I began this research fifteen years ago. Through its various stages there have been many friends – both old and new – who have guided, encouraged and led me through the entire process that has made this book possible. Professors Fabian Estapé, Josep Fontana, Jordi Pascual, Salvador Almenar, Antoin E. Murphy, José Luis Cardoso, Alfonso Sánchez Hormigo, Muriel Casals, Luci Nussbaum, Amparo Tusón, Carlos Lomas, Howard Petith, and the late Professors Ernest Lluch, Lluís Argemí and A.W. ‘Bob’ Coats are just a few names that come to me when I try to recall the people who in one way or another have contributed to this biography. Many thanks to them and also to Francesc Prats, Amadeu Rocamora, Anita Puigcerver-Rumbold, Xavier López Andrés, and to the countless others who have remained unnamed.

The following have all kindly given permission to publish the quotations from manuscripts in their collections: The Boards of the National Library of Ireland, Trinity College Dublin, the London School of Economics and Political Science, and the Bodleian Library of the University of Oxford; the Director of Library Services, Special Collections, of University College London; the Provost and Fellows of King’s College, Cambridge; the Warden and Fellows of Nuffield College, Oxford; and Dr David Edgeworth Butler. Dr Butler has also permitted the use of Edgeworth’s pictures.

The librarians of these institutions and the personnel in charge of the Oriental and India Office Collections at the British Library in London, the Diocesan Archives in La Seu d’Urgell and the Historical Archives of the Universitat de Barcelona (UB) have most open-handedly assisted me in finding the material that I was looking for. I would especially like to express appreciation for the helpfulness of Elizabeth Martin of Nuffield College and Josep Casals of the UB Historical Archives. Their efforts went far beyond mere professional duty. I am also indebted to Carlos Alonso and the entire team of the Servei de Publicacions de la Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona (UAB), which has always believed in my projects.

For this English version, I have to acknowledge the crucial academic and editorial support of Professor John Creedy, the main expert on the economics of Edgeworth, who personally fought to have this book published in times of technological and financial upheaval, generously contributed a preface, restrained my speculative penchant and tried to redress my misapprehensions. I should also mention the efficient help of Felicity Plester, Commissioning Editor of Edward Elgar Publishing Ltd and the support of the Institut Ramon Llull in rewarding the diligent work of Mary C. Black with a grant for the translation of Catalan literary and scholarly works.

Given the nature of this undertaking, I have considered it necessary to reproduce brief extracts from the books and articles which are listed as references at the end. Consequently, using the convention of inserting short quotations without explicit permission, I gladly pay their authors the academic tribute they deserve.

In any case, all blameable errors, misjudgments and omissions fall under my exclusive responsibility.

The translation of this work was supported by a grant from the Institut Ramon Llull.
