The editors would like to thank all of the contributors and reviewers for their expertise, discernment and amiable cooperation. The publishers, Edward Elgar, are gratefully acknowledged for their kind support and assistance from the proposal development through to the finished product.

We would also like to pay tribute to the Centre for Environmental Strategy (CES) at the University of Surrey where three of the editors and several of the contributors to this volume have worked and with which many of the others have had close associations. Indeed, the central ideas for the volume were formulated by the lead editor during his time there. Now in its 21st year, the CES is an internationally acclaimed centre of excellence on sustainable development. It takes an interdisciplinary approach to the analysis of sustainable systems, integrating strong, engineering-based approaches with insights from the social sciences to develop action-oriented, policy-relevant responses to long-term environmental and social issues. Because the book has strong connections with the CES, we invited Roland Clift CBE, who founded the centre and is currently Executive Director of the International Society for Industrial Ecology, to contribute the Foreword.
