

Contents

1. Introduction	1
2. A taxonomy of trade	4
2.1 Mode 1: distance care	4
2.2 Mode 2: patients	9
2.3 Mode 3: capital	13
2.4 Mode 4: labour	16
2.5 Trade in goods and trade in services	19
3. Price	23
3.1 Comparative cost	23
3.2 Willingness to travel	27
3.3 Insurance	31
3.4 Out-of-pocket	42
3.5 Care and cure	47
3.6 Price and performance	48
4. Quality	53
4.1 Perception and reality	53
4.2 Malpractice	61
4.3 Information	64
4.4 Principal and agent	68
4.5 International collaboration	74
4.6 Accreditation and certification	75
5. Differentiation	81
5.1 Procedures and possibilities	81
5.2 Location	87
5.3 Culture	91
5.4 Tourism and health tourism	93
6. Health tourism: the benefits	99
6.1 The countries that buy	99
6.2 The countries that sell	101

7.	Health tourism: the costs	107
7.1	The countries that buy	107
7.2	The countries that sell	112
7.3	Commodification as a moral loss	116
8.	Health tourism and public policy	118
8.1	Taxes and subsidies	118
8.2	Laws and regulations	121
8.3	Infrastructure	126
8.4	Marketing	132
8.5	Global public spillovers	137
8.6	The right to care	141
9.	The Singapore experience	148
9.1	The service sector	148
9.2	Health services as a hub	151
9.3	Hospitals and patients	155
9.4	Strengths and weaknesses	159
9.5	The overseas wing	163
9.6	A public–private mix	165
10.	Health hubs in Asia	168
10.1	Dubai	168
10.2	India	172
10.3	Malaysia	174
10.4	Thailand	175
10.5	The world is flat	180
	Bibliography	182
	Index	191