Acknowledgements

This volume is a product of inspirational discussions and collaborative work between the contributing authors and many other colleagues over the past two years. The idea of writing a book on the theme of value conflicts in markets was born in early 2010 at a Score workshop organized in Saltsjöbaden by the research directors of the Organizing Markets programme. Among the topics that came up during the first plenary session, value conflicts turned out to be particularly engaging and attracted a large number of participants for the scheduled sub-group discussions.

As editors, we are grateful to research directors Nils Brunsson, Christina Garsten and Göran Sundström for their immediate support and encouragement to invite in authors from our partner research centres. The positive response received resulted in a number of co-authored chapters in which empirical findings from two or more markets were compared. As expected, this comparative approach brought with it a few challenges, but it also prompted us to engage in constructive, fruitful dialogues that we feel have greatly enriched both the comparative analysis within and between chapters, and the overall theoretical contribution of the volume.

We would like to thank Riksbankens Jubileumsfond (Bank of Sweden Tercentenary Foundation) for the generous grant that made this book possible. We are also grateful to The Swedish Foundation for International Cooperation in Research and Higher Education (STINT) for funding three international workshops in 2010–2012. The purpose of these meetings was to discuss the ongoing work and to give each other critical feedback and constructive input. We extend special thanks to Göran Ahrne, Patrik Aspers, Lotta Björklund Larsson, Nils Brunsson, Marie-Laure Djelic, Staffan Furusten, John Meyer, Mats Jutterström, Yuval Millo, Rune Premfors, Rita Samiolo, Linda Soneryd and Göran Sundström, whose valuable comments and suggestions on various drafts of chapters greatly improved the final product. We also extend our thanks to our colleagues at SoRAD, Stockholm University, and the Department of Business Studies, Uppsala University, who generously invited us to give seminars on the book, which helped us to refine the arguments. We are also grateful to the two anonymous reviewers who on behalf of Edward Elgar provided constructive comments on an early version of Chapter 1, and finally, to our language editor Kelly V. Olsson for her much appreciated flexibility and efficiency.

It has been a stimulating journey to experience first-hand how the collaborative approach of this project has evolved, enabling us to share, compare, complement and learn so much from each other while drawing on our different experiences and materials. We are proud of the outcome and wish to extend an invitation to the reader to take part in further exploration of the timely yet ageless subject of value conflicts in markets.

Susanna Alexius and Kristina Tamm Hallström
Stockholm, July 2013