

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	viii
List of contributors	ix
List of abbreviations and acronyms	xiii
Acknowledgements	xvi
Introduction	xviii
Heddy Riss, Johan F.M. Swinnen and David Vogel

PART I FEDERALISM AND COOPERATION AT THE NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL LEVELS

1. Legal guidelines for cooperation between the EU and American state governments 3
Daniel Farber
2. Transatlantic environmental regulation-making: strengthening cooperation between California and the EU 20
Christina G. Hioureas and Bruce E. Cain
3. California motor vehicle standards and federalism: lessons for the EU 49
Ann E. Carlson

PART II ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION

4. Rivers of diversity: water regulation in California and the EU 83
Gabrielle Bouleau and Matt Kondolf
5. Reshaping chemicals policy on two sides of the Atlantic: the promise of improved sustainability through international collaboration 102
Megan R. Schwarzman and Michael P. Wilson
6. Climate change policy in California: balancing markets versus regulation 125
Michael Hanemann and Chris Busch

PART III FOOD SAFETY AND AGRICULTURE

7. US versus EU biotechnology regulations and comparative advantage: implications for future conflicts and trade 161
Gal Hochman, Gordon C. Rausser and David Zilberman
8. Circuits of regulation: transatlantic perspectives on persistent organic pollutants and endocrine disrupting chemicals 180
Chris Ansell and Jörg Balsiger
9. How to get out of the transatlantic regulatory deadlock over genetically modified organisms? 200
Alberto Alemanno

PART IV THE POTENTIAL AND LIMITS OF INTERNATIONAL REGULATORY COOPERATION

10. Food labels and the environment: towards harmonization of EU and US organic standards 229
David E. Winickoff and Kendra Klein
11. EU–US horizontal regulatory cooperation: mutual recognition of impact assessment? 249
Anne C.M. Meuwese

PART V SUMMARY, CONCLUSIONS AND IMPLICATIONS

12. Transatlantic regulatory cooperation: conclusions and implications 273
Axel Marx and Jan Wouters
13. Lessons learned and suggestions for improving regulatory cooperation between California and the EU 295
Ian Clark
- Index* 317