Acknowledgments

Upendra D. Acharya: I would like to thank Ms. Jeannie Young and Sristee Acharya for their insightful suggestions. I would also like to thank my research assistant, Ms. Ruth Ptak, for her valuable time, hard work and insights.

Catherine Bell: My chapter was originally delivered as a speech: Catherine Bell, Speech at Simon Fraser University’s President’s Dream Colloquium (8 January 2015), www.sft.ca/ipinch/. The author gratefully acknowledges the research assistance of Rebecca Ratcliff and Nicholas Kuynsz.

Janet Blake: My chapter is a revised and expanded version of a paper presented at the European Society of International Law 10th Anniversary Conference held in the University of Vienna in September 2014.

Mindie Lazarus-Black: My thanks to the deans of the two law schools who enabled me to engage in anthropological research in those settings and to the administrators, faculty and international students who gave their time so that it would be possible to explore and understand the international LL.M. experience and to learn about “us” and US law school through their observations. An early version of my chapter was presented at the Law & Society Association, Boston, May 29–June 2, 2013. I also want to acknowledge Marta Cucuirean-Zapan, Nikky Greer, Marie Schelle Solano and Brendan Tuttle for research assistance and transcribing tapes. My thanks to Bill Black, as always, and to Glenn Gottfried, Matthew Lippman, Jim Nafziger, Christopher Roy, Carole Silver and Sylvia Vatuk for comments and suggestions as the chapter developed over time.

P.G. McHugh: The author is grateful to Oxford University Press for permission to use material drawn from Aboriginal Title: The modern jurisprudence of tribal land rights (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2011).

Sally Falk Moore: My brief chapter was originally written for, and will appear in, a forthcoming International Encyclopedia of Anthropology which Wiley is planning to publish soon. As a small contributor to a large project, I found that there were a number of editorial constraints about subject matter, length and style to which I had to conform. Nevertheless, readers may find my abbreviated chapter useful insofar as it embodies a unique approach to the subject.

Elina N. Moustaira: I would like to thank Jim Nafziger, a great colleague, for his friendship always and for his precious help, whenever I have needed it, during the many and wonderful years of the ILA Cultural Heritage Law Committee’s existence.

James A.R. Nafziger: Chapter 9 is drawn from and revises a Final Report on the Law Pertaining to Cultural Landscapes Significant to Indigenous Peoples. This report was prepared by the Committee on Cultural Heritage Law of the International Law Association (ILA), which I chaired, and was then approved by the ILA in 2016.
would like to thank the committee for their input and especially the committee’s two Special Rapporteurs, Margaret Beukes and Elina Moustaira, for their foundational work.

Jorge Sánchez Cordero: To my daughter, Carla, with love.
