Contributors

Marjolein van den Brink is a Lecturer in Law in the Netherlands Institute of Human Rights (SIM), in the Law School at Utrecht University, the Netherlands. Between 2001 and 2010 she combined this position with membership of the Dutch national equal opportunities body (Commissie gelijke behandeling). She has published on a variety of issues, which include human rights, the (ir)relevance of sex as a legal category, daily care as a legal issue, the accommodation of religious practices and a gender analysis of the concept of state sovereignty.

Peter Cumper is a Senior Lecturer in Law at the University of Leicester, UK. He undertakes research in the field of law and religion, with particular reference to domestic and European human rights law.

Eoin Daly is a Lecturer in Law at the School of Law, University College Dublin, Ireland. He lectures on constitutional law, legal theory and comparative law. His main research interests lie in the area of religious freedom in constitutional law, as well as in liberal and republican theories of justice, particularly Rawls’s social contract.

Grace Davie is Professor Emerita in the Sociology of Religion at the University of Exeter, UK. She is a past President of the American Association for the Sociology of Religion (2003) and of the Research Committee 22 (Sociology of Religion) of the International Sociological Association (2002–6). In 2000–01 she was the Kerstin-Hesselgren Professor at the University of Uppsala, where she returned for extended visits in 2006–7, 2010 and 2012. In January 2008 she received an honorary degree from Uppsala. In addition to numerous chapters and articles, she is the...

Achilles C Emilianides is an Associate Professor of Law and Head of the Department of Law at the University of Nicosia, Cyprus, and the Director of Cyprus Institute for Church and State Relations. His recent publications include Law and Religion in Cyprus (Kluwer, 2011), Religious Freedom in the European Union (Peeters, 2010) and Welfare of the Child and Beliefs of the Parents (University of Nicosia Press, 2010).

Tom Lewis is a Reader in Law at Nottingham Trent University, UK and is Director of the Centre for Conflict, Rights and Justice at Nottingham Law School. His research covers constitutional law and human rights, with a particular emphasis on freedom of expression and freedom of religion and belief.

Titia Loenen is Professor of Legal Theory, with special interest in gender and law, at Utrecht University, the Netherlands. Her research covers human rights, equality theory and international, European and Dutch non-discrimination law. It is now focusing on gender and multicultural/religious issues.

Valerie A Lykes, MA is a Doctoral Student in the Interdisciplinary Social Psychology Programme at the University of Nevada, Reno, USA. Her main focus area is religion, with consideration of its influence on politics, ageing and the environment.

Julie Mertus is a Professor and Co-Director of the MA program in Ethics, Peace and Global Affairs at the American University, Washington DC, USA. She has over twenty years of experience working for a wide range of non-governmental and governmental human rights organisations in the human rights and peace-building field. Her book Bait and Switch: Human Rights and US Foreign Policy (1st edn, Routledge, 2004; 2nd edn, Routledge, 2009) was named ‘human rights book of the year’ by the American Political Science Association Human Rights Section in 2005. Her work has also appeared in law journals and leading multidisciplinary journals such as Ethics and International Affairs, Global Governance, International Studies Perspectives, International Feminist Journal of Politics and The Harvard International Review.

Michaela Moravčíková is Director of the Institute for Legal Aspects of Religious Freedom in the Faculty of Law at the University of Trnava, Slovakia. She obtained her doctoral degree at the Theological Faculty of the Palacký University, Olomouc, in the Czech Republic. She has published widely in the field of law and religion on issues including natural rights, conscientious objection, contractual relations between church and state, the position of Islam in Europe, new religious movements and matters relating to multiculturalism and human rights.

Jørgen S Nielsen is Professor of Islamic Studies in the Faculty of Theology at the University of Copenhagen, Denmark. He has previously held academic positions in Beirut, Birmingham (UK) and Damascus. His research is focused on the situation of Muslims in Europe, and his major recent publications include Muslims in Western Europe (3rd edn, Edinburgh University Press, 2004; Arabic translation, Saqi Press, 2006), Shari’a as Discourse: Legal Traditions and the Encounter with Europe (ed, with Lisbet Christoffersen), (Ashgate, 2010) and Yearbook of Muslims in Europe (chief ed), (Brill, 2009).

Eugenia Relaño Pastor works currently as a legal adviser to the Spanish Ombudsman, and is also an Assistant Professor of Law at University Complutense (Madrid), Spain. She was a Fulbright Fellow in Salzburg in 2001 on the topic of International Human Rights. She has previously held visiting positions at Harvard University, the University of California, Berkeley, the University of Oxford, the Norwegian Institute of Human Rights and the University of Ottawa (Canada). She has published widely in the fields of law, religion and international human rights, is a member of the Legal Working Group of the European Group of NHRI's (Council of Europe) and is also a member of the Minority Research Network.

James T Richardson is Foundation Professor of Sociology and Judicial Studies at the University of Nevada, Reno, USA, where he is director of the Grant Sawyer Center for Justice Studies and a member of the Sociology Department and the Social Psychology Doctoral Programme. He has undertaken research for several decades on new religious movements, as well as the use of social and behavioural scientific evidence in courts around the world. He has produced about 300 articles and chapters in books, as well as a dozen books, including Regulating Religion: Case Studies from around the Globe (Springer, 2004) and most recently (with Stuart Wright) Saints under Siege: The Texas State Raid on the Fundamentalist Latter-Day Saints (New York University Press, 2011).
Religion, rights and secular society

Gerhard Robbers is Professor for Public Law at the University of Trier, Germany. He is Director of the Institute for European Constitutional Law and Director of the Institute for Legal Policy at Trier University. Since 2008 he has also served as a Judge at the Constitutional Court of Rhineland-Palatinate. In 2003–4 he was President of the European Consortium of Church and State Research, and he is also a member of the Advisory Council for Freedom of Religion at ODIHR/OSCE. His main areas of work are law and religion, constitutional law and international public law, and he has served as an advisor to several national governments and international organisations. His publications include Encyclopedia of World Constitutions (ed), (3 vols) (Facts on File, 2006), An Introduction to German Law, (5th edn, Nomos, 2012) and State and Church in the European Union (ed), (2nd edn, Nomos, 2005) and he has also published in the areas of public law, civil ecclesiastical law, legal philosophy, constitutional history and European Union law.

Renata Uitz is Professor of Law, Chair of the Comparative Constitutional Law Programme and Head of the Legal Studies Department at the Central European University, Budapest. Her teaching and research covers problems in transition to democracy and constitutional review, as well as questions of individual liberty, including freedom of religion.

Marco Ventura is a Full Professor in the Faculty of Law at the University of Siena, Italy, a Professor at the Faculty of Canon Law at the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium and an Associate Researcher at the Centre ‘Société, Droit et Religion en Europe’ (National Research Council, University of Strasbourg, France). He has been an academic visitor at University College London, the University of Oxford, the University of Strasbourg, the University of Coimbra, the Free University of Bruxelles, the Centro de Formação Jurídica e Judiciária of Macau, the Indian Law Institute of New Delhi and the University of Cape Town. His recent publications include Wie wirkt sich die europäische Integration auf die Religion aus? in G E Rusconi (ed), Der säkularisierte Staat im postsäkularen Zeitalter (Duncker & Humblot, 2010), 281 and ‘The changing civil religion of secular Europe’ (2011) 41(4), George Washington University International Law Review 947.