
Tables

4.1	A Bourdieuan multi-level framework for ESB research	63
6.1	Framing the research question (networking and innovation)	91
6.2	An example of search strings (networking and innovation)	93
6.3	An example of relevance criteria (knowledge in SMEs)	94
6.4	An example of citation search records (knowledge in SMEs)	95
6.5	An example of thematic coding (entrepreneurship education)	97
6.6	An example of data tables (networking and innovation)	99
7.1	Flanagan's functionalist tenets in respect of the Critical Incident Technique	110
7.2	Contrasting assumptions of three research approaches	113
10.1	Meta-analysis results on the personality approach to entrepreneurship	169
11.1	How to use feedback to promote creativity and innovation	201
12.1	Distinguishing role behaviors	210
13.1	Historical foundations of social embeddedness research	225
13.2	Research on social embeddedness in entrepreneurship	229
14.1	HRM performance link: HPWS/contingency approach	239
15.1	Literature review methodology	269
15.2	Entrepreneurship education and training literature review, 1984–2011	271
15.3	Special audiences	275
15.4	Teaching model framework and research themes	281
16.1	Forms of learning	299
16.2	Implications for policy and practice	303
17.1	Summary of recommended references and future work	328
18.1	Comparison of agency and stewardship theory	341
18.2	Overview of family business research paths	346
18.3	Leadership heuristic model	349
19.1	Profile of independent designer fashion businesses in Manchester	367
20.1	Literature overview: business ethics and social responsibility in small firms	375
20.2	Summary of the nature of ethics and social responsibility in small firms	377
20.3	Summary of ethical theories used in business ethics research	378
20.4	Features of the ethic of care and responsibility in the smaller firm	384
21.1	Social innovation hubs	406
21.2	Applied social innovation centres	407
21.3	Social innovation public policy initiatives	408