Contributors

Perri 6 is Professor in Public Management at Queen Mary University of London, UK. He has published extensively on executive government, neo-Durkheimian institutional theory, organizational processes, public policy, inter-organizational relationships, networks and joined-up government in public services. His recent books include Explaining Political Judgement (Cambridge University Press, 2011) and Principles of Methodology (with C.A. Bellamy, Sage, 2012).

J. Theodore Anagnoson is Professor Emeritus of Political Science at California State University, USA, where he researches and teaches courses on public policy and administration and American politics. He is also a visiting professor at the University of California, Santa Barbara, where he teaches courses on American politics and public policy. His research interests are the politics of federal policy making and implementation. He is the author, most recently, of ‘The United States civil service’, a book chapter in The International Handbook on Civil Service Systems (Cheltenham, UK and Northampton, MA, USA: Edward Elgar Publishing), and co-author of Governing California in the 21st Century (4th edn, New York: Norton, 2013).

Greg Andranovich is Professor of Political Science at California State University, Los Angeles, where he teaches public administration and urban politics courses. His research interests are the urban impacts of the Olympic Games, and the challenges of collaborative public decision making. He has authored and co-authored numerous books and journal articles in the area of public administration and urban governance.

Ahmed Badran is Assistant Professor of Public Policy at Mohammed Bin Rashid School of Government, Dubai. He holds a PhD degree in Politics (Public Policy) from the University of Exeter, UK. His research expertise is on public policy, public administration and regulatory processes. Dr Badran’s research interests cover regulatory governance and politics of regulation in liberalized public utilities, including telecoms, water and energy sectors, particularly in transition and developing economies.

Geert Bouckaert is Professor at the Faculty of Social Sciences at the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven Public Governance Institute, Leuven, Belgium. He is coordinator of the Policy Research Centre – Governmental Organization – Decisive Governance and president of the International Institute of Administrative Sciences (IIAS). He is an internationally respected academic with research expertise in public administration, performance management, financial management and trust, with extensive publications in these research areas.

Robert Cameron is Professor of Public Administration at the University of Cape Town, South Africa. His research interests include public administration, local government politics and reorganization and public sector reform. His published research, in numerous journals and books, is highly regarded. Professor Cameron is a member of the Board of the Comparative Local Government and Politics panel at the International Political Science Association.

Stanka Setnikar Cankar is Professor at the University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. Her areas of research expertise are public administration, economics and finance. Since 2000, Professor Cankar has been a member of the Senate of the University of Ljubljana. She has published a number of highly regarded journal articles and books in public administration, public economics and finance, and is a member of various editorial boards, chief editor of Administration magazine and a member of the Board NISPAcee.

Guillermo M. Cejudo is provost at the Center for Research and Teaching on Economics, CIDE, in Mexico City, where he has been professor at the Public Administration Department since 2006. He is the author of several government reports, and also of various books on Mexican state governments, accountability, public management, transparency, evaluation and public policy analysis. He has published in the International Review of Administrative Sciences, International Public Management Journal, International Public Management Review, and Public Administration Review. He holds a PhD in Political Science from Boston University. His research interests are quality of government in new democracies, accountability, local governance and policy analysis.

Dion Curry is a lecturer in public policy in the Department of Political and Cultural Studies at Swansea University, Wales, UK. Dr Curry’s research focuses on devolution and regionalization, EU public policy and governance and multi-level governance in EU and comparative contexts.

Wolfgang Drechsler is Professor and Chair of Governance at Tallinn University of Technology, Estonia (TUT), and Vice Dean for International Relations of the Faculty of Social Sciences. As a respected academic he has served as Advisor to the President of Estonia, as Executive Secretary with the German Wissenschaftsrat during German Reunification, and, as an APSA Congressional Fellow, as Senior Legislative Analyst in the United States Congress, and has been a consultant to several international organizations and countries. Professor Drechsler’s areas of interest are non-Western, especially Chinese and Islamic, public administration; public administration, technology and innovation; and public management reform.

Ricardo Corrêa Gomes is Associate Professor in Public Management at Universidade de Brasília, Brazil, and is the Coordinator of the Public Administration and Government division of the Associação Nacional de Pesquisa e Pós-Graduação em Administração – ANPAD. Dr Gomes has published extensively in the area of public management and is a member of the editorial board of scientific journals such as Public Management Review, International Journal of Public Sector Management, Financial Accountability & Management, and The International Journal of Public and Private Healthcare Management and Economics.

John Halligan is Professor of Public Administration, Institute for Governance and Policy Analysis, University of Canberra, Australia. His research interests are comparative public management and governance, specifically public sector reform, performance management and government institutions. He specializes in the anglophone countries of Australia and New Zealand, and, for comparative purposes, Canada and the UK. His current studies are corporate governance in the public sector, performance management, and a comparative analysis of public management. Professor Halligan, as a distinguished academic and adviser to government, has published numerous books and articles in these research areas.

Gerhard Hammerschmid is Associate Dean and Professor of Public and Financial Management at the Hertie School of Governance, Berlin, Germany. He is Program Director for the Hertie School’s Executive Master of Public Management (EMPM). His research focuses on public management (reform), performance management, comparative public administration, personnel management/HRM, public service motivation and organization theory. Professor Hammerschmid has published several books on public management reform and in various international, peer-reviewed journals.

Brian W. Head is Professor at the Institute for Social Science Research, University of Queensland, Australia. He has held senior roles in government, universities and the non-government sector. He is the author and editor of several books and numerous articles on public management, governance, social issues and environmental policy. His major interests are evidence-based policy, program evaluation, early intervention and prevention, collaboration and consultation, service delivery, accountability and leadership.

Sebastian Jilke is a PhD candidate at Erasmus University Rotterdam, Department of Public Administration, and is a research associate and administrative manager within a major European research project, ‘Coordinating for Cohesion in the Public Sector of the Future’. His research interest lies at the intersection of public administration and political science, and the introduction of choice and competition into public services.

Karen Johnston (née Miller) is Professor of Politics and Public Policy and Associate Dean (Research) at Glasgow Caledonian University, UK. She has extensive academic and research experience, having worked in leading universities in South Africa, the USA and the UK. In addition to her academic career she has worked with and for public sector and civil society organizations to improve public service delivery, and has worked for a donor organization to promote democratic development on an international scale. Professor Johnston’s research expertise includes public policy, political–administrative leadership, public governance, public management and gender equality, and she has published numerous peer-reviewed journal articles and books in these areas.

Andrew Massey is Professor of Politics and Head of Department at the University of Exeter, UK. His research areas of expertise include UK, European, and US policy and politics. His main areas of research include comparative public policy, public administration and issues around the reform and modernization of government and governance at all levels in the UK, the USA, the EU and globally. He has published extensively in these areas, and as a respected academic has been an adviser to government, serves on executive boards of a number of scholarly organizations such as the European Group of Public Administration, and on editorial boards. Professor Massey is currently the editor of Public Money and Management and the International Review for Administrative Sciences.

Duncan McTavish is Professor of Public Policy and Management at Glasgow Caledonian University, UK. He has a wide range of experience and expertise as an academic, practitioner and consultant in public and private sectors. His track record is national and international in scope, and in academia he has worked in a number of universities and in a range of countries. He has a wide range of highly regarded publications, edits a leading academic journal, has taught undergraduate, postgraduate and professional-level programmes and has led and managed major research and consultancy projects.
Janine O’Flynn is Professor of Public Management at the University of Melbourne. Her expertise is in public sector management, particularly in the areas of public sector reform and relationships. Professor O’Flynn is an editor at the Australian Journal of Public Administration, and is an editorial board member for Public Administration, Journal of Management & Organization and Canadian Public Administration. She was awarded the 2013 Best Book Award in the Public Non-profit stream by the United States Academy of Management for Rethinking Public Service Delivery: Managing with External Providers (Routledge; with John Alford), and was part of the research team that received both the Charles H. Levine and the Carlo Masini Award (2013) and was nominated for the Carolyn Dexter Award (2014).

Veronika Petkovšek is an assistant in Public Sector Economics at the Faculty of Administration, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. Her research interests include public sector reform, health care in Slovenia, evaluation of effectiveness and efficiency in public administration, public procurement and cross-border cooperation in the Alps–Adriatic region.

Robert Pyper is Professor of Government and Public Policy at the University of the West of Scotland, UK. His research interests include national and international trends in civil service policy and management; aspects of accountability in public policy and management; modernization and reform agendas in the British civil service; public services reform and modernization; and public policy in the devolved polities. His books, book chapters and journal articles cover topics including UK governance, the British civil service, devolution, and public services modernization.

R.A.W. Rhodes is Professor of Government (Research) at the University of Southampton, UK, and at Griffith University, Brisbane, Australia; and Emeritus Professor of Politics at the University of Newcastle, UK. He is life Vice President and former Chair and President of the Political Studies Association of the UK; a Fellow of the Academy of the Social Sciences in Australia; and a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences, UK. He has also been a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, editor of Public Administration from 1986 to 2011, and Treasurer of the Australian Political Studies Association, 1994–2011. He is an internationally respected scholar in public administration with an extensive publication record (see http://www.raw-rhodes.co.uk/).

Donald J. Savoie holds the Canada Research Chair in Public Administration and Governance at the University of Moncton, New Brunswick, Canada. He is a former civil servant and has extensive work experience in both government and academia. He has been an adviser to federal, provincial Leonardo Secchi is Professor at the Universidade do Estado de Santa Catarina, Brazil. He has extensive research experience and publications in the area of public administration, bureaucracy, administrative reform, public policy and studies of local government. He was President of PVBLICA – Institute for Public Policy – is Director of Events of the Brazilian Society of Public Administration (SBAP) and Professor of Undergraduate and Master’s Degrees from the State University of Santa Catarina (UDESC/ESAG), where he teaches Public Policy.

Anne Tiernan is a Professor at the School of Government and International Relations, Griffith University, Australia, where she is Director of postgraduate and executive programs in policy analysis and public administration. Dr Tiernan’s research interests include: policy advice, executive governance, policy capacity, federalism and intergovernmental coordination. She has authored numerous books and articles, including, most recently, Lessons in Governing: A Profile of Prime Ministers’ Chiefs of Staff and The Gatekeepers: Lessons from Prime Ministers’ Chiefs of Staff (both with R.A.W. Rhodes, Melbourne University Publishing, 2014). Dr Tiernan is a member of the Public Records Review Committee of the Queensland State Archives and has served on the Board of Queensland’s Public Service Commission. She consults regularly to Australian governments at all levels.

Krishna K. Tummala is Professor Emeritus, and was Director of the Graduate Program in Public Administration, Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS, USA. He served on the governing bodies of the American Society for Public Administration and the National Association of School of Public Affairs and Administration, and was President of the public administration honour society, Pi Alpha Alpha. Among the several awards he received are: Paul H. Appleby Award for ‘Distinguished Service to Indian Institute of Public Administration (IIPA) and Public Administration, 2011’; Fred Riggs award for ‘Lifetime Scholarly Achievement in the Field of Comparative and International Administration’, SICA/ASPA, 2008; and ‘Don Stone’ award from the American Society for Public Administration for ‘Outstanding Services’, 2005. He has published extensively in various national and international journals in his areas of competence.

Steven Van de Walle is Professor of Public Administration at Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands. He is Fellow of the Public
Management Institute at the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, and a senior member of the Netherlands Institute of Government. His research and teaching covers the role of public administration in societies and in the state, and specific research interests include citizens’ perceptions of the public sector, government–citizen relations, public sector performance, corruption, trust in government, satisfaction surveys, comparative public administration and governance indicators. Professor van de Walle’s research has been published in books and in leading public administration journals.

Zhichang Zhu is a Reader in Strategy and Management at the University of Hull Business School, UK and holds visiting professorships in China, Japan and the USA. Dr Zhu researches and teaches in corporate and reform strategy from an institutional, comparative and complexity perspective. His work has been listed as Strategy + Business Best Business Books of the Year (2012).