
Contributors

Fabian Amtenbrink is Vice Dean and Professor at the Erasmus School of Law of the Erasmus University Rotterdam, where he holds the Chair of European Union Law. Since 2009 he has also been visiting Professor at the College of Europe in Bruges, where he teaches the course 'EMU, Financial Market Regulation and Supervision'. Moreover, he is Scientific Director of the European Research Centre for Economic and Financial Governance.

Matej Avbelj is an Associate Professor of European Law at the Graduate School of Government and European Studies, Slovenia, where he also acts as a Dean. He has written extensively in the field of EU law, constitutional law and legal theory.

Steven Blockmans is the Head of the 'Europe in the World' and 'Politics and Institutions' units of the Brussels-based think tank Centre for European Policy Studies (CEPS), Professor of EU External Relations Law and Governance at the University of Amsterdam, and a founding member of the Centre for the Law of EU External Relations (CLEER).

Michal Bobek is Professor of European Law at the College of Europe, Bruges and Research Fellow at the Institute of European and Comparative Law, University of Oxford Faculty of Law.

Tamara Čapeta, PhD (LL.M. College of Europe, Bruges) is a tenured Professor of EU Law at the Faculty of Law of the University of Zagreb and a Jean Monnet Chair. Her current research interests relate to the EU judiciary, especially questions of judicial interpretation of law and legitimacy of courts.

Agata B. Capik (PhD Ruprecht-Karls University Heidelberg) is a researcher in European Law, and lectures in law of the EU at the Ivan Franko National University of Lviv and National Economic University of Ternopil within the framework of cooperation with Jagiellonian University in Krakow, School of Polish and European Law, and cooperating with EEN of the Chamber of Commerce in Krakow as well as the European University of Law and Administration in Warsaw.

Monica Claes is full Professor of European and Comparative Constitutional Law at Maastricht University and Head of the Department of International and European Law in the Law Faculty. She mainly works on the development of European constitutional law, the relationship between EU law and national constitutions, European fundamental rights law and the European mandate of national courts.

Deirdre Curtin is Professor of European Law at the European University Institute in Florence, where she holds a Joint Chair in the Law Department and the Robert Schuman Centre. She is also Professor at the Law Department of the University of Amsterdam where she directed the Amsterdam Centre for European Law and Governance from 2009 to 2016 and was research leader of several innovative research projects embracing both law and political science, including Compound Constitution(s) in Europe and The Architecture of Postnational Rulemaking. Deirdre Curtin has authored and co-authored a number of monographs published with leading international publishers, including Executive Power of the European Union (Oxford University Press 2009) and The Real World of EU Accountability: What Deficit? (Oxford University Press 2010 with Paul 't Hart and Mark Bovens) and publishes regularly in leading law and political science journals.

Adam Cygan is Professor of European Union Law at the University of Leicester. He has written several monographs considering the participation of national parliaments in EU affairs as well as numerous journal articles and chapters in edited volumes. He has provided expert evidence to the EU Affairs Select Committee in the House of Lords on the role of national parliaments in the EU and participates in a training programme for parliamentarians and civil servants which promotes best practice in subsidiarity monitoring.

Michelle Everson is Professor of Law at Birkbeck College, University of London. She has written widely on European Constitutional, Administrative, Regulatory and Economic Law. More recently, she has concentrated on the origins and impacts of economic crisis within the European Union ('An Exercise in Legal Honesty: Rewriting the Court of Justice and the Bundesverfassungsgericht', European Law Journal, Volume 21, Issue 4, pp. 474–499, July 2015)

Kathleen Gutman is a Senior Affiliated Researcher at the Institute for European Law of the University of Leuven. Her main research interests include EU procedural, constitutional and private law. She studied law at the University of Leuven and the Duke University School of Law.

Maarten Hillebrandt is a doctoral candidate at the Amsterdam Centre for European Law and Governance. In his dissertation, he analyses policy-specific divergences and anomalies in the institutional development of access to documents in the Council, combining legal and social scientific research methods. Maarten has published on transparency and open government in the European Law Journal, the Common Market Law Review, and the International Review of Administrative Science. He is a member of the Standing Committee of Experts on International Immigration, Refugee and Criminal Law (Meijers Committee) as an expert in the field of European institutional law.

Saulius Lukas Kalėda is a Legal Secretary (Référéndaire) at the Court of Justice of the European Union, chambers of Advocate General M. Szpunar. He holds a PhD in Law from the Jagiellonian University, Krakow (2002) and is a visiting lecturer at the Law Faculty of the Jagiellonian University.

Martin Kuijer is Head of the Human Rights Unit within the Ministry of Security and Justice of the Netherlands, a part-time Human Rights Professor at the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam, a deputy justice at the Court of Appeal in Arnhem and a (substitute) member of the European Commission for Democracy through Law (the ‘Venice Commission’).

Adam Łazowski is Professor of European Union Law at the Westminster Law School, University of Westminster. Adam’s current areas of research include EU enlargement policy and free movement of persons, as well as EU withdrawal. He has provided expert evidence to the House of Lords (enquiry into future enlargements of the European Union) and the Scottish Parliament (enquiry into legal implications of Brexit). His monograph on legal parameters of withdrawal from the European Union is forthcoming in 2017 (Edward Elgar Publishing).

Joana Mendes is Associate Professor at the University of Amsterdam. She obtained her doctoral degree in law in 2009 at the European University Institute (Florence), with a thesis on participation rights in EU administrative law (Participation in EU Rule-making: A Rights-based Approach, OUP, 2011) and her Masters degree in Public Law in 2002 at the University of Coimbra. Her work has focused on the exercise of public authority in the EU, also in relation to global regulatory regimes, with the aim of developing normative solutions to problems raised by executive power as exercised in the EU. Her recent work on ‘Unveiling EU Administrative Discretion: The Role of Law and Good Administration’ has been funded by the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research (NWO) under its VENI scheme.

Alicja Sikora (PhD Jagiellonian University, Krakow, Poland) has been a Legal Secretary (Référéndaire) at the Court of Justice of the European Union since 2004. Called to the Polish Bar (2011), Dr Sikora is also a visiting lecturer at the Law Faculty of the Jagiellonian University where she teaches EU Procedural Law.

Kees van Duin (PhD Erasmus University Rotterdam) is an economic advisor at the Secretariat-General of the European Commission specialising in issues related to the Economic and Monetary Union and economic governance. Before joining the European Commission, he was head of the European Economy Unit at the Dutch Ministry of Economic Affairs.

Ellen Vos is Professor of European Union Law at the Law Faculty of Maastricht University. She is Co-Director of the Maastricht Centre for European Law of Maastricht University and the Centre for European Research in Maastricht (CERiM). She is also research coordinator of the research programme ‘Integration, Differentiation and Flexibility: New Perspectives on EU Law and Policy’ under the umbrella of the Ius Commune Research School. Her main areas of interest are EU law and governance (comitology and agencies), market integration and EU risk regulation (precautionary principle, food safety, pharmaceuticals, nanotechnology). She has published extensively in these areas.

Bruno de Witte is Professor of European Union Law at Maastricht University and co-director of the Maastricht Centre of European Law. He is also a part-time Professor of Law at the European University Institute in Florence.