This book would never have seen the light of day without the original request from the Fair Labour Association to extend the work they were doing on wage issues. I am particularly grateful to Aurret van Heerden, President of the FLA, for his continuing support and confidence in this work, as well as for deciding to implement the Fair Wage approach on a large scale. The work proposed here is an original approach aimed at strengthening CSR actors' work on wages. It does not reflect the views of the International Labour Office, but those of the author alone. This book could also not have been achieved without the commitment and contributions of Lina Arbelaez, Sumathi Chandrashekar, Lina Marmolejo and Jinghan Zhang and their field work in 2008 and also Lihui Jin, Caroline Lavoie, Lolita Sagitari and Natalie Unwin-Kuruner for the case studies carried out in 2009. The continuous support of the MPA-SciencesPo was also essential and I am particularly grateful to its academic director, Professor Erhard Friedberg. I would also like to thank James Patterson for his copyediting and layout work, Boroka Gergely for the cover design and Sabrina Bosson for providing the picture of workers on the cover. My final thanks go to the FLA staff, especially Ines Kaempfer and Youli Gouli, but also to Eva Chen and Xiaolei Qian, whose support, high competence and motivation in the field were extremely valuable, and to Jorge Lopez, FLA executive director, for his support and enthusiasm in organizing the first Fair Wage Conference in October 2009 in Washington. I hope that what is proposed here will facilitate the tremendous work they are doing to improve labour standards along the supply chain.
