
Acknowledgments

This handbook is a collective action, fruit of hundreds of relationships. Therefore it is impossible to acknowledge all our intellectual debts, and express all our gratitude to the many who have contributed indirectly to this joint work. Of course, our first thanks go to the 47 authors of the entries of the handbook, who have written their chapters with a genuine academic spirit of gratuitousness.

We also want to thank the various protagonists of the many areas of civil and social economy which have inspired most of the pages of this volume. Last but not least, a sincere and deep thank you to Dr Antonella Ferrucci, the editorial assistant: without her committed and hard work this Handbook would have not be possible.
