I dedicate this book to my grandchildren: Chloe, Arianna, Travis, Connor, and Nicholas. I would also like to thank my patient, loving wife, Marlene, who tolerated my compulsive behavior during this manuscript's preparation, and the Hub Coffee Shop posse, who endured too many pedantic monologues on this topic.

In addition, I am indebted to the John William Pope Center for Higher Education Policy for partial financial support and to the Cato Institute for hosting presentations of some of this research.

Finally, I thank my daughter, Amy Martin, who designed the cover for this book. Also, I just plain thank her for being my daughter.
