Acknowledgements

I would like to thank all participants in this project – authors, reviewers and advisers – for bearing with my e-mails, and a few letters, that were aimed to provide suggestions, constructive criticism and – in most cases – deadline reminders. Of course, my greatest gratitude is to the authors, who gave so much of their time to writing and revising their chapters, as well as reviewing other chapters. I am also indebted to various colleagues and friends for specific support in a number of ways. Robert Ayres, Cees van Beers, Carlo Carraro, Kerry Krutilla, Peter Nijkamp, Hans Opschoor, Adam Rose, Jason Shogren and Jan van der Straaten provided comments on the initial outline. I am very grateful to Ada Ferrer Carbonell, Piet Rietveld and Cees Withagen for suggestions on rearranging the pre-final outline, as well as comments on a draft of the introductory chapter. While most chapters were reviewed by authors of other chapters, Glen Harrison, Paul Ekins and Cees van Beers were so kind as to evaluate chapters for which I could not find a suitable reviewer inside the project. Furthermore, several participants reviewed three instead of the standard two other chapters. Sander de Bruyn and Erik Verhoef generously reviewed a chapter within a few days when time was pressing me. I would also like to acknowledge Klaus Conrad for quick production and revisions of his chapter, which was suddenly required when the initial author dropped out at a late stage of the project. I would like to thank Island Press for permission to include a shortened and slightly revised version of a chapter by Bruce Hannon, which was originally published as: B. Hannon, 1992, 'Measures of economic and ecological health', in R. Costanza, B.G. Norton and B.D. Haskell (eds), Ecosystem Health, Island Press, Washington, DC. Lastly, I would like to express my gratitude to Edward Elgar Publishing for arranging a marvellous typesetting job, to my managing editor, Julie Leppard, for very reliable support and useful advice, and to Edward Elgar for his confidence in this ambitious project from the outset.
