

Contributors

Zoltan J. Acs is University Professor at the School of Public Policy and Director of the Center for Entrepreneurship and Public Policy at George Mason University, USA. He is also a Research Scholar at the Max Planck Institute for Economics in Jena, Germany, and Scholar-in-Residence at the Kauffman Foundation. He is co-editor and founder of Small Business Economics, the leading entrepreneurship and small business publication in the world. Acs is a leading advocate of the importance of entrepreneurship for economic development.

Tomokazu Arita is Associate Professor in the Department of Social Systems and Management, Graduate School of Systems and Information Engineering, at the University of Tsukuba, Japan. After earning a PhD at the Regional Science Department of the University of Pennsylvania, he worked for twelve years at the Japanese Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport, and Tourism (the former Ministry of Construction) before being appointed at Tsukuba.

Edward J. Blakely is Urban Policy Professor at the United States Studies Centre at the University of Sydney, Australia, and formerly the Executive Director for Recovery in New Orleans. He has over 30 years as an expert and academic in the fields of regional and local economic development. He is a Fellow of the American Academy of Public Administration and a former Guggenheim Fellow.

Kenneth Button is University Professor and Director of both the Center for Transportation Policy, Operations and Logistics and the Center for Aerospace Policy Research in the School of Public Policy, George Mason University, USA. He is also Professor in Civil Engineering at the University of Porto, Portugal and Visiting Professor in Applied Economics at the University of Bergamo, Italy. Button is a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Logistics and Transport, a Fellow of the Institution of Highways and Transportation and an Academician of the Academy of Social Sciences. He is past President of the Transportation Research Forum.

Roberto Camagni is a Professor of Urban Economics at the Politecnico di Milano, Italy. He is a past President of the European Regional Science Association.

Roberta Capello is Professor of Regional Economics at Politecnico di Milan, Italy. She is the current President of the Regional Science Association International, is Editor-in-Chief of the Italian Journal of Regional Science, and co-editor of Letters in Spatial and Resource Sciences.

Terry Clower is Director of the Center for Economic Development and Research Associate Professor of Applied Economics at the University of North Texas, USA. He is Editor (Americas) of Regional Science Policy and Practice and a board member of the Council for Community and Economic Research.

Daniela Constantin is a Professor of Regional Economics at the Academy of Economic Studies of Bucharest, Romania, where she is also Director of the Research Centre of Macroeconomic and Regional Forecasting. She is the President of the Romanian Regional Science Association and a member of the European Regional Science Association Council. She is the Director of the Romanian Journal of Regional Science.

Gabriela Dragan is a Professor of European Integration at the Bucharest Economic University, Faculty of International Business and Economics and the General Director of the European Institute of Romania. She is a member of the Romanian Regional Science Association, the Team Europe, the European Commission's panel of independent conference speakers, and Director of the Romanian Journal of European Affairs.

Zizi Goschin is a Professor of Statistics, Econometrics and Regional Statistics at the Academy of Economic Studies of Bucharest, Romania, and a Senior Scientific Researcher at the Institute of National Economy of the Romanian Academy. She is a member of the Romanian Regional Science Association Council and the Editor-in-Chief of the Romanian Journal of Regional Science.

Jessica Heineman-Pieper is an Assistant Professor in the Master of Science program in Organization Development and Knowledge Management in the School of Public Policy, George Mason University, USA. She has consulted to the National Institute of Mental Health (USA) on science policy, has worked as a management consultant with Booz Allen Hamilton, and is on the Executive Committee of the Critical Management Studies Division of the Academy of Management.

Chie Iguchi is Assistant Professor of Global Strategic Management at Rikkyo University College of Business in Tokyo. She gained her PhD at the University of Reading Business School. Before joining Rikkyo University she previously held a full faculty appointment at Ritsumeikan University, Kyoto, and was also a Visiting Research Fellow at Rutgers University.

John F. Martin is Professor and Director of the Centre for Sustainable Regional Communities at LaTrobe University in Bendigo, Australia. His research interests include the role of local institutions in the sustainability of rural and regional communities across Australia.

Philip McCann is Special Adviser to Johannes Hahn, the European Commissioner for Regional Policy and currently holds the University of Groningen Endowed Chair of Economic Geography in the Faculty of Spatial Sciences at the University of Groningen in the Netherlands. He is also a part-time Professor of Economics at the University of Waikato, New Zealand. He has won academic awards in five countries, is a keynote speaker in conferences around the world, and advises major international organizations and governments.

Peter Nijkamp is at present Professor of Regional, Urban and Environmental Economics at the VU University in Amsterdam, the Netherlands. He has published extensively in the area of regional development and innovation. For many years, until 2009, he has served as President of the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research (NOW). He is also a past President of the Regional Science Association International.

Paul Plummer is a Professor at the University of Calgary, Canada. He has published widely on the foundations of analytical political economy, competing theories of spatial competition and the dynamics of regional growth and change.

Alistair Robson has worked as an economist in both academia and government in Australia. Currently he is an economist in New South Wales Treasury. Prior to that he was a Research Fellow at the Institute for Social Science Research at the University of Queensland, where he also gained his doctorate.

Mark Sanders is Assistant Professor in Economics at Utrecht University, the Netherlands, and research fellow of the Max Planck Institute of Economics in Jena, Germany. He conducts research in innovation economics, entrepreneurship and economic development, with a special focus on the role of entrepreneurial activity in the introduction of renewable energy technologies.

Robert J. Stimson is Professor of Geographical Sciences and Planning at the University of Queensland, Australia, where he was also Director of the Urban and Regional Analysis Research Program in the Institute for Social Science Research, and was the Convenor of the Australian Research Council Research Network in Spatially Integrated Social Science (ARCRNSISS) until 2009. He is a Fellow of the Academy of the Social Sciences in Australia, a past President of the Regional Science Association International, and the current Chair of the Applied Geography Commission in the International Geographical Union.

Roger R. Stough is the Vice President for Research and Economic Development at George Mason University, USA, where he also holds the NOVA Endowed Chair and is an Eminent Scholar and Professor of Public Policy. He is a past President of the Regional Science Association International and holds an honorary doctorate from Jonkoping University in Sweden.

Michael Taylor is Professor of Human Geography at the University of Birmingham, UK. He has held academic positions in New Zealand and Australia, and also worked for the Australian Federal Administration in Canberra. His research is focused on enterprise and regional economic development and particularly on the theory of the firm. He is Chair of the International Geographical Union Commission on the Dynamics of Economic Spaces.

Tojo Thatchenkery is Professor and Director of the Masters in Science program in Organization Development and Knowledge Management at the School of Public Policy, George Mason University, USA. He is a member of the NTL (National Training Laboratory) Institute for Applied Behavioral Science, the Taos Institute, the Editorial Board of the Journal of Applied Behavioral Sciences, the Journal of Organizational Change Management (JOCM), and the book review editor of JOCM.

Frank Vanclay is Professor of Cultural Geography at the University of Groningen, the Netherlands. He is a past President of the International Rural Sociology Association (IRSA).