Contributors

Michelle Barnard is a Lecturer in the Faculty of Law, North-West University, Potchefstroom Campus, South Africa where she teaches various undergraduate and postgraduate modules. She obtained her LLB, LLM and LLD degrees at the NWU. Her research focuses on African Regional and Sub-regional Law with a focus on the topics of energy and climate change. Apart from presenting papers at numerous international conferences, she is an internationally published author on topics related to her fields of expertise.

Lovleen Bhullar is a lawyer and researcher working on environmental law and policy issues in India and climate change adaptation in the ASEAN region. She is associated with the Environmental Law Research Society, New Delhi, India and the Asia-Pacific Centre for Environmental Law, National University of Singapore, where she has previously worked as an Adjunct Research Fellow in the Faculty of Law and as a Research Associate with the Institute of Water Policy, Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy. Lovleen holds a BA LLB (Hons) from the National Law School of India University, an LLM in Environmental Law from SOAS and an MSc in Environmental Policy and Regulation from LSE. Lovleen has recently co-edited the book Water Governance: An Evaluation of Alternative Architectures (Edward Elgar Publishing, 2013). Her research has also been published in various journals and some of her recent publications include ‘Ensuring Safe Municipal Wastewater Disposal in India: Is there a Legal Basis?’, 25(2) Journal of Environmental Law 235–260 (2013), ‘Climate Change Adaptation and Water Policy: Lessons from Singapore’, 21(3) Sustainable Development 152–159 (2013) and ‘CDM and REDD+: A Comparative Perspective’, Journal of Rural Law and Policy (2013).

Ben Boer was appointed as a Distinguished Professor in the Research Institute of Environmental Law of Wuhan University, China in 2011. He was a Professor in Environmental Law at the Sydney Law School from 1992 to 2008. Between 2006 and 2008 he was also the international Co-Director of the IUCN Academy of Environmental Law and a Visiting Professor based at the University of Ottawa. In 2008 he was awarded the title of Emeritus Professor in the University of Sydney. His books include: International Environmental Law in the Asia Pacific (with Ross Ramsay and Donald Rothwell; Kluwer, 1997); Heritage Law in Australia (with Graeme Wiffen; Oxford, 2006), Environmental Law and Sustainability since Rio (co-edited with Jamie Benidickson, Antonio Benjamin and Karen Morrow; Edward Elgar, 2011) and Environmental Law Dimensions of Human Rights (edited; Oxford, 2014). He has served as a consultant to various intergovernmental and non-governmental organisations and foreign aid agencies in a number of countries in the Asia-Pacific region over the past 25 years. He is currently the Deputy Chair of the IUCN World Commission on Environmental Law.

Jorge Thierry Calasans is currently a Water Resources Specialist at the National Water Agency/ANA, Brazil. He represents the Agency in the Technical Chamber for the Management of Transboundary Water Resources of the National Council of Water Resources. He majored in law at the University of São Paulo. He obtained a PhD in Environmental and Public International Law from the University of Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne. He subsequently published his thesis on the concept of shared natural resources. Furthermore he taught environmental and water law, as a guest professor, at the Centro de Desenvolvimento Sustentável (Sustainable Development Center) of the University of Brasília/UnB. Thierry has also published comprehensively on environmental law. Calasans has been a member of the Brazilian Bar Association (OAB/São Paulo) since 1998 as well as a French/Portuguese certified translator and commercial interpreter in French. He is a member of the Federal District Board of Trade (Junta Comercial do Distrito Federal/JCDF).

Javier de Cendra de Larragán is Dean of IE Law School, Spain; Honorary Senior Research fellow at University College London, Faculty of Laws, UK and Honorary Senior Lecturer at the UCL Energy Institute; member of the Scientific Committee of Fondazione Scienza y Fede – STOQ, Pontifical Council for Culture, Vatican City State, and member of the advisory board of several national and international research centres, think tanks and academic journals. Javier’s fields of expertise span across environmental and energy law, with a particular focus on climate change. Javier has engaged intensively in research and consultancy on climate change and energy law. He has participated in several European projects, and contributes regularly to the Malta Forum on Legal Issues on Adaptation to Climate Change, an academic body that provides legal advice on climate change adaptation.
Contributors

Claudia S. de Windt is a Senior Legal Specialist in the Department of Sustainable Development of the OAS (OAS-DSD), where she leads the environmental law, policy and good governance section. She currently focuses on capacity building efforts in the areas of trade and sustainable development, environmental law and enforcement, access to information, to justice and participation. De Windt has published various articles on these subjects. She is a graduate of law from Universidad Iberoamericana (UNIBE) in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic and has a Master of Laws in International Legal Studies from the American University Washington College of Law. Prior to joining the OAS in 2001, Claudia de Windt was an Associate Attorney at the firm Headrick Rizik Alvarez & Fernández in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, where she worked as Counsel for international and local organizations mainly in the areas of contracts, banking, maritime, corporate and investment law. Claudia is a member of the Dominican Bar Association.

Beatriz Garcia holds a PhD in International Law from the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Switzerland. She has written a book on the legal protection of the Amazon which was published in 2011 by Cambridge University Press. She publishes regularly on sustainable development, REDD+, governance, trade and environment as well as international environmental law. Beatriz has worked at the Biodiversity and Climate Change Section of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), particularly on CDM and projects promoting trade and investment in biodiversity products and services from the Amazon. She has held positions as a legal advisor at government agencies in Brazil and provided counsel for institutions such as the Amazon Cooperation Treaty Organization, the Earth Council Geneva and several United Nations agencies. Beatriz currently works at Forests Alive, an Australian company specializing in forest carbon projects and carbon markets.

Koh Kheng-Lian is Emeritus Professor of the Law Faculty, National University of Singapore, Singapore. She was a founder member and former Director of the Asia-Pacific Centre for Environmental Law from 1996–June 2013 (she is now its Honorary Director). She was the IUCN CEL Regional Vice Chair for South and East Asia, and a member of its Steering Committee (1996–2004). She served as a co-director and resource person of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MFA, Singapore)/World Bank Institute seminars on Urban and Industrial Environmental Management in Singapore (1999–2001), and continued to be Director of the course (2002–2013). She was ADB consultant for the project Enhancing Effective Regulation of Water Infrastructure in Singapore.
Regional environmental law

(2010). She served in a number of committees including the National Environmental Agency Focus Group Review of the Singapore Green Plan 2012: Air and Climate Change. As one of the consultants of the ADB/APCEL/IUCN/UNEP project on Capacity Building for Environmental Law in the Asia Pacific Region, she together with a team organized two training programmes for environmental law teachers in the Asia-Pacific region in 1997 and 1998. The output was D Craig, N A Robinson and K L Koh (eds), Capacity Building for Environmental Law in the Asian and Pacific Region: Approaches and Resources (ADB: 2002 in two volumes). She has presented papers in numerous conferences on environmental law across several continents, in countries such as Brazil, Canada, Kuwait, Mexico, New Zealand, Ukraine and the United States. She is currently in the international resource team of the Konrad Adenauer Stiftung Rule of Law Programme Asia on ‘Environmental Law Talks’. She is Chair of the APCEL Specialist Group on Climate Change Adaptation. Author of many publications and conference papers in environmental law, chapters in environmental law books, and ASEAN Environmental Law, Policy and Governance: Selected Documents (2 Volumes, 2009 & 2012), she has also published books and articles on criminal law, commercial transactions, and straits in international navigation. She initiated and teaches the course, ASEAN Environmental Law, Policy and Governance, and was at one time teaching criminal law, contract and commercial transactions. She was Visiting Professor of ASEAN Environmental Law in Universidad Metropolitana de Mexico, Mexico and also at the William Richardson School of Law, University of Hawaii, Hawaii. From 1980 to 1986, she served as a legal officer in the secretariat of the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL) in Vienna. She is 2012 Laureate, Elizabeth Haub Prize in Environmental Law – http://www.juridicum.su.se/ehp/news.html; see, Third International Symposium of Laureates Elizabeth Haub Prizes for Environmental Law Diplomacy, Environmental Policy & Law (2014), and an Honoree in the Singapore Women’s Hall of Fame, 2014, for being a pioneer in the development of environmental law in the region. For further information, see website: http://www.swhf.sg/the-inductees/17-environment-conservation/138-koh-kheng-lian

Ludwig Krämer is the Director of ClientEarth’s European Union Aarhus Centre, Belgium. A German judge from 1969 to 2004, he served on secondment as the European Commission’s Chief Counsel on the environment, working with the Commission for three decades. He has written more than 200 articles on EU environmental law and authored 20 books, including a classic treatise and casebook on the subject. He has lectured on the subject of environmental rights and law in more than 50 universities in Europe and North America.

Willem Daniël Lubbe is a Lecturer and doctoral candidate at the North-West University, Potchefstroom Campus, South Africa. He obtained his LLB and LLM degrees at the University of Johannesburg. In his research Niël focuses on various aspects of sub-regional environmental law at the Southern African level. His doctoral studies and publications relate primarily to the topic of transboundary biodiversity conservation in the Southern African Development Community (SADC).

Owen McIntyre is a Senior Lecturer and Director of Research at the Faculty of Law, University College Cork, Ireland. His principal area of interest is environmental law, with a particular research focus on comparative and international water law. He serves on the editorial boards of a number of Irish and international journals and is widely published in his specialist areas, including a monograph on Environmental Protection of International Watercourses under International Law (Ashgate, 2007), which has recently been translated and published in China. In May 2010, he was appointed as Chair of the IUCN World Commission on Environmental Law’s Specialist Group on Water and Wetlands, and in February 2011 he was appointed to the Global Faculty of the UNESCO Centre for Water Law, Policy & Science, at the University of Dundee. Since 2004, he has been a member of the Project Complaints Mechanism of the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) and in 2008 he was designated a member of the Scientific Committee of the European Environment Agency as an expert on European and International Environmental Law. In April 2013, the Irish Minister for Agriculture, Food and the Marine appointed Dr McIntyre to the statutory Aquaculture Licences Appeals Board.

Anna Meijknecht is a Senior Researcher and Assistant Professor in the Department of European and International Law at Tilburg University, the Netherlands. She holds an LLM from Leiden University (1995) and a PhD from Tilburg University (2001). Her research focuses on indigenous peoples’ rights, minority rights law and intellectual property rights in the context of developing countries. Some key publications include: ‘The UNESCO Convention on Protection and Promotion of the Diversity of Cultural Expressions: Its Meaning for the Protection of Minorities and Indigenous Peoples’, in Toshiyuku Kono and Steven van Uytsele (eds), The UNESCO Convention on the Diversity of Cultural Expressions: A Tale of Fragmentation in International Law (Intersentia, 2012); Harnessing Intellectual Property Rights for Development Objectives: The Double Marcos A. Orellana (LLM, SJD) is Director of CIEL’s Human Rights and Environment Program and Adjunct Associate Professor at the American University Washington College of Law, USA. At CIEL Dr Orellana has worked with NGOs and local communities worldwide to strengthen tools to protect the vital functions of the planet and secure global environmental justice, including with respect to chemicals and waste, oceans and biodiversity, and trade and investment. Prior to joining CIEL, Dr Orellana was a Fellow at the Lauterpacht Research Centre for International Law of the University of Cambridge, UK. He also was a Visiting Scholar with the Environmental Law Institute in Washington DC and Instructor Professor of International Law at the Universidad de Talca, Chile. Dr Orellana has acted as legal counsel to the Chilean Ministry of Foreign Affairs on international environmental issues. In that capacity Dr Orellana has worked with MEAs and for the Rio+20 process. Dr Orellana has also acted as a legal advisor to several international institutions, including the UN Environment Programme and the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights.

Daniel M. Pallangyo (LLD) holds an LLB from Tumaini University, Iringa; an LLM from University of Kwazulu-Natal, South Africa and a Doctorate in Laws (LLD) from North-West University, South Africa. He is a Senior Lecturer of Law at Tumaini University Makumira, Tanzania where he teaches environmental law, natural resources law, African regional law and diplomacy and criminal law. Dr Pallangyo is also an Advocate of the High Court of Tanzania. Dr Pallangyo has published extensively in areas of regional law, environmental law and natural resources law.

Werner Scholtz (Doctorate in Law, Leiden University, the Netherlands) is a Professor of Law in the Department of Public Law and Jurisprudence of the University of the Western Cape, South Africa; a Lehrbeauftragter (visiting lecturer) at the Ruhr University and a Research Associate at the South African Institute for Advanced Constitutional, Public, Human Rights and International Law (SAIFAC). He specialises in international, regional (AU) and sub-regional (SADC) environmental law. Scholtz has published various chapters in books as well as articles in accredited national and international journals, such as the Yearbook of International Environmental Law, Netherlands International Law Review and the Zeitschrift für ausländisches öffentliches Recht und Völkerrecht. His most recent research has dealt with the development of a conceptual basis for the extraterritorial dimension of human rights in the context of the human rights–climate change discourse (e.g. Chapter 7 in W Benedek et al. (eds), Common Interest and International Law (Intersentia, 2014)). He serves on the editorial board of the SADC Law Journal and is an Alexander von Humboldt fellow. He established the Regional African Law and Human Security project (www.ralhus.co.za) during 2010.

Hennie Strydom is Professor in Public International Law at the University of Johannesburg, South Africa and holds the National Research Foundation Chair in International Law. He specializes in international humanitarian law, international human rights law, international environmental law and peace and security issues.

Jonathan Verschuuren is a Professor of International and European Environmental Law at Tilburg University, the Netherlands and faculty member of the Tilburg Sustainability Center. His research mainly focuses on the role of international and EU environmental law in legal practice, and on such issues as biodiversity conservation and climate change. Verschuuren has written more than 200 publications in the field of environmental law, including several books and many articles in major international journals. He is or has been a visiting professor at the Universities of Connecticut (USA), Leuven (Belgium) and Sydney (Australia) and at North-West University (South Africa). His recent publications include Research Handbook on Climate Change Adaptation Law (Edward Elgar, 2013) and ‘The Future of Corporate Liability for Extraterritorial Human Rights Abuses: The Dutch Case against Shell’ (American Journal of International Law Unbound, January 2014).