

Acknowledgements

This book is based on a symposium held at the London School of Economics in March 2012. We are grateful above all to the symposium participants who gave freely of their time and knowledge. Their presentations – for many in an unfamiliar language – were enthusiastically discussed and ideas were exchanged. Authors then prepared their chapters for publication and patiently responded to editorial questions and suggestions. Their contributions are gratefully acknowledged.

The symposium was generously assisted by the Jamshetji Tata Trust which supports the research collaboration between the London School of Economics and the Tata Institute of Social Sciences. Ruth Kattumuri, Co-Director of the Asia Research Centre was instrumental in securing funding for the symposium and in the organization of the event; we are very grateful to her. Kevin Shields and Keith Tritton provided excellent logistical support.

Outstanding editorial assistance was provided by Ché Ramsden who immeasurably increased the intelligibility of the final manuscript.

We have received exceptional support and encouragement from our publishers and we thank Edward Elgar, Alex Pettifer and particularly Emily Neukomm who has supervised. We thank Sarah King for efficient copy editing and Madhubanti Bhattacharyya for managing the book's production.

Finally, we would like to pay tribute to the contribution of Professor Chandan Sengupta of the Tata Institute of Social Sciences in Mumbai, India, who participated in the planning of the symposium. Ill health prevented him from attending and, very sadly, he died in September 2012. His wisdom and cheerful enthusiasm will long be remembered.

James Midgley
University of California, Berkeley

David Piachaud
London School of Economics

