

Figures

5.1	Investment coefficient, total finance in terms of GDP and main financial sources, 1933–1979	69
5.2	Financial margins	74
5.3	Credit in terms of GDP, total bank assets, and investment coefficient	75
5.4	Main financial intermediaries	76
6.1	Fall in the state of confidence over 4 years: effects on the growth rate of the economy	94
6.2	Fall in the state of confidence over 4 years: effects on the desired growth rate of accumulation of capital of firms	95
6.3	Fall in the state of confidence over 4 years: effects on the ratio of self-financing of firms	96
6.4	Fall in the state of confidence over 4 years: effects on the lender's risk of commercial banks	97
6.5	Fall in the state of confidence over 4 years: effects on the rationing of finance from banks	98
6.6	Fall in the state of confidence over 4 years: effects on the rate of inflation	99
6.7	Fall in the state of confidence over 4 years: spread effects	100
6.8	Fall in the state of confidence over 4 years: effects on the fiscal deficit with policy mix 1	101
9.1	Actual LVTS balances, July–September 2007	167
9.2	Actual LVTS balances, September–October 2008	168
9.3	Evolution of spreads between prime corporate paper rates and the overnight rate, Canada, 2005–2009	172
9.4	Overall business-lending conditions: balance of opinions	173
9.5	Yields on Canadian government bills after promise to keep interest rates down on April 21, 2009	174
9.6	The standard corridor framework of the Bank of Canada	175
9.7	An alternative corridor framework	175
9.8	The new ZIRP floor framework of the Bank of Canada	176
9.9	Evolution of the assets of the Bank of Canada, July 2008 to June 2009	184

9.10	Evolution of the liabilities of the Bank of Canada, July 2008 to June 2009	185
10.1	Economic growth since Maastricht in Euroland, Germany, and the US	204
10.2	German model features remarkable export dependence	205
10.3	Quick to hike, slow to ease	206
10.4	Headline inflation obsession backfires to ruin ECB's record	207
10.5	Germany underbidding its partners	209
10.6	Build-up of intra-Euroland imbalances: Germany versus the rest	210