Acknowledgements

This book is the product of research conducted since 2011 both in the United Kingdom and in the United States and aims to state the law as it stood at 30 June 2013. The author wishes to acknowledge the support of Liverpool Law School, University of Liverpool, for granting a period of research leave to allow her to explore the issues arising from class actions in the United States; this period was spent at the Faculty of Law of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI, where the author was a Schumann-Fulbright visiting fellow between January 2011 and June 2011.

The author wishes to thank the Fulbright Commission for its financial support and especially Mrs Margaret Nicholson, Director of the Commission's Office in Brussels, for her help and continuing kindness and concern. She is indebted to the Faculty of Law of the University of Michigan for having provided a fertile, hospitable and ever stimulating work environment; she wishes to expressly thank Prof Virginia Gordan, Prof Daniel Halberstam and Prof Daniel Crane for their invitation, Prof Ellen Katz for her kindness and Prof Mathias Reimann for his friendship and frequent conversations in Italian.

The final stages of the preparation of this work benefitted from many conversations with a number of colleagues in the University of Edinburgh, especially Dr Robert Lane and Prof Niamh NicShuibhne. The author wishes to thank also Prof Graeme Laurie and all the attendees to a staff seminar held in February 2012 where several aspects of this work were discussed; she is also grateful for her colleagues of the Scottish Competition Law Forum for their feedback and useful comments at a seminar held in December 2013 in Edinburgh. She would like to acknowledge also the continuing support and advice on the subject matter of this book which was provided by Prof Barry Rodger, of the University of Strathclyde.

This book would not have seen the light without the support of several individuals on either side of the Atlantic Ocean, who with their ongoing care and kindness made the author's work possible. She wishes to thank Sr Mary-Ann Foggin SGL, for having been instrumental to her stay in Ann Arbor, all the house mates in St Catherine's House and especially the House Mother, Ms Paula Muldoon, for their friendship and care, Mr Max Himmel and Dr Mary-Ann Evans for their stalwart support and Ms Siobhan Kinane for her kindness and hospitality in New York City.

The author is indebted to her family in Italy for providing space and a loving environment, especially in the proof stage. Most of all she wishes to thank her husband, Alistair Clark, for his immense support and boundless love, concern and understanding, particularly towards the end of this project. This book is, as ever, another attempt to impress him and it is, of course, dedicated to him.
