Contributors

Imad-ad-Dean Ahmad is President of the Minaret of Freedom Institute, an Islamic think tank in the Washington, DC area, for which he writes a blog (blog.minaret.org). He has a PhD in Astronomy and Astrophysics from the University of Arizona and has taught widely on Islam, development and religion, including at the Wesley Theological Seminary, University of Maryland, Georgetown University and Johns Hopkins University. Dr Ahmad has also lectured on Islam at the Foreign Services Institute and for the Joint Special Operations University’s Middle East Orientation Course. He has undertaken postdoctoral work in astronomy at Harvard, the University of Maryland and is under contract to Goddard Space Flight Center and private firms. An internationally sought-after speaker on matters relating to Islam and Muslims, his essay ‘An Islamic Perspective on the Wealth of Nations’ appears in the International Library of Critical Writings on Economics series 129, The Economics of Property Rights. He is also Islamic chaplain at American University, Imam of the Dar-adh-Dhikr Mosque, President of the Islamic-American Zakat Foundation, and arbitrator for the Coordinating Council of Muslim Organizations in the Greater Washington Metropolitan Area.

Abbas J. Ali is Distinguished University Professor and Professor of Management in the School of International Management, Eberly College of Business, Indiana University of Pennsylvania. He serves as the Executive Director of the American Society for Competitiveness. His current research interests include global business leadership, strategy, foreign policy, comparative management, competitiveness issues, organizational politics and international management. He has published more than 160 scholarly journal articles and more than 20 chapters in scholarly books. His articles have been published in such journals as Academy of Management Executives, Business Horizon, Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Psychology, Journal of Social Psychology, International Studies of Management & Organization, Journal of Small Business Management, Organization Studies, Personnel Review, among others. He has authored or co-authored eight books, including Business Ethics in Islam (2014) and Islamic Perspectives on Management and Organization (2005), both published by Edward Elgar. Other titles include Strategic Management: Concepts and Cases (2011) and Business and Management
Environment in Saudi Arabia: Challenges and Opportunities for Multi-national Corporations (2008). He is currently the editor of Journal of Competitiveness Studies and Competition Forum. In addition, he serves on the editorial board of more than 12 academic journals.

Sama Mazen Al-Taee completed her MBA degree at Al-Zaytoonah University of Jordan in 2013. Her research interests are focused on the fields of Islamic work ethics and human resource management.

Masudul Alam Choudhury is Professor of Economics at Sultan Qaboos University, Oman. He is the International Chair and a founder member of the Postgraduate Program in Islamic Economics and Finance, Trisakti University, Indonesia. Professor Choudhury taught economics for 22 years in Cape Breton University, Nova Scotia, Canada before taking his retirement. He now conducts advanced research and teaches at all levels. His research area and focus of teaching at doctoral level is economics and epistemology of unity of knowledge and its functional ontological conceptualization and application to the world system in diverse areas. In this domain are included political economy, economic theory, financial issues, and integral relations between science and society. His methodological approach is system-oriented and mathematical, while invoking philosophy of science and empirical application. Professor Choudhury is widely published and his most recent books are An Advanced Exposition of Islamic Economics and Finance (with M. Z. Hoque) (2004) and The Islamic World-System: A Study in Polity-Market Interaction (2004).

Dima Dajani is Assistant Professor in Marketing at Al-Zaytoonah University of Jordan where she teaches marketing and hospitality courses. She has a PhD from the University of Leeds, UK, 2011, specializing in e-marketing. Dima’s research interests are focused on the fields of e-marketing, tourism marketing, technology acceptance and organizational behavior.

Said Elfakhani is Professor of Finance at the Olayan School of Business, American University of Beirut. His previous positions include former Dean at Lebanese American University; Harvey R. Wickes Chair in International Business at Saginaw Valley State University, Michigan; and Associate Dean and Finance Track Convenor at American University of Beirut. He has also taught at the University of Saskatchewan, Canada and has held visiting appointments at Indiana State University; King Fahd University of Petroleum and Minerals, Saudi Arabia; and University of Texas at Dallas. He holds a PhD in Finance from University of Texas at Dallas (1989). He has published numerous papers in major international refereed journals and written for business magazines. His current research interests include Islamic finance, emerging markets performance, market anomalies and disturbances, portfolio performance, mutual funds performance, dividend policy and listing of derivatives.

Tahereh Alavi Hojjat is Professor of Economics at DeSales University, Pennsylvania. Dr Hojjat holds a PhD from Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. She is a past recipient of the Teaching Excellence Award by the Eastern Council of Business Schools and Programs (ECBSP) and received a grant from the Center for Advancing Partnership in Education (CAPE) for Global Collaborative Faculty Projects.

Dr Hojjat has served as an advisory board member for Houghton-Mifflin and McGraw Hill. She has published her work as book chapters and in a variety of journals, including International Journal of Business and Emerging Markets and International Journal of Energy Technology and Policy. She is the author of Mini-Cases in Finance accompanied by a textbook entitled Financial Institutions and Markets. Dr Hojjat is ex-officio of the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Economic Association.

Raza Mir is Professor of Management at William Paterson University. He is editor of the forthcoming Routledge Handbook of Philosophy in Organization Studies. His research mainly concerns the transfer of knowledge across national boundaries in multinational corporations and issues related to power and resistance in organizations. He currently serves as Chair of the Critical Management Studies Division of the Academy of Management.

Hussain G. Rammal is Program Director: Master of International Business, Founder and Director of the International Business and Strategy Research Group and Associate Director of the Australian Centre for Asian Business at the University of South Australia. He is Vice President of the Australia and New Zealand International Business Academy and editor of the International Journal of Commerce and Management. Hussain is also the area editor for the Journal of Asia Business Studies. and is affiliated with the CIBFR at the University of Nottingham (Malaysia) as an external researcher. His research interests include international business negotiations, internationalization of the firm, foreign direct investment (FDI) and trade issues (trade in services), international business strategy and corporate governance. He has a strong interest in business in the EU and Asia-Pacific regions (in particular Pakistan, Australia, Japan and China) and also researches the impact of political issues on trade and business in the region.

Hussain was the recipient of the Best Reviewer Award at both the 2012 Australia–New Zealand International Business Academy conference and the 2013 Strategic Management Society Conference (Global Strategy track). He maintains an active interest and involvement with the business community and undertakes consulting projects for Australian businesses and multinational corporations. He was a visiting scholar at the University of Aberdeen, Scotland in 2008 and at Aalto University (formerly Helsinki School of Economics), Finland in 2012.

Hasan Shahpari is a faculty member in the Department of Sociology at Villanova University, Pennsylvania, where he has taught for many years. Prior to this he was Director of Social Research and General Director at Iranian National Radio and Television. Dr Shahpari holds a PhD in the areas of Stratification, Culture, Sociological Theory and Religion from the University of Pennsylvania. He has been chair of panel discussions in the United States and world conferences on the Iranian Muslim philosopher Mulla Sadra and was a member of Arab-Islamic Studies at Villanova University, a member of the Project of Civic Education and Social Justice in Lebanon, and has lectured in Lebanon and Iran. He received a fellowship award on social teachings of Christianity. His works are published in both Persian and English and include focusing on synthesizing the sociology of Ibn Khaldun with traditional psychological views of Sadra, in addition to the role of authority and companionship in Islam and Sufism.

Yusuf M. Sidani is Professor of Leadership and Business Ethics at Suliman S. Olayan School of Business, American University of Beirut where he currently chairs the Management, Marketing and Entrepreneurship track. He has teaching experience in business ethics, leadership, fraud prevention and control, and organizational behavioral courses in the undergraduate, MBA and EMBA programs. He holds a PhD in Organization Behavior from the University of Mississippi (1993) and an MBA (1987) from Indiana University.
Dr Sidani’s research focuses on business and employee ethics, gender and diversity in organizations, and employee values and behaviors, with a special interest in the Middle East region. His research has appeared in leading international peer-reviewed academic journals, including Business Ethics Quarterly, Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of World Business and International Journal of Human Resource Management. He is an Associate Editor of Journal of Business Ethics: A European Review, and is a reviewer for various leading journals.

Jonathan A. J. Wilson is an advertising and marketing communications industry professional, branding and PR consultant, social scientist, senior lecturer, professional trainer, speaker, editor and writer. He has published over 175 pieces of work internationally in books, journals, reports, magazines and newspapers. He has advised leading management consulting firms, advertising and branding agencies, corporates and government departments. He is also an executive trainer for Al Jazeera in Qatar and writes regularly for Huffington Post, Thomson Reuters, Branding Magazine, Aquila Style and The Marketeers.

He is cited by international media, businesses and the academic community as one of an elite list of global thought leaders in Islamic economics, halal branding, Muslim majority and minority markets, and Generation X and Y consumer behavior. Dr Wilson is Editor-in-Chief of Journal of Islamic Marketing and is an honorary professor at the IIC University of Technology, Cambodia. He is a listed member of research centers at Monash University Malaysia; University of Nottingham Malaysia; and Tokyo Institute of Technology, Japan. In 2014 he was awarded the University of Greenwich Vice Chancellor’s award for Staff Member of the Year across the entire university.

Saad G. Yaseen is Professor of Business Administration and Dean of the Faculty of Economics and Administrative Sciences at Al-Zaytoonah University of Jordan. Dr Saad obtained his PhD at Karol Adameskigo University of Economics, Poland, in 1991. He has published more than 60 research papers in major international referred journals and more than 15 books. He has presented his works widely in the Middle East, Europe and North America. His current research interests include knowledge management, Islamic work ethics, management across cultures, IT adoption, business intelligence and innovation management.

Luqman Zakariyah is Assistant Professor at Fiqh and Usul al-Fiqh, International Islamic University, Malaysia. He holds LLB degrees in shariah (Islamic law) from Islamic University Medina and a PhD in Islamic Studies from the University of Wales, Lampeter, UK. He was

He has published in many leading academic journals, including AJISS, Arab Law Quarterly and Journal of Muslim Minority Affairs, and has contributed chapters in international edited books, including the Routledge International Handbook of Education, Religion and Values (2013). His research focuses generally on exploring how Islamic law can engage in modern debates on various issues, including sociopolitical and economic challenges, family structure in Islam and the challenge of reformation. He also has an interest in how the overall objectives of Islam (maqasid as-sharíah) can mitigate the tensions between Islamic traditionalists and modernists.