

Acknowledgements

The primary acknowledgement for this book has to go to the European taxpayer, who, through funding by the European Commission under the RECON (Reconstituting Democracy) Framework Programme 6 project, made it possible. This was the first project (in any subject area) where a New Zealand institution could participate as an equal partner in such an EU-funded project. Most of that project does not relate so directly either to welfare (in any of its senses) or to issues of gender equality. We hope that they feel that their money has been well spent. The second acknowledgement is to the team at ARENA in the University of Oslo, who not only put together the RECON project in the first place but administered, led and encouraged it throughout its life. We thank in particular Marit Eldholm, Erik Oddvar Eriksen, John-Erik Fossum, Hanna Karv, Geir Kvaerk and Agustin Menendez but everyone in the team was friendly, thought-provoking and constructive. Without their help we would not have had the workshop which led to this book. It is a pity that, with the project approach to finance, such teams have to be wound down. RECON involved some 23 partner institutions with a wide range of interests and expertise. Even our own enterprise involved bringing together anthropology, economics, finance, political studies and social policy and we thank Tess Altman, Christine Cheyne, Cris Shore, Katherine Lyons, Anna Michalski and Zaidah Mustaffa for their help along the way.

Each of the authors, and not the institutions they work for, is responsible for their chapters. The editors are responsible for the collection. We thank Janet Mayes for her work on the typescript.
