

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	viii
List of contributors	ix
1 Neoliberalism, precarious work and remaking the geography of global capitalism Andrew Herod and Rob Lambert	1
PART I EXPERIENCES OF PRECARIOUS WORK Andrew Herod and Rob Lambert
2 The growth and organization of a precariat: working in the clothing industry in Johannesburg's inner city Katherine Joynt and Edward Webster	43
3 Bounded mobilizations: informal unionism and secondary shaming amongst immigrant temp workers in Chicago Sébastien Chauvin	72
4 Home-based work and new ways of organizing in the era of globalization Dilek Hattatoğlu and Jane Tate	96
5 Constructing violence and resistance: the political economy of the construction industry and labour subcontracting system in post-socialist China Pun Ngai and Lu Huilin	125
6 Nature and insecurity in South Africa Jacklyn Cock and Rob Lambert	148
7 At the cutting edge: precarious work in Brazil's sugar and ethanol industry Brian Garvey and Maria Joseli Barreto	166

PART II CHALLENGING PRECARIOUS WORK

Andrew Herod and Rob Lambert

8	Organizing across a fragmented labour force: trade union responses to precarious work in Korean auto companies Aelim Yun	201
9	Closures and openings: the politics of place and space in resisting corporate restructuring Michael Gillan and Rob Lambert	226
10	Sweatshop citizenship, precariousness and organizing building cleaners Luis L.M. Aguiar	255
11	Global unions, global framework agreements and the transnational regulation of labour standards Mark Thomas	277
	Conclusion: towards a movement of the dispossessed? Rob Lambert and Andrew Herod	303
	Index	323