

Preface

As part of the research project ‘The policy ideas and practice of active ageing: political, economic and cultural challenges in Europe’, directed by senior researcher Rune Ervik, we organized a workshop on ‘Ideas and practices of ageing policies: European and national perspectives’ at the Uni Rokkan Centre – Stein Rokkan Centre for Social Studies, Bergen, in March 2012. The centre is a department within Uni Research, a research enterprise owned by the University of Bergen. Most of the chapters in this volume were presented at the workshop in Bergen.

The project and workshop were funded by the Norwegian Research Council (Grant number 187784). This book has benefitted from the efforts of the project’s international partners, representing; Germany (Stein Kuhnle, Christof Schiller), Ireland (Martha Doyle, Virpi Timonen), Poland (Zuzanna Drożdżak, Jolanta Perek-Białas, Anna Ruzik-Sierdzińska, Konrad Turek) and the UK (Liam Foster, Alan Walker). We very much appreciate that Maria Gabriella Melchiorre, Andrea Principi and Giovanni Lamura from Italy accepted the invitation to join the book project after the workshop. Rune Ervik, Ingrid Helgøy, Nanna Kildal, Tord Skogedal Lindén and Even Nilssen represented the Norwegian team of researchers.

We are most grateful to all contributors for their chapters and insightful and constructive comments on the work presented at the workshop. Our special thanks go to Martha Doyle, Christ of Schiller and Alan Walker, who commented on the book’s introduction and conclusion. We would also like to thank Stein Kuhnle, who participated in the workshop as an active discussant and chair. With the publisher we would like to express our gratitude to Emily Neukomm and John-Paul McDonald for helping us to prepare the manuscript and organizing a review. Three anonymous evaluators of our book proposal provided us with important comments. Several chapters rely on interviews and we thank the informants for their agreement to be interviewed and providing us with insights on the making of ageing policy. Finally, we acknowledge the support of the Uni Rokkan Centre – Stein Rokkan Centre for Social Studies during the project.
