Preface

This book is about European Union (EU) counter-terrorism cooperation, both conceptually and empirically. It is based on many vivid exchanges that the authors of this book have had over the years. We are grateful to a great number of people – family members, friends, and colleagues – who have helped through the various stages of the writing of this book. Without these very special people, it would not have been possible to complete this project.

The findings presented in this book are based on research supported by various institutions, including Dublin City University, the University of South Wales, the University of Dundee, the University of Liverpool, and the University of the West of England (UWE Bristol). Christian Kaunert and Sarah Léonard also wish to thank the European Union for funding their respective Marie Curie Career Integration Grants (held at the University of Dundee and Vesalius College, Vrije Universiteit Brussel). This book has also been written with the support of the Erasmus+ programme of the European Union (Jean Monnet Actions), notably Christian Kaunert’s Jean Monnet Chair EUCTIRL in EU Counter-Terrorism, as well as the Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence VIRTUE, the Jean Monnet Module EUHYBRID, and, finally, the Jean Monnet Network in EU Counter-Terrorism EUCTER. While writing this book, we also benefited enormously from the comments and insights of numerous experts in the field. We thank them for their time and support.

Moreover, throughout the publication process, the entire team at Edward Elgar has provided extremely useful comments and suggestions. The support and encouragement by Alex Pettifer has been exceptional and very much appreciated. We also thank the anonymous reviewers for their helpful comments and suggestions.

We reserve a final mention for those individuals who have offered tremendous support throughout this book adventure. First and foremost, we sincerely thank our respective parents and families, who have always been a source of inspiration. We also express our appreciation to our friends, who have provided encouragement at just the right moment. Finally, Christian and Sarah would like to thank Francesco for his wonderful hospitality.
