

---

Contributors

---

Tasso Brandt, b. 1976, sociologist, project manager at the Fraunhofer ISI, former scientific assistant at the Chair of Sociology/Center for Evaluation at Saarland University. Main emphasis in research and work on: evaluation research, and occupational and professional sociology.

Dr Vera Hennefeld, b. 1976, sociologist, senior scientist and head of 'education and culture' at the Center for Evaluation at Saarland University, coordinator of the 'evaluation of culture and cultural and educational policy' team currently being founded at the German Evaluation Society (DeGEval). Main emphasis in research and work on: evaluation research, educational and environmental sociology, poverty research, and methods of empirical social research.

Pascal Klären, b. 1979, educational scientist, scientific assistant at the Center for Evaluation at Saarland University, coordinator of the 'Master of Evaluation' study course. Main emphasis in research and work on: evaluation research, methods of empirical social research, and educational psychology.

Peter Maats, b. 1974, economist, former scientific assistant at the Center for Evaluation at Saarland University, coordinator of the 'Evaluation of Development Policy' team at the German Evaluation Society (DeGEval). Main emphasis in research and work on: methods of efficiency measurement, statistics/econometrics, methods of empirical social research, and evaluation research.

Ralph Meiers, b. 1975, sociologist MA, scientific assistant at the Center for Evaluation. Main emphasis in research and work on: online research, new media, evaluation research, and environmental sociology.

Dr Wolfgang Meyer, b. 1959, sociologist, senior scientist and head of 'work and environment' at the Center for Evaluation at Saarland University, spokesman for the 'evaluations in the environmental sector' team of the German Evaluation Society (DeGEval). Main emphasis in research and work on:

environmental sociology, evaluation research, methods of empirical social research, and job market research.

Stefan Silvestrini, b. 1973, sociologist, senior scientist and head of 'development cooperation' at the Center for Evaluation at Saarland University, co-founder of the 'technology assessment in development cooperation' working group at the Technology Assessment Network (NTA). Main emphasis in research and work on: development cooperation, evaluation research, innovation research, technology assessment, and employment and industrial sociology.

Professor Dr Reinhard Stockmann, b. 1955, sociologist, director of the Center for Evaluation, director of the 'Master of Evaluation' study course, executive editor of the Magazine of Evaluation, spokesman for the 'evaluation of development policy' team at the German Evaluation Society (DeGEval). Main emphasis in research and work on: evaluation research, methods of empirical social research, development policy, development sociology, and educational sociology.