
Contributors

Nathaniel O. Agola is a professor of Development Economics and Finance at Doshisha University, Graduate School of Global Studies, Japan. Professor Agola has authored more than two dozen research papers in peer reviewed and refereed journals. He has also authored and edited two books: Spaces of International Economy and Management: Launching New Perspectives on Management and Geography (Palgrave Macmillan) and Poverty and Environment: Innovative Solutions for the 21st Century (Springer). Dr. Agola won Research Awards for his work on the subjects of Innovation and International Business (Young Scholar Best Research Paper Award and Palgrave Macmillan Best Research Paper Awards).

Andrew Barron (PhD) is a lecturer in International Business at Toulouse Business School, France. His research interests are focused on the political strategies of firms – both large and small – in international contexts, notably the European Union. He has published in leading journals, including Journal of World Business, International Small Business Journal, and Environment and Planning C – Government and Policy.

Ramaprasad Bhar has a PhD in quantitative finance on non-Markovian term structure of interest rate modeling. He studied computer science at the University of Waterloo, Canada with a scholarship from the Canadian Government, and his industry experience comes from multinational firms including Credit Lyonnais, the Netherlands and Unisys, U.S.A. He has published two research-intensive books jointly with S. Hamori, Kobe University, Japan (Springer, 2004 and 2005) and a book on Stochastic Filtering (sole author, published August 2010). He was a recipient of the Fellowship of the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science in 2005.

Alfredo M. Bobillo (PhD) is a Professor of International Business at the University of Valladolid, Spain. He teaches Business and Finance at the University of Valladolid and has been a Visiting Research Fellow at Uppsala University and Stockholm School of Economics (SE). He has published widely in various refereed journals, including International Business Review, Journal of Business Ethics, Transformation in Business and Economics, Multinational Business Review, Thunderbird International Business Review and Journal Business Review Cambridge. His research areas of interest are in the field of international business, international finance, family business and financial economics.

Hubert Bonin is Professor in Modern Economic History at Sciences Po Bordeaux and a member of the GRETHA research center at Bordeaux University. He is a specialist of French and European banking history (i.e., regional banks, Paris deposit, corporate and investment banks, specialized monography books and handbooks, and internationalization strategies of banks). He is preparing a large historical research of French Société générale (from 1864 to the 1940s), and developing histories of the French global economy of investment banks and French banks in Eastern Asia and Greece.

Masud Chand (PhD) is an Assistant Professor of International Business in the Department of Management at Wichita State University in Wichita, Kansas. He earned his PhD in International Business from Simon Fraser University in Vancouver, Canada. Dr. Chand's research interests include the role of diasporas in facilitating international trade and investment, immigrant entrepreneurship, biculturalism, and cross-cultural management. He has published his work in the form of book chapters, monographs, and articles in scholarly journals such as the Journal of Business Ethics, International Business Review, Asia Pacific Business Review, Advances in International Management, Journal of Trust Research, Journal of African Business, Journal of Enterprising Communities and Thunderbird International Business Review. He has presented his research in numerous academic meetings, including the Academy of Management, the Academy of International Business, the Administrative Sciences Association of Canada, and the Southern Academy of Management.

Maureen Chirwa (PhD) is a Senior Lecturer at the College of Medicine of the University of Malawi in Blantyre, Malawi. She is a professional nurse with specialization in health systems and management. She is currently Director of the Health Management Unit under the Department of Community Health at the College of Medicine. She has been Principal Investigator on a number of collaborative studies which include HIV and AIDS perceived stigma, motivation project, and building the capacity in health systems research among others. Her publications have appeared in peer reviewed journals such as Journal of the Association of Nurses in AIDS Care, AIDS Care, AIDS Patient Care and STDs, Qualitative Health Research, Public Health Nursing, Journal of Advanced Nursing, Nursing Ethics, and International Journal of Nursing Studies among others.

Fabio Corsini (PhD in Sociology and Social Research) is an Adjunct Professor of Intercultural Communication at Kent State University Florence Program, and a teaching assistant of Communication and Media Studies at La Sapienza University of Rome. He is investigating the role played by the media in the development of a new (inter)cultural and globalized context characterized by complexity and diversity.

Louise Curran is Lecturer in International Business in Toulouse Business School, France. She has published extensively on EU trade policy, international trade and the regionalization of trade in international journals such as the Journal of World Trade, Multinational Business Review, and Thunderbird International Business Review. Prior to taking up her position in Toulouse, Louise was a trade analyst at the European Commission in Brussels.

Jayati Ghosh (PhD) is a Professor in the School of Business and Leadership at Dominican University of California. She holds a PhD degree from University of Waterloo, Canada. Her research interests are in the areas of economic development, health in Africa and Asia, and the role of small and medium sized enterprises in BRIC economies. Some of her recent research has appeared in Management Sciences, International Journal of Knowledge, Culture and Management, Social Science and Medicine, Journal of Business and Behavioral Sciences, and others. She co-edited a book entitled HIV/AIDS in Africa: Beyond Epidemiology (Blackwell Publishing, 2004).

Jonathan D. Greenberg is a Lecturer in Law at Stanford Law School, Lecturer at Stanford University's Program in Public Policy, and Affiliated Scholar at the Stanford Center on International Conflict and Negotiation. Mr. Greenberg is a Senior Advisor to the President of the Annenberg Foundation Trust at Sunnylands, and is Counsel to the Canadian law firm Heenan Blaikie LLP. He has published book chapters and scholarly articles in a wide range of journals including Comparative Studies in South Asia, Africa and Middle East, The Harvard International Review, The Journal of International Affairs, Stanford Law Review, Stanford Journal of International Law, and the Vanderbilt Journal of Transnational Law.

Ezekiel Kalipeni (PhD) is a Professor in the Department of Geography at the University of Illinois at Urbana Champaign. His research interests focus on demographic, health, environmental, and resource issues in sub-Saharan Africa. He has carried out extensive research on the population dynamics of Malawi and Africa in general concentrating on fertility, mortality, and migration and health care issues. He has authored or co-edited 11 books, among them HIV/AIDS in Africa: Beyond Epidemiology (Blackwell Publishing, 2004) and Strong Women, Dangerous Times: Gender and HIV/AIDS in Africa (Nova Science Publishers, 2009). He is currently working on HIV/AIDS in Africa and population and environmental issues in Malawi.

Anthony Liberatore is Millikin University's Hermann Chair of Management Development and Director of the Tabor School of Business MBA program. Dr. Liberatore co-authored a widely distributed Quarterly Economic and Financial Forecast for over a decade and has been a recipient of several teaching awards. He serves as Chairman of the Board and CEO of the Illini Corporation, an Illinois bank holding company.

Robert E. Looney is Distinguished Professor of National Security Affairs at the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, California. He has written 21 books and over 200 professional articles on various aspects of economic development. He has been an advisor on macroeconomic planning and forecasting to the governments of Iran, Saudi Arabia, Panama, Jamaica, and Mexico, as well as the IMF, World Bank, ILO, and the Inter-American Development Bank.

Félix López-Iturriaga (PhD) is a Full Professor of Finance at the University of Valladolid, Spain. He has taught Finance courses at several European universities in the UK, Austria, Belgium, France, Sweden, Germany, Hungary, Lithuania, Latvia, and Cyprus. He has earned teaching awards on three occasions and a number of research awards from the European Investment Bank, the Spanish Centre for Financial Studies, and the Spanish Foundation for Financial Studies. He has published several books, and many papers in international journals. His main research topics relate to auditing, corporate finance, and corporate governance.

Van V. Miller (PhD, University of New Mexico) is Professor of International Business at Central Michigan University where he currently directs federal grants supporting the integration of international business with sustainable development, and serves on the Board of the International Sustainable Development Research Society. In 1988, Dr. Miller was awarded a Fulbright Research Fellowship to Central America where he studied the business strategies of both large and small firms during a period of heightened volatility. The NAFTA negotiations and the Mexican Maquiladora Program became his main research interests in 1991, and the edited book, NAFTA and the Maquiladora Program: Rules, Routines, and Institutional Legitimacy (2007), represents the culmination of that research endeavor.

Lakshmi Mudunuru is a Professor of Geopolitics and International Business at the School of International Business, GITAM University, India. She has over two decades of postgraduate teaching, training, research, and consulting experience; and is the founder editor of Global Vistas, an in-house publication on world trade trends and developments which received appreciation from the International Trade Centre, Geneva, UNCTAD/WTO. Her recent research work is a monograph: “India’s Economic, Social and Political Trends and Issues: Review of Literature and Intellectual Resources” for the Global Asia Institute, National University of Singapore.

Martin Müller is Research Professor of the National Science Foundation at the Universität Zürich in Switzerland. His current research examines the governance and circulation of knowledge in the Olympic Games and has appeared in journals such as Environment and Planning A, Environment and Planning C: Government and Policy and Geopolitics. His regional focus is on the post-Soviet space, with a particular focus on Russia.

Joseph Mark S. Munoz (PhD) is a tenured Full Professor of International Business at Millikin University, Illinois, and a former Visiting Fellow at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. He is a recipient of several awards including a literary award, three Best Research Paper Awards, and two Teaching Excellence Awards. He was honored as the 2012 Distinguished Scholar by the Academy of Global Business Advancement. Aside from top-tier journal publications, he has authored/co-authored/edited six books, namely: Land of My Birth, Winning Across Borders, In Transition, A Salesman in Asia, International Social Entrepreneurship, and Contemporary Microenterprises: Concepts and Cases.

Biljana Nikolova (PhD) is a senior executive with the Enterprise Strategy division of National Australia Bank and a Honorary Fellow at the School of Applied Finance at Macquarie University, Australia. She is a recipient of a Best Paper Award and a Young Leaders Award from the Ryoichi Sasakawa Young Leaders Fellowship. Biljana holds a PhD in finance specializing in the investment climate of emerging economies with a specific focus on the BRIC economies. Her academic work has been published in reputable international finance journals and presented at a number of international finance and economics conferences.

Luis A. Perez-Batres (PhD Texas A&M University) is Associate Professor in the Department of Management at Central Michigan University. His research on International Strategy and Corporate Responsibility/Sustainability has been published or accepted for publication at the Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Cleaner Production, Journal of International Management, Management International Review, and Multinational Business Review.

Michael Pettus is an Associate Professor at the Tabor School of Business at Millikin University, Illinois. His work has been published in journals such as the Academy of Management Journal and Strategic Management Journal. He has several publications in both academic and practitioner journals and has written three books. He has over 35 years of experience consulting for multinational firms.

Michael J. Pisani (PhD, University of Texas – Pan American) is Professor of International Business at Central Michigan University. His research interests include the intersection of international business and sustainability, cross-border business and economic phenomena, entrepreneurship and microenterprise development. Dr Pisani's research has appeared in numerous outlets including Business Horizons, Entrepreneurship & Regional Development, International Business Review, International Trade Journal, Journal of Borderlands Studies, Management International Review, Social Science Quarterly, and Thunderbird International Business Review.

Julie Rowney is a Professor of Human Resources and Organizational Dynamics in the Haskayne School of Business at the University of Calgary. She has held visiting professorships in Australia, China, Ecuador, Iran, Mexico, and the United States, as well as serving as Dean and CEO of the International Management Centre in Budapest, Hungary. Her awards include the Killam Research Fellowship, The Macleod Dixon International Achievement Award, the President's International Achievement Award, and The Alberta Centennial award for Human Rights and Multiculturalism. She was named one of the top 40 alumni by the University of Calgary.

Chris Steyaert is Professor for Organizational Psychology at the University of Sankt Gallen in Switzerland. He has published in international journals and books in the area of organizational theory and entrepreneurship. In particular, he focuses currently on the spatial politics of entrepreneurship in the cultural industries. His latest book is entitled Relational Practices, Participative Organizing (2010, edited with Dr. Bart Van Looy and published by Emerald).

Fernando Tejerina-Gaite (PhD) is an Associate Professor of Finance at the University of Valladolid, Spain. He teaches Finance and Corporate Governance at the University of Valladolid. He has been Visiting Research Fellow at the Leeds Business School (UK). He has published widely in various refereed journals, which include International Business Review, Journal of Business Ethics, Transformation in Business and Economics, Multinational Business Review, Thunderbird International Business Review and Journal Business Review Cambridge. His research interests are in the fields of international finance, family business, financial economics and corporate governance.

Marco Tortora is Research Fellow at the Department of Economic Sciences, University of Florence, Italy, and Adjunct Professor in International Business. He is the Academic Coordinator for the European Business Program of Kent State University and George Washington University in Florence, Italy. His research interests are in sustainability and international business. As a professional he has experience in the marketing and communication field. He is cofounder and chairman of FAIR, a nonprofit association for the development of sustainable business abroad.

Leighton Wilks is a PhD candidate in Human Resources and Organizational Dynamics in the Haskayne School of Business at the University of Calgary. Leighton has significant experience as a cross-cultural consultant and has lived in Japan and South Korea. His research interests are in the areas of international business, corporate social responsibility, cross-cultural management, negotiation, and business ethics.

Duane Windsor is the Lynette S. Autrey Professor of Management in the Jesse H. Jones Graduate School of Business, Rice University, Texas, where he has been on the faculty since 1977. He conducts research in corporate social responsibility, corporate citizenship, and stakeholder theory. He has published many papers, including works concerning global anti-corruption regimes. He is presently editor of the quarterly journal Business & Society, sponsored by the International Association for Business and Society (IABS). He graduated with a BA degree at Rice University and PhD at Harvard University.

Evan Darwin Winet is an attorney and graduate of the University of California, Hastings College of the Law. He holds a PhD from Stanford University and is a former Senior Fulbright Scholar to Indonesia and Henry Luce Foundation Scholar and Fellow at the Research School of Asia and the Pacific, Australian National University. He is the author of numerous peer-reviewed journal articles, book chapters and a book: Indonesian Postcolonial Theatre.

