Contributors

Esteban R. Brenes is the Steve Aronson Professor of Strategy and Entrepreneurship at INCAE Business School, Costa Rica and Nicaragua. His research and consulting activities focus on strategy, entrepreneurship and family business. He has published more than ten journal articles, fifty case studies and four books. He holds a PhD in applied economics and marketing and international trade from the University of Florida, Gainesville.

Arkangel Cordero is a researcher at INCAE Business School, Costa Rica. His research focuses on entrepreneurship and entrepreneurial and family firms. He has authored or coauthored over a dozen teaching cases, technical and teaching notes, and various articles. Cordero holds an MBA from Bentley University and a bachelor’s degree from Ave Maria University, Florida.

Luis Diaz Matajira is an instructor at Universidad de los Andes School of Management in Colombia.

Maria Fonseca-Paredes is at the Tecnológico de Monterrey (ITESM), Mexico.

Gustavo González Couture is Professor of Management at Universidad de los Andes School of Management in Colombia.

Ana Cristina González León is Assistant Professor at Universidad de los Andes School of Management in Colombia. She is a PhD candidate in Management at Tulane University, holds a master’s in economics from los Andes and a master’s in management from Tulane. Her research interests include entrepreneurship and corporate governance in family businesses.

Thomas C. Gura has been a professor and coordinator of the marketing teaching programs at La Universidad San Francisco de Quito, Ecuador, since 1997. He holds a master’s in international management from the American Graduate School of International Management and is a Capella University PhD student in information technology management.

Gonzalo Jiménez is the Albert von Appen Professor and Director of the Family Business Centre, Universidad Adolfo Ibáñez (UAI), Chile and Managing Director of PROTEUS, a strategy and governance consultancy advising family business groups in South America. He holds an economics degree and an MSc in finance from Universidad de Chile and an MBA from the Ecole des Ponts et Chaussées, France.

Giuseppe Marzano (PhD, University of Queensland) is Dean of the College of Business Administration at Universidad San Francisco de Quito, Ecuador. His research and publications focus on complexity, networks and multi-stakeholder decision-making processes.

Patricia Monteferrante M. is a management PhD candidate at Tulane University. Since 2001, she has been a professor at Instituto de Estudios Superiores de Administración (IESA), a graduate school located in Caracas, Venezuela. Her research interests include family business, human resource management and supervision in organizations. She is also the coordinator of IESA’s Family Firm Management Program.

Eduardo Montiel has a doctorate in finance from Harvard and a master’s degree from MIT’s Sloan School. He is a full professor at INCAE. He served as Minister of Finance in Nicaragua, and founded ProNicaragua, the leading investment promotion agency in Nicaragua. He has been consultant to many family firms and has served on numerous corporate boards.

Mattias Nordqvist is the Hamrin International Professor of Family Business and Co-Director of the Center for Family Enterprise (CeFEO) at Jönköping International School in Sweden where he also serves as the Associate Dean for Doctoral Programs. He is a former Co-Director of the Global STEP Project.

Ramón Piñango E. is a sociologist, with an MA from the University of Chicago and a doctoral degree in education from Harvard University. He is a tenure full-time professor at Instituto de Estudios Superiores de Administración (IESA), a graduate school located in Caracas, Venezuela. His areas of interests are organizational behavior and family business.

Marcela Ramírez-Pasillas is Assistant Professor and Director of the Master in Business Management at EGADE Business School Estado de Mexico, Mexico. Marcela received her PhD at Linnaeus University, Sweden and conducted a postdoc in family business at CeFEO at Jönköping International Business School, Sweden. Her research interests connect entrepreneurship, family business, ownership transfers and community development.
Contributors

Juan O. Rivera-Algarín (PhD, University of Kansas) is Associate Professor in the Department of Business Administration at Inter American University of Puerto Rico, Bayamón Campus and Principal Investigator in the University’s Institute for Entrepreneurship Development. His research interests include assessing organizational communication effectiveness and employee-customer communication during service interactions.

Aramis Rodríguez is a researcher and professor at IESA Entrepreneurship Centre and a PhD candidate in entrepreneurship sciences at Nebrija University, Spain. He is also a marketing specialist. His current research is mainly focused on corporate entrepreneurship, small and medium-sized enterprises and entrepreneurial orientation in family businesses.

Maria Teresa Roscoe holds a BA in education from Universidade Federal de Minas Gerais and an MBA from Fundação Dom Cabral (FDC). Her ongoing master’s degree is in business management from Pontifícia Universidade Católica de Minas Gerais. She is a professor and director of the FDC Shareholder Development Partnership (PDA).

Fernando Sandoval-Arzaga is full-time research professor and the Director of the International Family Business Centre (CIEF) at Tecnológico de Monterrey in Mexico. He has worked as a consultant in the areas of strategy, knowledge management and family firms. He has a PhD in management sciences from ESADE-URL.

Luis J. Sanz (PhD, University of Pennsylvania) is a finance and entrepreneurship professor and Associate Dean at INCAE Business School. Professor Sanz is also a consultant in finance, corporate governance and family business. He has published widely in books and academic journals and has been quoted in business media.

Iluminada Severino is a lecturer in management at the Pontificia Universidad Católica Madre y Maestra in the Dominican Republic.

José Antônio de Sousa Neto is a civil engineer with an MBA in banking and finance and a PhD in accounting and finance from the University of Birmingham, UK. He is the Director of the RDI (Network for Integrated Development) Partnership Program at Fundação Dom Cabral (FDC) and has worked with family-owned businesses since 2002.

Rebeca Vidal lectures in entrepreneurship at IESE, Venezuela.

Adriane Vieira is a psychologist with a doctorate in administration from the Federal University of Minas Gerais (FUMG), Brazil. She is professor and researcher in the Faculty of Management of Health Services at the FUMG. She is also guest researcher at the Fundação Dom Cabral (FDC) and has worked with family-owned businesses over the last five years.