

Contributors

I. Elaine Allen is the Research Director of the Arthur M. Blank Center for Entrepreneurship and an Associate Professor of Statistics and Entrepreneurship where she teaches advanced statistics and analytics courses. She is the statistician on several large survey projects including the Global Entrepreneurship Monitor and the Sloan Survey on online education. She is also Director of the Babson Survey Research Group (BSRG), USA. Prior to joining Babson she founded and held executive positions in the healthcare and biotechnology industry, including at Centocor, ARIAD and MetaWorks, Inc. She serves on several National Institutes of Health (NIH) research panels on best practices in statistics and on evidence- and effectiveness-based research. She is a Fellow of the American Statistical Association.

Bjørn Willy Åmo holds a Post Doctor position at Bodø Graduate School of Business, Norway. His research is oriented towards understanding the role of corporate entrepreneurship and intrapreneurship in the development of the organization. He focuses on the innovation behavior of the employee. He is also a member of the Norwegian Global Entrepreneurship Monitor research team working on regional differences regarding entrepreneurship. Some of his publications also relate to entrepreneurship education.

Ekaterina S. Bjørnåli is a senior researcher at NIFU STEP Norwegian Institute for Studies in Innovation, Research and Education in the area of Innovation Studies. Ekaterina has recently completed her PhD studies at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU), Department of Industrial Economics and Technology Management, and submitted her dissertation 'Board of directors, top management team and the development of academic spin-off companies'. During the PhD studies Ekaterina was a visiting researcher at Stanford University, USA, and published her first peer-reviewed article in the Journal of Technology Transfer. Ekaterina completed an MSc in Business and Administration at Bodø Graduate School of Business, Norway, and obtained a BSc in the field of international industrial management at the Baltic State Technical University, St Petersburg, Russia, where she conducted research in the fields of marketing, internationalization, and competence and learning in knowledge organizations.

Candida G. Brush is a Professor of Entrepreneurship and holder of the Paul T. Babson Chair in Entrepreneurship at Babson College, USA. She is also Chair of the Entrepreneurship Division and a visiting adjunct Professor to the Norwegian School of Engineering and Technology, Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU) in Trondheim, Norway. She is a founding member of the Diana Project International and she was named the 2007 recipient of the FSF–Swedish Research Foundation International Award for Outstanding Research Contributions in the Field of Entrepreneurship. Her research investigates emerging organizations, women entrepreneurship and angel financing.

Tommy Høyvarde Clausen is a senior researcher at the Nordland Research Institute and the University of Oslo, Norway. He earned his PhD in Innovation Studies from the University of Oslo in 2007. His research interests include innovation strategy and firm performance, entrepreneurship (start-ups and spin-offs) and evaluation of technology policies.

Linda F. Edelman is an Associate Professor of Strategic Management at Bentley University, USA. Before coming to Bentley she was a research fellow at the Warwick Business School, UK. She received her MBA and DBA from Boston University, USA. Dr Edelman is the author of 14 book chapters and over 30 peer-reviewed articles. In addition, she has made over 50 scholarly and professional presentations. Her work has appeared in top entrepreneurship journals. She is on the editorial review board of three peer-reviewed journals and her current research examines nascent entrepreneurs and entrepreneurial finance.

Amanda Elam is an entrepreneur and scholar with research interests in patterns of business start-up activity across social groups, entrepreneurial networks, and markets and economies. She holds a PhD in Sociology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, USA. Her dissertation involved a cross-national, multilevel analysis of gender and entrepreneurship. Recent projects have focused on the application of sociological theory to the study of entrepreneurship and studies of immigrant entrepreneurship. After two years of post-doctoral study at the Queensland University of Technology, Australia, and then Babson College, USA, Dr Elam returned to the trenches for inspiration and a fresh perspective on the entrepreneurship process. She currently leads a clinical testing start-up in Durham, North Carolina, USA.

Truls Erikson received his Doctorate from the University of Manchester, UK, and is presently a professor at the University of Oslo, Norway, where he serves as the Director of the Center for Entrepreneurship – a center which offers both PhD and Master programs – and is hosting a renowned global entrepreneurship training program. Erikson is also adjunct Professor at both the Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU) and Bergen University College, and has published in international research outlets such as the Journal of Business Venturing, Negotiation Journal, Venture Capital – an international journal of entrepreneurial finance, Technovation, Journal of Small Business Management, International Journal of Entrepreneurship, Journal of Family Business and Frontiers of Entrepreneurship Research, among others.

Bradley A. George is an Assistant Professor of Entrepreneurship at Babson College, USA, and holds the John A. Hornaday P'76 Term Chair in Entrepreneurship. His research focuses on strategic decision making in new ventures, governance impacts on corporate innovation activity, entrepreneurial orientation and research methodology. His research can be found in upcoming issues of the Journal of Management Studies and Frontiers of Entrepreneurship Research. Brad received his PhD from Indiana University and holds an MBA from the University of Northern Iowa as well as a BS and MEng from the University of Louisville. Prior to joining academia, Brad spent 15 years in the diesel engine industry working in a variety of roles in engineering and marketing around the world.

Timothy Habbershon is a managing director at Fidelity Investments. Dr Habbershon reports to the Chairman's Office and is involved in matters of organizational design and development for the company. Prior to joining Fidelity in 2006 Dr Habbershon was the founding director of the Institute for Family Enterprising at Babson College in Wellesley, Massachusetts, USA, and an adjunct Professor. Additionally, Dr Habbershon was a founding partner in The TELOS Group, a consulting firm that specializes in transition and strategy consultations to large family firms worldwide. Dr Habbershon received a BA in Psychology from Grove City College, a Master of Divinity degree from Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, and an MBA and a Doctorate in adult education from the University of South Dakota.

Espen J. Isaksen is currently an Associate Professor and teaches entrepreneurship and small business and small business management at the Bodø Graduate School of Business, Norway. He received his Doctorate in Economics from the Bodø Graduate School of Business in 2006. His current research interests include entrepreneurial intentions and actions as well as new small business performance.

Lars Kolvereid received his PhD in management from Henley Management College, UK in 1985. Prior to that he obtained his first degree in business from Norway (1978) and his MBA from Wisconsin (1979). He has been employed by Bodø Graduate School of Business, Norway, since 1986. From 1986 to 1988 he was the associate dean, and from 1988 to 1990 he was the dean at the school. In 1993 he was appointed Professor of Entrepreneurship. Kolvereid has published more than 25 articles in refereed journals and has supervised 14 examined doctoral students. He is member of the editorial board of several academic journals, including Entrepreneurship and Regional Development and Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice.

Tatiana S. Manolova received her Doctorate of Business Administration from Boston University and is an Assistant Professor of Management at Bentley University, USA. Research and teaching interests include strategic management (competitive strategies for new and small companies), international entrepreneurship and management in transitional economies. Tatiana is the author of over 30 scholarly articles and book chapters. Recent publications appear in the Journal of Business Venturing, Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice and The Academy of Management Learning and Education. She is currently affiliated with the Panel Study of Entrepreneurial Dynamics, which investigates the new firm creation process, and with Diana International, which explores growth strategies of women business owners worldwide.

Erik Noyes is an Assistant Professor of Entrepreneurship at Babson College, USA, where he holds the Martin Tropp Term Chair. His research focuses on corporate entrepreneurship, corporate new venture creation and corporate innovation. Prior to joining Babson Professor Noyes was a senior consultant for a growth strategy and innovation consulting firm working with global companies such as Nokia, Hewlett-Packard, Motorola, BMW, Guidant and New Balance. His recent research examines the roles of networks in innovation, industry evolution and entrepreneurial opportunity recognition. He earned his BA in International Economic Relations from Brown University, an MBA from the University of New Hampshire and a Doctorate in Business Administration with a focus on Strategy from Boston University.

Hannes Ottósson is a PhD student at the University of Southern Denmark. He received his first degree in history (1996) and his MBA (2002) from the University of Iceland. His research interests include social capital, entrepreneur networks and the venture emergence process.

Einar Rasmussen received his PhD in 2006 and currently holds a Post Doctor position at Bodø Graduate School of Business, Norway. He has also been working as a researcher at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU) Entrepreneurship Center and is a visiting scholar at Nottingham University Business School and the University of Strathclyde Business School, UK. His main area of research is within academic entrepreneurship where he has been involved in several research and development projects regarding entrepreneurial activity at universities, such as studies of university spin-off venture formation processes, university support initiatives, entrepreneurship education and various types of government support mechanisms. He has published several articles in international journals.

Mark P. Rice, currently the Frederic C. Hamilton Professor for Free Enterprise at Babson College, USA, served as the Murata Dean of the F.W. Olin Graduate School of Business at Babson College from 2001–007. Professor Rice, who has been a director and chairman of the National Business Incubation Association, co-authored Growing New Ventures – Creating New Jobs: Principles and Practices of Successful Business Incubation. Based on his research in corporate innovation and entrepreneurship, he has co-authored numerous academic and practitioner publications, including Radical Innovation: How Mature Companies Can Outsmart Upstarts.

Beate Rotefoss is Associate Professor of Entrepreneurship at Bodø Graduate School of Business and senior adviser at The Centre of Innovation and Entrepreneurship in Bodø, Norway. She holds an MBA from Bodø Graduate School of Business (1998) and a PhD from Brunel University, UK (2001). Rotefoss's research interests are product development, regional innovation systems, strategy, the business start-up process, entrepreneurship among youths and entrepreneurship education.

Roger Sørheim is Professor in Technology Management at Trondheim Business School, Norway. The main part of his research is related to early-stage finance and commercialization of technology. Sørheim has published his work in a number of peer-reviewed journals such as the Journal of Small Business Management, Venture Capital, Entrepreneurship and Regional Development, Family Business Review and Technovation. Sørheim is one of the founders of the Norwegian University of Science and Technology's (NTNU) action-based entrepreneurship program 'NTNU School of Entrepreneurship' (<http://www.iot.ntnu.no/nse>). He currently holds part-time academic posts at NTNU and Bodø Graduate School of Business.

Ingebjørg Vestrum is employed as a researcher at Nordland Research Institute, Norway. She is currently writing a PhD at Bodø Graduate School of Business on community entrepreneurship. Her main research interests are within social and community entrepreneurship, rural communities and culture.

She is visiting the Hunter Centre of Entrepreneurship at the University of Strathclyde Business School in Glasgow, Scotland, in 2009–10.

Evgueni Vinogradov is a senior researcher at Nordland Research Institute, Bodø, Norway. He received his PhD from Bodø Graduate School of Business in 2008. His research interests include immigrant entrepreneurship, cognitive processes and the cultural context of entrepreneurship.

L. Øystein Widding's research field is within the commercialization of technology. Lately he has published papers related to entrepreneurs as knowledge managers, business angels, venture capital and spin-outs from universities. He is currently working as an Associate Professor at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU) and at Bodø Graduate School of Business. Dr Widding is also a founder and coordinator of the NTNU School of Entrepreneurship, where the students are studying both an MSc in Technology and commercialization technology based business ideas.

Andrew Zacharakis is the John H. Muller, Jr Chair in Entrepreneurship and the Director of the Babson College Entrepreneurship Research Conference, USA. He previously served as Chair of the Entrepreneurship Department at Babson College and as Acting Director of the Arthur M. Blank Center for Entrepreneurship at Babson College. In addition, Zacharakis was the President of the Academy of Management, Entrepreneurship Division. Zacharakis's primary research area is the venture capital process. Zacharakis is the co-author of five books, The Portable MBA in Entrepreneurship, Business Plans that Work, How to Raise Capital, Entrepreneurship, The Engine of Growth and a textbook titled Entrepreneurship. He received a BS from the University of Colorado, an MBA from Indiana University and a PhD from the University of Colorado. Professor Zacharakis actively consults with entrepreneurs and small business start-ups. His professional experience includes positions with The Cambridge Companies (venture capital), IBM and Leisure Technologies.