rights and other constitutional law issues. He has taught at Harvard Law School, Melbourne University, The Hague Academy of International Law, Hong Kong University and the University of Puerto Rico.

Sorpong Peou is Professor of Politics (Security) and Chair, Politics Department, University of Winnipeg (Canada). His main fields of specialisation are security and democracy studies. His recent publications include International Democracy Assistance for Peace Building (Palgrave Macmillan, 2007), Human Security in East Asia (ed.) (Routledge, 2009), and Peace and Security in the Asia-Pacific: Theory and Practice (Praeger Security International, 2010).

Garry Rodan is an Australian Professorial Fellow of the Australian Research Council (2010–2014), as well as a Professor of Politics and International Studies and Research Fellow of the Asia Research Centre, Murdoch University, Australia. His recent books include Transparency and Authoritarian Rule in Southeast Asia (RoutledgeCurzon, 2004), Neoliberalism and Conflict in Asia after 9/11 (Routledge, 2005) and Political Economy of Southeast Asia: Markets, Power and Contestation (Oxford University Press, 2006).

Abdullah Saeed is Sultan of Oman Professor of Arab and Islamic Studies and Director of the National Centre of Excellence for Islamic Studies at the University of Melbourne. He is a member of the UNESCO Commission of Australia and a Board Member of the Australia-Thailand Institute of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Australia. His recent publications include The Qur'an: An Introduction (Routledge, 2008), Interpreting the Qur'an: Towards a Contemporary Approach (Routledge, 2006), Islamic Thought (Routledge, 2006) and Freedom of Religion, Apostasy and Islam (co-authored, Ashgate, 2004).

Ranabir Samaddar is Director of the Calcutta Research Group and the founder-editor of its journal, Refugee Watch. He has served on various commissions and study groups on issues such as partitions, critical dictionary on globalisation, patterns of forced displacement and the institutional practices of refugee care and protection in India, and rights of minorities. His latest publication is Emergence of the Political Subject (Sage, 2009).